Six Out of Ten Leaders from This Country-United States Winner Falls from Exhaustion After Race.

STOCKHOLM, July 15 .- South Africa, which heretofore played a rather modest part in the Olympic drama, came to the center of the stage at the moment of its culmination yesterday, winning the marathon race, the most important number on the Olympic program. This might have been honor enough for a small nation, but South Africa also won second place by a secure lead, which was piling up the

The winner of the classical marathon was K. K. McArthur, a Transvaal policeman, who has never yet been headed in a similar event. His compatriot, C. W. Gitshaw, came second into the stadium several hundred yards behind, and third to appear was the American, Gaston Strobino of the South Paterson Athletic club, who put up a braver fight than most of the runners, for his feet were skinned and bleeding and he was suffering great pain. He never lost his nerve, though, and made a brave attempt at feeling happy while he traversed the stadium track a furlong behind the second man at the end of the killing perform-

The time as announced was: McArthur, 2 hours 36 minutes; Gitshaw, 2 hours 27 minutes; Strobino, 2 hours 38 minutes Demonstrate Staying Power.

The Americans certainly gave a death blow to the theory that the athletes of the United States are better at contests which require quickness and ability than in tests of endurance. While 30,000 spectators, who were grilled on the stadium seats, strained their eyes toward the archway from under which the runners emerged, they saw the American shield on the breasts of six of the first ten men who entered. The names on this roll of honor are Strobino, Andrew Sockalexis, Old Town; John Galligher, Yale university; Joseph Erxleben, Missouri Athletic club; Richard F. Piggott, North Dorchester Athletic association, and Joseph the hammer and was put out of the American team numbered twelve and ten finished. The last of these was Thomas H. Lilley, North Dorchester Athletic association, who finished eighteenth.

Two Americans fell by the wayside-Thomas J. Ryan of the Irish-American Athletic club, who made a hard run and then succumbed to the heat, and John J. Reynolds of the same club, who fell out

They started at a eral American entries, great pace, but during the first few miles put forth all their powers and had nothing left when the final test came.

Canada had no reason to be ashamed for two of its representatives, J. Duffy and W. H. Forsythe, finished fifth and sixteenth, respectively. Canada's great hope, Corkerey, ran with Ryan for several miles, and then gave up together.

The tall Finn, Kolehmamen, another favorite, was outclassed. He took the lead at the beginning, but Gitshaw caught him at five miles and ran at his heels, with McArthur and F. Ford of Great Britain for ten miles more; then robbed him of the leadership.

Two miles and a half from the goal McArthur went to the front and held the lead to the end. He had completed the circuit of the arena before Gitshaw came under the archway and he fell to the ground exhausted. The spectators cheered him lustily, and as he lay panting. Crown Prince Gustave Adolph came up and shook him by the hand and patted him on the back. A small party of South African anthusiasts had an enormous laurel wreath ready in anticipation of victory, of which they were confident from the first. They lifted the two green-jerseyed athletes on their shoulders and slung the laurel over McArthur, carrying the pair across the field.

Half an hour later, after champagne had been opened in the dressing room. the African delegation again brought out the victors and bore them around the track, the band playing frantically,

There is a little green house; inside that green house is a white house; inside that white house is a red house and inside the red house are lots of little black people.

It must have been an agricultural architect like John Latenser who concocted that conundrum, for who else but a man who spends most of his time making plans for court houses, convention halls, school buildings, warehouses, stores melon as a series of encased houses or a row of flats?

Railroad Foreman Gets Broken Leg in

FAIRBURY, Neb., July 15 .- (Special.)-Stephen E. Mueller, general foreman of the Rock Island shops, was thrown off a gasoline motor car on the Rock Island bridge just west of Fairbury Saturday and had two bones in the left leg below the knee fractured.

He was trying the car with Roadmaster J. J. Breheney. They were crossing the bridge when the car jumped the track and Mueller's left foot was caught between the rails. He was taken to his home here and Dr. G. L. Pritchett set the fractured member.

Another accident occurred when Walter Shepherd at Lewiston was thrown down by a train and dragged on the ground. His left leg was broken below the thigh and the member badly torn below the knee and the toes of the right foot cut off. It is said he was standing between cars and a locomotive struck them. George Duncan, a Rock Island conductor of this city, also sustained a painful injury at Stelnauer Wednesday and nearly had his left leg taken off.
