STATE WILL NOT INTERFERE

City May Handle Strike of Teamsters in Des Moines.

CROWDS ARE TYING UP TRAFFIC

Teams Driven by Nonunion Men Unhitched and Drivers in Some Instances Roughly Handled by Union Men.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 3.—(Special Telegram.)—The state and county officials will not interfere in the transfer teamsters' strike so long as the city officials are able to handle the situation as they have handled it in the last four days. This was the decision which was rendered after Attorney General George Cossou and Thomas Guthrie, county attorney, had been called into the situation and asked to take the police situation out of the hands of Councilman Van Liew and J. W. Jenney, chief of police. There was only one criticism of the situation and that was over the crowds that here and there tied up traffic by stopping teams driven by non-union men and unhitching them.

The striking teamsters have announced they will not interfere with companies handling baggage.

J. P. MORGAN GIVES $150,000

was really paid over to the state committee," suggested Senator Paynter. "Yes, I refused to have anything to do with it unless the money was paid to the national committee," said Mr. Morgan. "It was my understanding that the national committee did not need funds, but the state committee was badly in need of money. I had a great deal to do with Mr. Cortelyou during the campaign, but I do not know whether he was present at the meeting when the $150,000 contribution was discussed."

Intimate Friend of Bliss

Mr. Morgan said his relations with the elder Cornelius N. Bliss had been very intimate; that Mr. Bliss and his father had been associates, he said, and "whenever they wanted anything they sent Mr. Bliss to me."

"Had you supposed that Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortelyou kept from President Roosevelt the fact that you contributed to the campaign fund?"

"I know nothing about that," said Mr. Morgan. He had not discussed campaign contributions with Mr. Cortelyou.

When Senator Pomerene took up the examination Mr. Morgan leaned forward in the witness chair, with one hand capped over his ear. But he failed to hear and finally he got down from the witness chair, saying:

"Can't I sit down here near you; I can't hear very well?"

He took a chair from one of the official stenographers and moved it to within a few feet of Senator Pomerene.

Senator Pomerene then asked whether other members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. specifying George W. Perkins, had contributed in 1904. Mr. Morgan did not know.

No Other Contributions That Year

"Did your firm contribute to the campaign funds of any other political parties in 1904?" asked Mr. Pomerene.

"No, sir; I did not and I have no knowledge of any one else so contributing."

Mr. Pomerene asked about "conferences" with George B. Cortelyou. Mr. Morgan said he talked with Mr. Cortelyou in 1907 over the financial situation, but that he recalled only one conference over politics.

"Did you talk with President Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad in 1904?"

"Yes."

"Did you talk with representatives of the big insurance companies about the political situation during that campaign?"

"I can't tell; I talked to many people. Many people came in to see me every day."

"Do you remember any conference of big financial interests at which was discussed the question of whom the interests would support for president?"

"No, I remember no such conference."

"When was it first determined that the financial interests would support the republican nominee?" asked Pomerene.

"I never had any conference on that point," returned Mr. Morgan.

The $100,000 contribution again was brought up and Senator Pomerene asked if Mr. Bliss were collecting any special fund.

Same Contribution in 1900

"No, that was the contribution we would make in the regular course if we were especially interested in the campaign," said Mr. Morgan. "We made the same contribution in 1900."

"Were you especially interested in the campaign of 1901?"

"Yes, we were."

"Was Mr. Harriman especially interested in that campaign?"

"I really do not know."

"Were the insurance companies especially interested in this campaign?"

"I don't know. There was never any concerted action by me with any of the insurance companies in that matter at that time," said Mr. Morgan emphatically.

"Of course, Mr. Perkins was a director of the New York Life Insurance company and he probably talked with me about their interests, but I can't remember any specific conversation."

Pomerene asked if Mr. Morgan had any talk with Mr. Harriman at that time about the effect of the campaign on the railroads.

"I don't remember any, but it is not at all unlikely," answered Mr. Morgan.

He knew nothing of any contribution by Mr. Harriman or Charles S. Mellen.

"Did Mr. Harriman ever tell you he had a talk with Mr. Roosevelt about railroad interests?" asked Senator Pomerene.

"I remember no such conversation."

The financier here interrupted the examination to say:

"Mr. Chairman, I want to make a statement right here."

"Proceed," said Chairman Clapp.

No Promises Made by Anyone

"I want it distinctly understood," said Mr. Morgan, emphatically, "that J. P. Morgan & Co. never made a single contribution to any election with any promise or expectation of any return, in any shape or manner, and we never made a subscription unless we thought it for the best interests of the government and the people. We never had a communication from any candidate; we never had an application from any candidate. The only interest we had was in the welfare of the public. We never asked any commitment; we never accepted any returns and we never got any."

"During this campaign was there any intention on your part to support the democratic candidate?" asked Senator Pomerene.

"I never heard of it if there was," replied Mr. Morgan, smiling. "If we had thought the election of a democrat was for the best interest of the country we would have contributed to his campaign."

Mr. Morgan responded to another question about "a conference," said that he thought he "would have been apt to know if there had been a 'small conference' of large financiers' looking to the election of Colonel Roosevelt, but he had no knowledge of such."

"Did you or Mellen, or Mr. Harriman call on any of the financial men of New York in the interest of the republican campaign that year?"

"I don't think so; I never heard of such a thing."

"Was there at any time any conference among financial interests looking toward the nomination of a democratic candidate who would be suitable to the financial interests of New York?"

"I did not know of anything of the kind."

Did Not Talk with Harriman

"Did you ever meet Mr. Harriman and Mr. Mellen in Mr. Harriman's office to talk over these matters?" asked Senator Pomerene.

Mr. Morgan responded he never had been in Mr. Harriman's office and very seldom talked with Harriman in that campaign about the political situation.

He said he talked with no one representing the "national nominee" except officers of the national committee. He said Chairman George B. Cortelyou came into his office "several times," and thought the visits were before the contribution of $100,000.

"Was anything said by Mr. Cortelyou as to the amount they desired to raise?"

"I don't think there was any hint," replied Mr. Morgan with a chuckle. "I think they would have taken anything they could get."

The committee and spectators joined Mr. Morgan in a laugh.

Mr. Morgan said $30,000 was all that was given to the 1908 campaign, one contribution being $20,000 and another $10,000.

"Those contributions were all under the direction of Mr. Perkins. I speak of those because I remember them. I don't know what Mr. Perkins may have given."

"Did Mr. Bliss and Mr. Cortelyou express any gratitude?"

"No. I never experienced much gratitude in this connection," returned Mr. Morgan.

Mr. Morgan is Excused.

Senator Clapp then asked the usual formal questions as to any further information the witness might have.

"I know of nothing further," said Mr. Morgan. "I should be most happy to give the committee any further information I might have."

"You may be excused for the present," said Chairman Clapp.

"Can I go back to New York?" asked the banker.

"We'll call for you if we want you," said the chairman. "You know you are entitled to your expenses for coming down here."

A general laugh went around in which the committee and Mr. Morgan joined heartily.

"I guess that will be all right," he said, as he shook hands with the senators and paused to thank them for their "courtesy." He did not wait to sign the necessary voucher for his expenses as a witness and left the building with Mr. Slaterly.

Charles H. Duell followed Mr. Morgan on the stand. Mr. Duell, who in 1904 was assistant treasurer of the national committee, knew of no contribution by John D. Archbold.

"I think H. H. Rogers contributed, but I do not know what amount," he said when asked whether any other Standard Oil men had given to the funds.

Thanks!

We take pleasure at this time in publicly thanking our friends—the retail coal dealers and jobbers of Omaha—for their generous offers of aid and the courtesies extended to us on the morning that our coal plant was destroyed by fire.

A Bit of History

The fire started at approximately 5:30 A. M., Wednesday, Oct. 2.

Within two hours and a half we had practically completed arrangements for taking care of our trade. Within three hours and while the fire was still burning we had started to make regular deliveries of coal from cars on track. Now, within thirty-six hours from the time the fire broke out we are in a position to take care of any and all orders and are making deliveries of steam and domestic coal promptly on schedule.

Within four hours heavy shipments of coal from the various producing centers, East, West and South were being made up and dispatched. In one case the car numbers shipped were received by telegram within a half an hour from the time the first telegram was sent.

With coal on track for present needs, with heavy shipments enroute and through the courtesy of other dealers we are now in shape to take proper care of your orders for coal. Do not hesitate to call upon us WE ARE READY.

Among contributors, Mr. Duell mentioned to Germany, $2,000; Whitelaw Reid, ambassador to Great Britain, $10,000; United States Steel corporation, $10,000.

To the Harriman fund Judge Duell thought Mr. Harriman had given $50,000; Mr. Depey or H. McK. Twombly, $20,000, and Mr. Morgan $50,000.

The committee adjourned until tomorrow when it will hear Colonel Roosevelt.
