AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Gillin and His Men Form New Democratic Club.

PLAN TO RULE OUT OPPONENTS

Deny Admission to Room to Some Well Known Workers in City—Also Forget to Endorse Shallenberger for Senator.

At a meeting controlled by the Gillin men held last night at Twenty-sixth and N streets in the law office of W. H. Jamieson, lately defeated candidate for re-election as county attorney of Sarpy county, John Gillin was endorsed with Wilson, Marshall and other democratic candidates, except A. C. Shallenberger, Jerry Howard, original Wilson man, saved the day for Shallenberger, while Attorney Eugene Sullivan, who read the resolutions of endorsement, looked reproachfully at the men who had worked them up.

The affair was a cut-and-dried Gillin affair from the start, gotten up in opposition to the regular Wilson-Marshall club organized some time ago by Jerry Howard, Lew Casey, Tom Ensor, jr., and Frank Keegan. From carefully prepared lists the work of the Gillin crowd was carried on. Joe Walker of the World-Herald and grand vizier of the Gillin forces, nominated Captain Parkhurst for president of the club. In turn "Joe" was nominated for secretary. John Fitz Roberts, one of the best democrats in the city, was turned down cold for a place as vice president. Lew Casey, president of the regular Wilson-Marshall club, was refused admittance to the meeting. Tom Ensor and John Keegan were also refused a place in the meeting. There were as many as twenty present, counting Eugene Sullivan of Omaha and William Jamieson of Papillion. Jamieson is to be the Gillin candidate for city attorney of South Omaha at the next election, according to best report.

Jack Parks, who is a dyed-in-the-wool democrat without respect for gang leaders, inquired why the club should be called Wilson instead of Wilson-Marshall. He was not on the inside and did not know that the new club was gotten up especially to break up the young men's original Wilson-Marshall club of South Omaha and strengthen Gillin's claim on the pie counter.

Feeney Carried to Jail.

Max Feeney, an 18-year-old boy, was literally carried to jail last night by Captain Hank Elsfelder and Detective James Sheahan after he had beaten Clarence Briggs at Twenty-fourth and N streets, knocked down Officer Ed Krueger at Twenty-fourth and M streets and terrified the people in the neighborhood of Twenty-fifth and O streets.

Feeney's trouble began in Fisher & McGill's news store, where, it is alleged, the two boys, Briggs and Feeney, got into an argument over the merits of Jack Welsh, a young man who was compelled to fight his way into South Omaha some weeks ago. Lew Casey, who happened near the scene of the fight, separated the combatants only after Briggs had been beaten over the eye. Feeney then proceeded to Twenty-fourth and M streets, where, it is said, he beat Officer Krueger over the head. He finally made his way to a restaurant at Twenty-fifth and N streets, where he cried for a knife with which to carve Jimmie Sheahan. Detective Sheahan walked into the store and spanked Max with his open hand, after which Elsfelder and Sheahan took the young man to jail.

New Catch Basin Invented.

City Engineer Herman Beal has invented a way to circumvent the nuisance of the noisome catch basins on Railroad avenue from Washington to Monroe streets. For more than a year the residents in the southwestern section of the city have complained of the stench that has emanated from the different sewer openings along Railroad avenue. It was said that a number of children had contracted diptheria from the vapors coming out of the sewer in that section.

Petition after petition for relief was made to the city council until the Southeast Improvement club grew weary of further petitioning and threatened to take the matter into their own hands. At this point Street Commissioner John Fennell with a force of men closed up all the objectionable openings in the sewer on Railroad avenue until some permanent relief could be effected.

City Engineer Herman Beal after trying several patented sanitary catch basins was finally compelled to become an inventor and make a catch basin suitable for the needs of the sewer in question. The sanitary catch basin is much larger than any used heretofore. It allows of a sanitary deodorization of the atmosphere surrounding the sewer vents as well as a means for carrying away the storm water. The basins are being installed as rapidly as the engineer can get them in.

Andy Sues Arthur.

"I slept him, cooked him and eat him for three months, judge, and he never paid me a cent" said Andy Dupont in the court of Justice George Collins yesterday where he sued Arthur Smith for $10 and costs.

Mr. Dupont who is not immediately related to the Powder trust conducted his own case and cross examined his whilom friend. "Didn't I treat you like a mother, Arthur," pleaded Dupont.

"You bought some beer sometimes and bought some back, replied "Li'l Arthur."

"Who held you up for ten weeks last Christmas a year ago when I had all the eats and you had none?"

Li'l Arthur by advice of counsel refused to answer.

"Why does you draw your check when I ain't around complained Mr. Dupont."

Again Li'l Arthur kept mum.

"What did you ever do for me, Arthur?" "Nothing 'cept buy me a 15 cent meal in Hiawatha, Kan., fifteen year ago.

"I bought you some beer for that," came back Arthur, "and I don't owe you a cent."

Mr. Dupont spoke feelingly upon the tender ties that had bound him to Mr. Smith "when we was living together" explained Dupont in an aside to the court. In order to look up authorities the court asked each one whether or not he could pay costs. The answer was so encouraging that the court summoned both parties to a meeting "in chambers" where the decree of separation and maintenance will be signed.

"Massa" Hoctor Wanted.

Henry Coombs, aide-de-camp to Sub-Sanitary Inspector Henry Schmeling and a colored brother of distinguished Senegambian descent, is on edge for the return of Mayor Tom Hoctor, who last week sold him an Arabian steed that objects to traveling out of the feed lot. Yesterday after a long conference between Schmeling and his colored helper the new purchase was roped and tied to a sulky and driven out for a demonstration to the police. The horse was hobbled and blindfolded. Coombs rode in the sulky and Schmeling on foot escorted the show and gave advice. The horse balked in front of the police station. Then under the urge of Coombs' whip he did a Gaby Deslys pirouette and ended by climbing the trolley pole.

A second campaign of the two Henrys made the nag take a few dainty steps upon the shafts of the rig. He was then led into the lot and the army went into winter quarters. Later in the evening Henry Coombs called at the mayor's office to inquire if "Massa Hoctor done got back yit." Old Henry's voice was oily, but there was a brooding look in his eye as of one whose trust had been imposed on.

The wealth of the nation is in the soil of the farm

Among the people who are best off today are the tillers of the fertile soils of the rich farms of this country. Thousands of men are leaving the cities after years of life there and joining the back-to-the-farm movement. There is more wealth to be found under the farm soil than in the city.

Nebraska is one of the richest agricultural states in the Union. It overflows with the good things of the farmers, and this grand state today has many of the wealthiest farmers in the world.

Nebraska soil is productive of some of the best crops in the world. The rich ground, properly cultivated, yields crops that make the farmers independent within a few years.

There is still lots of room in Nebraska for more farmers. Parts of the state are undeveloped.

In order to tell the world of the farm opportunities here this paper is now making ready the

Nebraska Development Number of The Omaha Bee

This beautiful magazine must be distributed widely in order to tell other parts of the world of the conditions here in this state—of the myriads of advantages that await the man who wants to get back to the soil and become independent.

Nearly every line of industry and activity depends upon the success of the farm. It is of interest, therefore, to other people in other lines to make Nebraska grow as a farm state.

These little magazines, handsomely bound, beautifully illustrated, and full of information about Nebraska's farming and about the whole state in every line of activity, will tell the world how great a state we have—and we have a great state, much better than you know.

Trial of Darrow Set to Begin October 21

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 28.—Clarence S. Darrow, former chief counsel for the McNamara brothers, must go to trial October 21 on an indictment charging him with jury bribery. Presiding Judge Willis of the superior court set the October date today when Darrow was called into court on the indictment charging him with having bribed Robert Bain, the first juror sworn to try James B. McNamara.

The Bain indictment was returned at the same time as the indictment charging bribery of George N. Lockwood, on which Darrow was acquitted ten days ago.

Judge Willis announced that within two days he would call upon Acting Governor Wallace to appoint an outside judge to preside at the trial.

Attorney Earl Rogers, for Mr. Darrow, informed the court that if the date of trial were set it would be over the objection of the defense, which in no wise waived its right to proceed to have the indictment dismissed.
