

GRAIN AND PRODUCE MARKET

Bears Will not Receive Any Help in Depressing the Prices.

CORN IS IN ACUTE POSITION

Oats Futures Are Being Held Steady by Exports and Other Shipments and Firmness in Other Markets.

It is not likely that the wheat bears will receive any immediate help in depressing the prices from the large run of spring wheat.

It will be recalled that the shipping side of the market has been very active in the past few days.

There is no chance of getting away from the present position in case the September corn prices are not held up by the new crop.

Probably 1,000,000 bushels were taken for export in the market Saturday.

Primary corn receipts for the week are estimated at 4,500,000 bushels.
