HUMPHREY ANSWERS NORRIS

Washington Man Replies to Strictures on Republicans of His State.

METHODS OF THE BLACKMAILER

Says Nebraska Representative Slandered Honorable Men on the Strength of Anonymous Statement.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—In a bitter speech in the house today, Representative Humphrey of Washington, republican, replied to Representative Norris of Nebraska, who yesterday concluded a speech in which he condemned the recent Chicago republican convention and charged that the delegates from the state of Washington had been obtained for President Taft through political corruption. Mr. Humphrey disavowed any personal knowledge of the manner in which the delegates were selected, saying he was not at home at the time.

"But I do resent the attempt of the gentleman from Nebraska, Mr. Norris," he declared, "to reflect upon the honesty and integrity of a large number of the citizens of my state by quoting the opinion of some man whose name he is not willing to give. The gentleman in his speech said in substance that a certain gentleman of wide acquaintance and of high standing, whose statements would have great weight with the members of this house and of the country and who was conversant with all the facts, had stated to him that the delegates from the state of Washington to the republican national convention were absolutely stolen."

Mr. Humphrey recalled the fact that he repeatedly called upon Mr. Norris to name his authority. Mr. Norris, he said, had declared the man in question was a supporter of President Taft and a candidate for office and for that reason had refused to permit the use of his name.

Evidence Not Competent.
Referring to the fact that Mr. Norris once had been a judge, Mr. Humphrey asked him what he would think if he (Humphrey) should accuse a fellow member of the house of being a scoundrel and a criminal and when called upon for proof, refused to name his informant, except that he was "a man of national reputation, a man whose truth the house could not doubt."

"What a monstrous proposition that is," exclaimed Mr. Humphrey. "If there is a man on this floor whose innate sense of honesty, fairness and justice would not arouse his hot indignation? Is it any less monstrous, any less dastardly to utter such statements about a large number of reputable citizens to discredit them and for political purposes, to assassinate the reputation of a great political party?"

"I know that the gentleman from Nebraska does not approve any such method. I am still utterly unable to account for his using such methods, or having used them to fall upon reflection to ask to have this portion of his speech stricken from the records. This is the method of the anonymous letter writer, held in scorn and contempt by all decent men. This is the method of the blackmailer, the most cruel and cowardly of criminals, to extort blood money from his terrified and helpless victims, while shielding himself.—This is the method of the ruthless poisoner of the domestic peace in his neighbor's family. This is the method of the lowest and vilest of all God's creatures, the vile monster that by anonymous whispers assassinate the reputation of virtuous women."

Mr. Humphrey said he did Mr. Norris the justice of believing he had made his anonymous charges "in the heat of his cause, or in the enthusiasm of hysteria."

He scathingly arraigned the "great and good man" whose identity Mr. Norris declined to reveal, for refusing to let his name be known because he was candidate for office.

Not Entitled to Credit.
"May I not ask the gentleman from Nebraska what rule he uses in measuring the honesty and the credibility of the candidate for office?" demanded Mr. Humphrey. He insisted that a man of such character as the unknown informant was entitled to no credit.

"The gentleman from Nebraska is himself a candidate for high office," continued Mr. Humphrey, "and if he is to subscribe to the doctrine that he is advanced in behalf of his unknown witness that when he is a candidate for office he is excusable for acting with a party that he knows is corrupt; that he is excusable for supporting a candidate dishonestly nominated, for the highest office in the civilized world; that he is excusable for not giving facts in regard to dishonesty and graft in his own party, does not the gentleman impeach himself and place himself in a position where his own motives may be justly questioned?"

In vehement language Mr. Humphrey condemned those who charged political corruption and political rottenness in the camp of their opponents, "while concealing the truth about their own party and their own candidates."

"This seems to be the logic of the position of the gentleman from Nebraska," he said. "I regret to say that this does seem today to be the approved method of a large class of professional reformers who are seeking by the volume of their vocabulary to make the public believe that with them rests the salvation of the republic, and that with them virtue shall perish from the earth."

In conclusion, Mr. Humphrey referred to the statement of Mr. Norris that those who had supported Mr. Taft had destroyed the republican party. He retorted with heat that if any man had done more to destroy that party than Mr. Norris, "the democratic party should erect costly monuments to his memory and sing his praise in song and story down to the last available of recorded time."

Several times during Mr. Humphrey's attack, Mr. Norris sought to interrupt, but unavailingly. When Mr. Humphrey concluded Mr. Norris sought time to make reply, but former Speaker Cannon, whom Mr. Norris fought so bitterly two years ago, had charge of the time on the republican side and declined to yield the floor. Mr. Norris was forced to postpone his reply.

Norris Gets the Floor.
Representative Norris finally got the floor on democratic time. He launched into a defense of all his charges with reference to the elections in the state of Washington.

RED ARMY IS ON DEFENSIVE

Change of Tactics Foced by Rapid Advance of Blues.

THREE TOWNS ARE DESTROYED

Reds Also Blow Up Railroad to Protect Their Retreat—Many Skirmishes Are Expected in Short Time.

CAMP DOUGLAS, Wis., July 26.—The red army today changed its tactics from offensive to defensive, forced into the change by the steady advance of the blues. In order to protect its retreat and make the advance of the blues more difficult the reds destroyed three towns and a railroad, thereby cutting off the enemy's rail communication toward the west, where the reds are operating.

Red cavalry destroyed Valley Junction after a nine-mile advance. Wyeville and Oakdale also were destroyed and a hundred yards of railroad south of Wyeville were blown up by the reds in their retreat. On account of the capture of two red outposts of cavalry yesterday by the blue cavalry many of the same incidents were looked for today. The blues are supposed to have advanced in the direction of the reds and to have encountered more outposts and patrols.

Skirmishes Expected.

The reds, who have more cavalry than the blues, sent out a large force in order to prevent a duplication of the losses of yesterday. The advance guards have not yet come into contact, nor have the advance guards had skirmishes. The proximity of the two forces now indicates that unless the reds retreat more rapidly than the blues advance many skirmishes will occur, resulting in losses and captures on both sides. United States troops are busy on all work, closely watching the maneuvers and seeing that all rules are complied with by the forces.

Although one red outpost made its escape, the umpires ruled that it had been destroyed by the blue firing.

Officers' conferences were held at both camps last night and the day's work discussed. The situation was given to the commanding officers and plans were discussed for carrying on the attack.

Inquiry Into Alleged Orgies.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Officials of the War department today ordered a searching investigation today of conditions existing at Camp Douglas, Wis., where it has been charged by some spectators of the army maneuvers that soldiers and militia have been engaged in drunken brawls in the town of Douglas and that women have been insulted and attacked by the soldiers.

General Ramsey D. Potts, commander at Chicago of the central division, embracing the regular army troops in nineteen states, upon hearing of the report today telegraphed to Major Carl E. Reckmann, chief umpire in charge of the maneuvers, ordering him to ascertain the truth of the charges and the extent to which the regulars were involved.

McGovern Doubts Story.

MILWAUKEE, July 26.—Governor Francis E. McGovern, who is in Milwaukee today, was surprised at printed stories of alleged drunken orgies among the regulars and National guardsmen participating in the military spectacle and sham battle at Camp Douglas.

The governor stated that when he was at Camp Douglas a week ago he was highly impressed with the improvement

DAVIS DENIES STATEMENTS MADE BY BERT FRANKLIN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 26.—Further efforts to impeach Bert H. Franklin, the witness against Clarence S. Darrow, were made today by the defense in the Darrow bribery trial. Franklin was Darrow's confidential man, employed to investigate the records and dispositions of probable jurors during the trial of James J. and John J. McNamara, convicted of dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building. He pleaded guilty to jury bribing.

The taking of testimony was resumed this afternoon after the defense had lost its fight to force Juror Leavitt out of the box on the ground of prejudice, and to substitute alternate Juror Blakeley. Leopold Davis, formerly associated with Darrow and the McNamara brothers, was the only witness called. He denied many statements made by Franklin and gave some new testimony favorable to Darrow.
