blcked up the better grades in very good season in the morning, paying prices fully steady with last week. On the other hand the common to medium kinds were very slow and anywhere from weak to be lower.
Cows and helfers were slow sellers this morning, buyers all feeling that they have been paying prices here out of line with other markets, and in consequence determined to force a lower range at this point. As a result the trade was not only dill, but prices were as much as lice lower and in some cases more than that.
Stock cattle and feeders were in moderate supply considering the total receipts of cattle. At the same time there was a very good buying demand, with the result that anything in the way of desirable stock cattle or feeders were active seliers at steady to strong prices. The otferings of such cattle were for the most part cleaned up early in the morning, they being the first cattle to sell.
Chothe had the first to sell.</l
