NEWSPAPER WAR IS ENDED

Agreed Finding Entered in Ready Print and Plate Cases.

UNFAIR METHODS MUST CEASE

Defendants Restrained from Competition That Would Result in Destruction of One and the Monopoly for Survivor.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—With the filing of an agreed decree in a civil anti-trust suit against the Western Newspaper Union and the American Press Association, the federal government today took an advance step under the Sherman law to prevent what the Department of Justice regarded as the possibility of a combination to influence the thought of 80,000 readers of rural newspapers.

The proceedings in this anti-trust suit were terminated in record time. United States District Attorney Judge Kenesaw M. Landis entering the agreed decree immediately following the filing of the government's petition and the answers of the defendants.

List of Defendants.

The suit was directed against the following corporations and individual defendants:

Central West Publishing company (holding company of the Western Newspaper Union), Western Newspaper Union, Western Newspaper Union of New York, George A. Joslyn of Omaha, Neb.; John E. Cramer, Milwaukee; H. H. Fish, Omaha; M. H. McMillen, Chicago; American Press Association, organized in New York; American Press Association, organized in West Virginia; Courtland Smith, W. O. Brogan and Maurice F. Germond.

Competition Must Cease.

The decree is designed to end a bitter trade war between these corporations, which furnish "boiler plates" and "ready print" to thousands of country newspapers. The defendants are restrained from combining or continuing alleged unfair methods in competition which would result in destroying one or the other and a complete monopoly for the survivor with all its potential power of influencing the sentiments on economic and other important questions of the readers of the 16,000 small newspapers of the United States, which it is estimated fall into the hands of two-thirds of the people of the country.

Spinsters Confute the Utterances of Colorado Minister

Huffer advocates, society would miss them very much. Many married women, like the old woman who lived in the shoe, have so many children they don't know what to do. Single women without the responsibility of a family are needed to lend a helping hand. The single woman is free to do things for other people's families which they cannot do for their own. The teacher said she had a distingled use in mothering other people's children. She has the opportunity of aiding all good public causes in the community which make for the advancement of civilization, while married women are submerged in their homes and their families. There is wonderful opportunity for the woman lawyer to make good. Women will go to her when they would not go to a man—women deserted by their husbands, in a tangle over property or in trouble over their children. I cannot imagine how any man with the education and experience which a minister is supposed to have can say that single women are waste, humanity. How could he say that of such a woman as Helen Gould? It is even more unjust to say this of business women. They cannot contribute money to the advancement of civilization, but they can give of their ability and sympathy which come with training and knowledge of human nature through experience.

Miss Esther A. Johnson: "I am surprised that any man should make such a statement. Why, just consider the old maid teachers! We wouldn't have any civilization at all if it were not for them. Then take the social workers. I for one feel that I am doing as much for the advancement of civilization as if I were managing a home and children of my own. I feel that it is not on the single woman doing social work that the criticism should fall, but on the married women with well-to-do homes who will not open their hearts to members of society who are less fortunate than themselves."

Lillian Sturt: "If all the old maids were called there would be a good deal of the hard work of the world left undone and many helpless and unfortunate people left uncared for. The old maids are not sitting around idle. Let me tell what I have done today as a visiting nurse and head of the Visiting Nurse dispensary. This morning I visited nine families. In every one of which there was serious sickness. In one family the mother is in the last stages of tuberculosis and cannot possibly take care of these two children. One child is ill with infantile paralysis. I arranged to send this child to a hospital in Lincoln. The baby I took out to the baby camp in Elmwood park, which is at the opposite side of town from where the family lives. In the afternoon I was busy with children at the dispensary."

Miss Lily Strong: "This minister's statements are really too ridiculous to consider. The Young Women's Christian Association is the outgrowth of a great need of women. Social conditions have made it necessary. There is a branch association in every community of any size all over the world educating and Christianizing girls and women. These associations are carried on by single women. A married woman would not have time to do the active work."

Miss Mabel W. Porter: "Of course, I do not agree with Her. Mr. Huffer. Take the single woman who is doing social work. She is constantly dealing with homes and families, settling difficulties and giving aid of different kinds, material and advisory. Women are especially adapted to this work. They are needed to carry on the business of looking out for the needy and unfortunate."

Summer Shows

The ensuing week brings to a close the most prosperous summer season the popular Gayety theater has ever enjoyed. To make the week a gala one—a pictorial treat of the highest class that will leave behind pleasant thoughts of the 'twain season's show in the minds of the thousands of the week's prospective patrons, it has been arranged to present for the entire week the sublime in motion picture, the world's greatest actresses in their greatest successes, Sarah Bernhardt in "Camille" and Rejane as "Mme. Sans Gene." These superb pictures will be presented identically as at the Brandeis theater last spring, in review of which The Omaha Bee said in part: "Mme. Sarah Bernhardt seems to have been acting at her best when she appeared before the motion picture machine that produced the views which were shown at the Brandeis yesterday afternoon and evening. She appeared as Camille in the play of that name. This role she has made famous and the work she did before the film machine adds credit to her great acting. If such a thing is possible, 'those who have seen her play 'Camille' will be delighted in watching the motion pictures reveal her great art again. The other players who performed for the "Camille" pictures were members of the Brandeis Theater company. Still another photo play is given. It is that of "Mme. Rejane in her famous role of 'Mme. Sans Gene.'" In many ways this play is fully as interesting and entertaining as Bernhardt's "Camille." "Mme. Sans Gene" is a famous comedy, and in the photo play Mme. Rejane brings forth all her great bits of acting. Her two particularly well known scenes in this play with Napoleon, the one in which she brings his laundry to him and the other, many years later, when she gives him the bill, are vividly realistic in the views.

These two great plays will be given continuously at the Gayety all week from 1 to 5 and 7 to 11 p. m. Next Sunday will see the close of a fourteen weeks' summer run after which the theater will be turned over to house cleaners, decorators and other artisans to prepare it for the opening of the regular season of extravaganzas and vaudeville, starting on Sunday, August 25, with the recording holding company of last season, Clark's "Runaway Girls."

High-class motion pictures, illustrated songs by Miss Alma Hurley and other vaudeville acts will constitute the bill at the popular Airdome for the week commencing tonight. In response to requests which have piled up all season it has been decided to make Monday night of the week amateur night. All amateurs who present themselves Monday evening will be given an opportunity to put on their acts, which will be judged by the audience. Cash prizes will be given those who receive the most applause. Every facility will be given the embryo actors and actresses to present their stunts to the best advantage. A piano will be put on the stage for the ragtime players and a spotlight will be given those who desire to work in this light.

Courtland Beach is an attractive place for picnic parties. Cool shaded places assure relief from the heat and much pleasure is derived from summer sports afforded by the lake front. The moonlight brings added attraction to bathing and boating. Many take part in these beautiful forms of recreation. The sand bottom beach does away with dirt and weeds and a clean, fresh splash can be had. There are plenty of rowboats and launches for those who wish to ride on the water. Popularity of this fun is apparent by the number taking advantage of the excellent facilities. Dancing in the open air is in much favor. The large floor and good music furnish a treat. The big roller coaster and carry-us-all are thrillers. Bowling and roller skating are enjoyable pastimes. Free moving pictures are shown on the beach.

Krug park is entertaining large crowds. There are vast opportunities of amusement to please all sections for outdoor recreation. General attention is attracted to the big roller coaster. Its extensive proportions make possible the steep inclines that furnish exciting and exhilarating rides. Popularity is evidenced by enthusiastic patronage. A good treat is afforded by the Old Red Mill, in which streams flow through fairy lands and the boats transport their passengers from warm to arctic zones. Dancing in the open air pavilion to excellent music by the orchestra attracts lovers of this enjoyable pastime. Free moving pictures bid well for a high place in public favor. Arrangements have been made to seat the many spectators who enjoy this ever growing form of recreation.

Besides the general film moving pictures shown free at Manawa there will be given also free this week two vaudeville acts each afternoon and evening. Douglas and Douglas will present a talking acrobatic novelty and introduce a canine comedian who is educated and funny. Al Leonhardt will show dexterity and fun in a juggling novelty.
