CORN CONDITIONS IMPROVE

Burlington Crop Report Shows Better Prospects Than a Week Ago.

MORE WINTER WHEAT ACREAGE

Fall Plowing is Well Under Way—Corn About Out of the Way of Frost—Pastures are All in Fine Condition.

The crop, soil and weather reports of the railroads for the week ending last Saturday, fail to take into account the heavy rain that was quite general over Nebraska Saturday night, followed by heavy rains in the east and fairly good rains in the west section Sunday night. Nevertheless, they indicate fully an average corn crop.

Along the Burlington conditions have improved from one week ago, as the following estimates of superintendents indicate:

Division	Last week	Previous week
Omaha	35	32
Lincoln	30	28
Wymore	32	30
McCook	30	28

This estimate is on a percentage basis 100 per cent being a perfect crop.

Corn Not Damaged.

According to the report, except in a few localities and in these the area is limited, corn stood the dry, hot weather of last week without being damaged. Slight damage by heat is reported from the country around David City, Wilcox and Holdrege.

Much of the corn is said to be almost out of the way of frost. As a rule, the late plantings are in better condition than the early, the late grain having withstood the heat and dry weather.

On the Alliance division, where no comparison is made with conditions of former years, the average yield is placed at from eighteen to fifty bushels per acre. In this section of the state, ten days more of favorable weather will make the crop.

The Sterling division, which covers a wide area of western Nebraska, reports a corn yield of from twenty to forty bushels per acre. On this division there are some fields that last week had commenced to show the effects of the dry weather, but it is thought that the subsequent rains have prevented further damage.

The reports received by the Burlington indicate that in the country tributary to its lines, about 45 per cent of the fall plowing has been done and that the acreage into winter wheat is going to be greater than last year. Potatoes promise fully an average yield and the pastures on the whole are in fairly good condition.

Roosevelt Socialist; "I Should Say Not," Says Kansas Editor

"Roosevelt a socialist! I should say not," said A. M. Simons of Girard, Kan., editor of the Coming Nation, as he lay pale and weak on his sick bed at the Paxton hotel yesterday suffering from a thirty-six-hour attack of acute gastritis. Mr. Simons was almost too weak to turn over in his bed, but his excitement rose when Roosevelt was spoken of. "Roosevelt," he says, "has followed along the line of some other statesmen of Germany, England and France who sought to kill socialism by stealing some of its planks. Roosevelt's socialism is a death bed conversation. He had seven years in the office of president. Why did he not do or say something in the interest of socialism then? When he was governor of New York he sent troops to New York to intimidate the strikers of the Croton Aqueduct works. They were striking merely for a working day of legal hours, and as governor Mr. Roosevelt's business should have been to send that contractor to jail for violating the law. Instead of that he sent troops to intimidate the strikers. "Furthermore, he made the dirtiest attack on socialism in one of his magazine articles that has yet been made. He had read one of Goldstein's books and, attempting a criticism, he went off half cocked as he always does. He accused all socialists of standing for free love and of being free lovers and a lot of other stuff. The result was that when he came to Milwaukee to speak the socialist mayor of Milwaukee refused to greet him as an individual, but merely met him as mayor of the city of Milwaukee. And when the mayor announced his attitude on the matter Roosevelt couldn't say one word, for he knew he had made an unfounded attack upon the virtue of all socialist women."

Mr. Simons says Eugene V. Debs will poll 1,000,000 votes this fall. He also holds that the socialists have a chance to put in some four or five congressmen this fall, the best chances being in Wisconsin, Kansas, North Dakota, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

All Citizens Must Register in Order to Vote Next November

Violet Joslyn Teaches Fish New Tricks in Swimming Art

George A. Joslyn has a fish pond and a daughter Violet, and the daughter likes to go swimming with the fish.

Ever since the warm spell set in there has been considerable argument occasioned by the frequent plunges she takes as to whether the fish or Miss Violet has right to possession of the pond.

The pond, a beautiful body of water, is located on the lawn of the palatial Joslyn estate at 2922 Davenport street. Its surface is studded with lilies and other water plants, making an ideal retreat for the aristocratic gold and silver fish.

It may be that they are a bit jealous of her, for they do not have anything on Violet when it comes to aquatic tricks. Miss Joslyn, besides being accomplished in other ways, is an athletic girl, and likes outdoor exercise, especially swimming, and she never misses an opportunity to don her bathing suit and take a plunge in the private pond.

She is regarded as the cleverest young woman swimmer in Omaha.

VIOLENT STORM AT FLORENCE

Much Damage is Done to Property in Suburban Town Sunday.

A DWELLING IS BLOWN DOWN

Several Large Trees are Snapped in Two, Dragging Down Wires and Crippling Light and Telephone Service.

A damaging storm struck Florence Sunday evening about 8 o'clock.

Several big trees were blown down, and as they crashed to the ground carried electric and telephone wires with them. The result was that all of the town was thrown into darkness and telephone service was crippled.

The wind was so strong that it laid many acres of growing corn flat on the ground. Orchards were denuded of fruit by the wind, even the grapes suffering. The path of the storm, which was accompanied by a heavy rain, appears to have been about a mile wide.

The residence of H. A. Kinney was wrecked by the strong wind. One side of the house was blown away and the balance of the structure collapsed. The house was valued at about $1,000.

Mrs. Silvers, a widow, also suffered a severe loss when her two chicken houses were destroyed. She had recently completed building them at a cost of $500 apiece.

All over Florence small outbuildings were wrecked and tumbled about. Considerable farm property is reported to have been damaged.

Only "Cascarets" If Constipated

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act on Bowels. As Pepper Acts in Nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your liver, stomach and bowels and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage-way every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil. This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestine and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Campbell Returns a Lively Corpse

The inconveniences of being dead when one is not dead were related by Will A. Campbell of St. Paul, formerly manager of the publicity bureau of the Omaha Commercial club, now secretary of the Northwest Development league. Campbell was traveling in the west when a wreck occurred on the Great Northern in which a certain W. A. Campbell lost his life. The newspapers carried the story and from various circumstantial facts it became widely published that the dead man was Will A. Campbell. Telegrams began to shoot about the country and one reached Blair, where Mr. Campbell's wife was visiting, with her sister. In the meantime Mr. Campbell was traveling in Washington and when he reached a hotel in Spokane he found that his mail had all been sent back either to the sender or to the Commercial club at St. Paul, as the news had reached Spokane that he had perished. When he registered at the hotel, the clerk nearly threw a fit as he informed Campbell that he was supposed to be dead. Then he took the train from Spokane to North Yakima, where he was to be the speaker at a banquet. Here he found the papers announcing the calling off of the banquet on account of the death of the speaker. "When I got on the train to leave," says Campbell, "I kept singing the old song, 'It was then that Pat Maloney forgot that he was dead.'"

Portrait Says West Prosperous

Young Orchards are Just Beginning to Send Thousands of Cars of Their Products to the Omaha Market.

After two weeks spent in that portion of the fruit raising sections of Idaho, tributary to the lines of the Harriman railroad system, Gerrit Fort, passenger traffic manager of the Union Pacific, is home and enthusiastic over conditions throughout the Intermountain country.

Everywhere Mr. Fort went he found the country in a most prosperous condition and everywhere he found the business men and fruit growers looking upon Omaha as their market town. He found the fruit growers and shippers and the land men talking of the Omaha Land show held one year ago and the benefits their state had derived therefrom. He found that the show had brought many settlers and had resulted in a great number of land sales. In addition to added scope of the market for the products.

In connection with his trip, Mr. Fort secured some figures on what Idaho has been doing and is doing in fruit growing. These figures show that in 1910, fruit growers had 54,341 acres into apples, prunes, peaches, pears, berries and mixed fruit and that the output shipped, aggregated 3,014 cars. In 1912 the acreage had increased to 142,768, with shipments of 4,194 car loads. The figures show that the shipments of fruit since 1910 have not kept pace with the acreage, but that is accounted for by reason of the fact that the young orchards have not come into bearing.

In going through the country and talking with heads of shipping associations and growers, Mr. Fort learned that while it is not all consumed here, a large portion of the Idaho fruit comes to Omaha. From here it is reshipped and sent all over the country.

Not only did Mr. Fort find the fruit industry prospering, but he learned that the state has just harvested the best agricultural crop in its history. A great deal of this comes to the Omaha market, as do the hogs and cattle.

The Metropolitan league meeting was attended by a good sized delegation. The
