COLONEL'S REQUEST DENIED

Roosevelt Will Not Answer Charge of Archbold Next Month.

UNABLE TO GET TOGETHER NOW

Lea Resigns and Senator Pomerene Takes His Place--Inquiry Will Not Be Dropped.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26--Colonel Roosevelt will not have an opportunity to answer John D. Archbold's statements before the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures until late in September.

Senator Clapp, chairman of the subcommittee before which Mr. Archbold told his story of having contributed $100,000 to the Roosevelt fund in 1904, telegraphed Colonel Roosevelt at 4 o'clock this morning that the committee would not be able to hear him Monday as the colonel desired.

Late tonight Senator Clapp received a telegram from Senator Dillingham of Vermont, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, announcing that Senator Pomerene of Ohio would be appointed to take the place of Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, who has resigned.

Following the receipt of Colonel Roosevelt's telegram last night, Senator Clapp made efforts to arrange for a committee meeting Monday. Senator Lea insisted upon resigning at once, however, the illness of his wife's child making it imperative that he should leave Washington.

Senator Oliver and Pomerene already had left. Senator Jones left today for the Pacific coast. The committee undoubtedly will proceed late in September with its investigation, even though the Penrose resolution for additional authority should not be passed by the senate tomorrow.

Will Write Letter.

OSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 26--Having failed to obtain a hearing before the senate committee investigating campaign contributions because of the inability of the committee to get together tomorrow, Colonel Roosevelt plans to write the committee a letter, embodying some of the things which he would have testified. He so declared tonight in a statement in which he also took the committee to task for permitting John D. Archbold to sail for Europe without telling more about the $25,000 he contributed to the republican campaign in Pennsylvania in 1904.

Colonel Roosevelt had received no direct word from Senator Clapp when the correspondents visited him at Sagamore Hill tonight. He had heard indirectly, he said, of the committee's inability to have him appear before it tomorrow. He was greatly chagrined, he said. Also, he added, the senate need not bother about conferring additional power on the committee if they wanted to find out about his primary campaign, his relations with George W. Perkins and Mr. Flynn, the Pittsburgh leader, or any other matters connected with his primary campaign; or, for that matter, anything that he had ever done as president.

The letter will be long. Colonel Roosevelt expects to spend about all day tomorrow working on it and he is not sure it will be finished by tomorrow night. It is possible he will touch lightly upon his primary campaign of 1912. It is reasonably sure that he will devote considerable space to his relations with Penrose while he was president.

Colonel Roosevelt said that he had seen George B. Cortelyou, who was republican national chairman in 1904.

Mr. Cortelyou tells me he never heard Mr. Archbold's name mentioned in connection with any contribution, by Mr. Bliss," Colonel Roosevelt said, "and that as regards himself the whole story is a fabrication out of whole cloth and, of course, it is about me."

BANKER MATTHEWS ARRAIGNS TRUSTS AND MONEY KINGS

public virtue and morality and false standards it has set up.

Mr. Matthews denounced J. Ogden Armour, the Sugar trust and the Steel trust, saying:

"The offenses of the Sugar trust against public morals and the laws of the land small to heaven. Within the last few years trusts have been found guilty and paid a penalty of 170,000 for rebating. They have paid the government $2,000,000 for false weights, secured by bribery, and ex-Secretary Shaw says that during his incumbency of office he estimates that they defrauded the government of $10,000,000 annually. They have confessed to a conspiracy in offering $750,000 to stop a suit at law. Six of its seven directors were indicted for conspiracy, and the statute of limitations was all that saved them from the penitentiary."

Mr. Matthews estimated that 90 per cent of the active working capital of the nation is in the control of the "Wall street group, dominated by the Morgan-Rockefeller combination."

In concluding his address he said: "Banking as a business is founded on credit. You cannot have credit without confidence and you cannot have confidence without honor. The preservation of business confidence, the credit system and public morals, depends in no small measure upon the active participation of the banking fraternity in the propagation of high moral standards."

Prof. Pugsley Talks. Immediately after the convention was called to order in the Elks' club rooms and the perfunctory report of officers were heard, the bankers, through C. W. Pugsley of the Nebraska university farm experiment station, went into communication with the "source of money, the farmer producer."

"How Can Bankers Assist Agriculture," was the topic of the address delivered by this agricultural expert. He reviewed the work of the farm experiment station at Lincoln and gave the bankers a suggestion for their present convention work, namely, the bringing about of better business relations between the farmer and banking institutions.

The convention was called to order by President Frank McGivern, who, after calling upon Dean Tancock of Trinity cathedral for the invocation, responded to the address of welcome by Victor B. Caldwell and delivered the president's annual message.

The report of William B. Hughes, the secretary of the association, showed that the association had acquired twenty-six members since the last annual convention, bringing the total membership up to 79 banks.

Secretary Hughes included a report of some of the expenses of the organization, among which was $4,000 for bank protection, going out of a fund of $8,500 for that purpose. A number of bank robbers had been captured and imprisoned during the year, he said, and the depletion of the fund was a source of satisfaction rather than regret for this reason.

Along this line of bank protection William J. Burns, the detective who became famous through the handling of the McNamara dynamiting cases and the San Francisco and Detroit graft cases, and whose agency is employed by the association for protection, will talk before the convention this afternoon. He will discuss "Protection of Banks."

Interested in Agriculture.

Treasurer J. C. French made his report. After it was placed in the records of the association the first address of the convention was heard, that of Pugsley.

"Your deep interest in the cause of agriculture is shown conclusively by glancing at your list of association committees," he said, "I find that the first two on the list are strictly agricultural committees, while the fourth is a committee which cannot go very far in its work without considering agricultural questions. This would make more than one-third of all your committees dealing with agriculture. This is right, for agriculture is really the foundation of all the industries of our country. The people in towns and cities are sometimes accused by the farmers of undue interest in something which is not their business, but we must all remember that the prosperity of the farmer is the prosperity of the nation, so an intense interest in agriculture by all is only natural."

Farmer Typical American.

In telling of some of his troubles in getting the farmers of the state to adopt the improved methods used at the experiment station, the speaker dropped a glowing compliment to the ruralite.

"An X-ray of the composite rural mind of Nebraska," he declared, "would startle a good many of those who are not familiar with our rural citizenship. I believe that the Nebraska farmers are the cleanest thinking class of citizens in the world. I also believe that they are the deepest thinking class. They think slowly, but they think surely, and when the time comes for them to make a definite decision on an important matter, you can be certain that the decision is going to be right."

"The Nebraska farmer is typically American. He wants to do things for himself. He doesn't want anything handed to him on a platter. If it does not belong to him, he does not want it. If it is an idea, his natural conservative inclination will keep him from accepting it until it has been proven better than the idea which he already possesses. Above all things dictation and paternalism are repulsive to him, and this is the reason why some of the pet schemes of agricultural educators have failed, and why others are being tried will fail."

For Pure Seed Corn.

In summing up the work of the past year by the experiment station, the speaker referred to the seed corn campaign.

"Temporary propagandists often lead to some lines of permanent work. An instance of this is shown in connection with the seed corn campaign. Mr. Odell, secretary of the Rural Life commission, was hired by Mr. Parish of the publicity bureau, to work out in the state along publicity lines. Mr. Sturgess of the Twentieth Century Farmer, and a number of people interested in agricultural extension will keep him from accepting the idea which he already possesses. Above all things dictation and paternalism are repulsive to him, and this is the reason why some of the pet schemes of agricultural educators have failed, and why others are being tried will fail."

SUFFRAGE FEELING IS FELT

Senator Says That the "See America First" Campaign is Having Its Effect on London Hotels.

Ready sale for American crops will be found this year in the British Isles and in France, where too much rainfall has entirely ruined the year's prospects for the farmers.

Senator J. H. Millard, his daughter Jessie, and Miss Anna Downes returned to Omaha yesterday morning from a brief trip in France and the British Kingdom, and the senator says that American farmers need not worry about disposing of their bumper crops.

"It is a pitiful sight to look at the foreign fields where the crops are rotting on the ground. Everywhere the farmers are deeply in debt and prospect of ruin stares them in the face. The entire British empire has been soaked with rain for months and France and Switzerland, too. Besides the rain, the weather is extremely cold, and I was told that January weather has been the rule for the last few months.

"Another thing that impressed me in England was the woman suffrage feeling. While in Europe it is more intense than it is here, I do not think that as good results are accomplished for the cause."

Senator Millard and his party left New York on August 6 on the Olympic. They visited a few days in Paris and saw surrounding hamlets from an automobile. From France they went to London where a few more days were spent. The party took in Stratford, York and several places in Wales, and then returned to London. They arrived in Omaha at 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

"The effect of the 'See America First' campaign being pushed by principal cities in the United States is being felt in Europe. The big Savoy hotel in London is practically empty this year and I was told that the tourist 'crop' is at least 60,000 shy this year. The Titanic disaster has had effect on ocean travel too, and the European hotel keepers who reap a rich harvest of American dollars every year are feeling the loss keenly."

Sam Blythe Sundays With Omaha Friends

Sam Blythe, the well known political writer and minister plenipotentiary of the Saturday Evening Post, blew into Omaha and out again yesterday, staying long enough to look up some old friends and get a line on the presidential puzzle.

After the Chicago and Baltimore conventions Mr. Blythe retired to his ranch in Montana for an outing, landing in San Francisco two weeks ago, from which place he is making a transcontinental excursion headed for Boston, with short stops at the high points. Mr. Blythe says he has stopped making guesses on the election outcome, and is convinced no one can figure it out any better than he can.

GRACE AND TRUTH ARE TWO RULING PRINCIPLES

"There is but one gospel, but it has two ruling principles--grace and truth," So said William Baird, well known Omaha lawyer, preaching at Lowe Avenue Presbyterian church, Fortieth and Nicholas streets, in the absence of the pastor, yesterday morning. His subject was "The Dual Aspect of the Gospel."

"The word of God shows clearly these two aspects," said Mr. Baird. "The one is the testimony of the reality of Christ; the other is the preaching or proclaiming of the kingdom. Christ had His disciples testify, according to the literal Greek. One testifies to what he knows. That is the meaning of the word. In the courts a witness may tell only what he knows; it does not matter what someone told him. Christ's command was that the disciples testify of Him. This they could do because they knew. This is the first aspect of the gospel, this is grace. Also they were bidden to preach, that is to proclaim the kingdom. They were bidden to preach and proclaim the truth of the coming of the kingdom. This is the other aspect of the gospel.

"Christian men must know these two aspects of the gospel to live as Christ would have them live, testifying of the grace of God and preaching, proclaiming the truth of the coming of the kingdom."
