farmer from Elmwood, Cass county, who alled at republican state headquarters. They have gone past the stage of agtressiveness and because the republicans nd democrats crowd them so hard with uestions on Rossevelt's record they are oreed to take the defensive entirely." Mr. Clapp says they find the defensive position a very hard one, much harder than the aggresive stand when they do all the talking and the consequence is that their tone is much lower when they talk in favor of the third party candi-

Mr. Clapp said he had heard of but one old man who was going to do this. When he looked up the case, he said he discovered this old gentleman was in reality a life-long republican, who had simply turned democratic long enough to vote for Bryan in 1896 because he belleved in his principles at that time.
