Happy Hollow clubs.
FRIDAY-Dinner and dance at Seymour Lake Country club.
SATURDAY-Dinner and dance at Country, Field, Happy Hollow and Rod and Gun clubs.

The Field club is going to "Boston' after all. After threatening to bar the new-fangled dance the directors veered around and decided to make it a feature of the Wednesday and Saturday night programs.

The dance is to be allowed, however, only under the eye of a strict censor. That censor is to be no other than Willard Chambers, dancing master, who has rather decided ideas on the proper way to "Boston." Mr. Chambers began his censorship at the Field club last evening, and will be on hand every Wednesday and Saturday night dance during the remainder of the summer to overlook the

"There's nothing wrong about the Boston if it is properly danced," says Mr. Chambers. "The trouble is that some of the young people dance it too fast and bend over, making an awkward pose. The Boston is simply the old hop waltz

Mr. Chambers says that he saked a middle-aged matron to dance with him at the Field club the other evening and that she demurred, saying she only knew how to waltz the old-fashioned way. He succeeded in pursuading her to dance, and when they were through surprised her by declaring that they had been dancing the new-fashioned Boston.

Brogan Home Has Elevator. An electric elevator is to be a feature of the beautiful new residence which Mr. and Mrs. Francis &. Brogan are building on Fortieth and Davenport streets. There will be no stair-climbing in the Brogan household. A person will simply step into a little compartment, shut the door. push one button designating the floor he wishes to stop at and another to start the contrivance and up he goes in the weirdest and most delightful manner.

The Brogan home is a large colonial structure of red brick with white trimmings and faces south on Davenport. It will be complete in all details. Mrs. Brogan, who is a charming hostess and almost every conceivable device which will make for the comfort and pleasure of her household and guests.

Another new home which will have an electric lift is that of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Baldrige on North Forty-ninth street. The only other Omaha home which has the electric elevator is that of Mrs. W. P. Callahan on South Thirtyseventh street. When Mrs. Callahan came from Dayton, O., to be near her daughter, Mrs. J. DeForest Richards in Omaha she had an electric lift put in the house which she purchased.

young matron, wife of a prominent specialist. The doctor is a connoisseur in the art of eating. Nothing satisfies him quite so much as a well-cooked dinner replete with fancy frills and condiments. His wife in striving to please her better half has become a cook of much local fame. Furthermore, she considers nothing too much trouble or too expensive in preparing a meal.

Tales of her elaborate and extravagant dishes are constantly going the rounds of her friends and acquaintances. The latest story is that in preparing ham. this young matron first boils the meat in champagne for several hours. When an economical housewife of her acquaintance accused her of wild extravagance. she blushed and protested that she did
