Honest Alderman is Discovered in Valley Junction.

COUNCIL PURCHASES FIRE HOSE

County Attorney of Polk County Announces He Will Open Voting Machines in October to Allow Recount.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 14.—(Special Telegram).—An honest alderman has been found. He is George Williams, one of the council of Valley Junction and he turned a neat trick on a briber and the Valley Junction treasury is the richer therefor. The council had decided upon the purchase of a certain kind of fire hose and the agent, after this had been done, but without knowing of the decision, offered the alderman $75 if he could get the contract. The alderman told his associates and in due time the money was received and turned into the town treasury.

County Auditor Frase, after refusing to open the voting machines used at the recent primary and resisting an order of court to have them opened, has announced that in October he will open them and give all persons a chance to see whether they were correctly recorded as to the vote. It will then be too late to remedy mistakes should any be discovered.

HOUSE REJECTS VETO OF TAFT ON STEEL BILL

Arguments amid laughter and applause from the democratic side. Majority Leader Underwood made a spirited attack on the motives that prompted President Taft to veto the steel bill, which, he said, had been passed by a republican senate with but two slight amendments. He referred to the president's explanation that changes had been made in schedules as it was presented to him last year, and that congress had vouchsafed no explanation for those changes.

Underwood Explains Duty.

"Any man of intelligence, or any man of conscience, any man having respect for himself, would not send to the congress of the United States that statement as a reason for defeating the will of the American people as expressed by their representatives in the congress of the United States."

Bishop Lucock Orders Changes in South Dakota

EDGEMONT, S. D., Aug. 13.—(Special).—Bishop Naphthali Lucock of the Methodist Episcopal church made drastic changes during the conference of the Black Hills mission which adjourned last night with the reading of the appointments. By a unanimous vote of the conference the mission will be consolidated with the Dakota conference which will meet at Yanktown, S. D., October 10. This mission, which has been in existence thirty-two years, will then go out of existence.

The mission was founded by Bishop Warren and will scarcely outlive its founder who passed away last month in Denver. The change being made in this district is one of progress as it arises to the dignity and importance of a conference. Bishop Lucock made some startling changes, the chief of which was the division of the mission into three districts as follows: Deadwood district, Rev. J. A. Edwards, district superintendent; Cheyenne River district, Rev. H. L. Case, Sturgis, district superintendent; Missouri Valley district, Rev. Paul H. McBeth, Lemmon, district superintendent, and Dr. A. C. Stevens, St. Paul, superintendent.

With the ratification of this action by the Dakota conference this mission will cease and Dr. Stevens will be assigned some other important station in the activity of the church. He came here from the First Church of St. Paul by appointment from Bishop McIntyre last year.

COST OF LIVING IS REDUCED

Advantages of Co-Operative Buying to Consumers.

PLAN IN OPERATION ABROAD

A Notable Showing of Reduced Expenses and Money Saved by Societies in Great Britain and the Continent.

To the average citizen of the United States the co-operative plan of buying merchandise is little known, but in England, Scotland and European countries, it has been successfully pursued for more than half a century and is making large gains every year.

To illustrate the extent of co-operative buying with figures, there are in the United Kingdom over 2,500,000 individual members of co-operative societies. There were in 1909, 2,965 retail societies which made returns to the government.

The largest wholesale society, which is the wholesales and manufacturing agent of the retail societies and owned by them, is the Co-operative Wholesale Society, limited, of Manchester, England. Its sales last year amounted to practically $140,000,000. The second largest wholesale co-operative society is the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society, limited, whose net sales for the year of 1911 were about $22,000,000. On the sales of these two wholesale societies alone the ultimate consumers are saving in some cases the manufacturer's profit as well as the wholesale dealer's profit besides other valuable considerations.

Plan of Action. If you or I, readers of this paper, lived in England and wished to become members of a local co-operative society, we could do so by paying down one shilling as the first instalment on five shares of $5 each. Our first shilling payment would entitle us to all the membership privileges, which consists chiefly in lower prices on purchases. When we had paid up one full share of $5 interest is allowed at 5 per cent, with the privilege of increasing the capital, as we wished up to $100. The increases, of course, drawing interest at 5 per cent per annum and the principal can be withdrawn at any time with the same freedom as savings can be withdrawn from a savings bank. The English law does not allow members to have shares in excess of $1,000 in one society. Having become members of this retail co-operative society, we would buy such merchandise from its local store as it would be to our interest to buy, but we would have perfect freedom to buy from other retail stores as we saw fit. At the end of each six months' purchases we would get a dividend of from 10 to 15 per cent of our gross purchases. This could be taken out in cash or applied to a savings fund, drawing 5 per cent as before mentioned. This co-operative membership would have several influences. It would reduce the high cost of living, cultivate the habit of saving and increase gross savings and give us, if we were of moderate means, money to spend on the better things of life after we were fed, clothed and sheltered. The motive governing these retail societies is a helpful co-operative motive, which aims to give the best service possible at the lowest price and without profit.

Management of Societies.

The business of the wholesale co-operative society is managed by thirty-two directors, elected by the local societies. These directors give their entire time at a salary of $1,750 per annum. It is almost unthinkable for the average American business man to consider a proposition of this kind where thirty-two men coming up from the ranks of ordinary consumers by popular election are conducting an enormous business more economically than the large establishments of trade in England can conduct it and giving their best efforts entirely for the motive of rendering good service and securing a comfortable salary with the honor that goes with a public service efficiently performed.

An Aggravating Problem.

This brief account of co-operative buying in England must make a vital impression on the mind of the average American consumer who is constantly confronted with the aggravating problem of the high cost of living.

The horse and buggy were valued at $200.

Physiologists know that the gray matter which composes nerves and brain is made up almost wholly of water, albumen and a vital tissue salt, known as Phosphate of Potash.

Grape-Nuts FOOD

Every-day food contains water and albumen in quantity to meet every need, but Phosphate of Potash, found plentifully in the hard outer shell of wheat and barley, is lacking in white bread, for white bread is made from white flour—the inside of the grain which is deficient in Phosphate of Potash.

builds brain as well as body, for it supplies valuable Phosphate of Potash—the element necessary to brain nourishment and brain activity.
 Grape-Nuts is processed from selected parts of wheat and barley, twice baked to make an appetizing dish for breakfast, lunch or supper.
