Welliver, working on the reporters table, was called to the stand and said Mr. MacVeagh had told him of being in Mr. Morgan's private office in October, 1904; that Mr. Morgan had been called to the telephone and was informed E. H. Harriman wished to speak to him. Welliver testified Mr. MacVeagh told him the renewed effort of City Treasurer that when Mr. Morgan returned from the telephone he said:

"What do you suppose that man in the White house wants? It seems that Harriman has gone off down there to Washington and dined with him and now he comes back and says that the president wants him to raise more campaign funds. He has given $50,000 and now he wants me to give $50,000."

Mr. MacVeagh, according to the witness, told him that Mr. Morgan wrote a check for $50,000 which he sent to Mr. Harriman's office. Welliver said he could not recall whether Mr. MacVeagh used the word "maniac" in quoting Mr. Morgan's reference to President Roose-

"The polls were fully manned by Roose velt watchers," he said, "and Mr. Roosevelt got as many as 16,000 votes." Two months before the primary, he said, reports were made to him of attempts to bribe Taft precinct captains to deliver votes to Roosevelt, but he did not verify any of these.

There with the Books. Mr. Mills gave the committee figures and poll books from precincts in the Eighth assembly district, and said investigation of the Roosevelt vote in many districts had shown much of it to have been fraudulent. In one district, he said, a man who had his leg amputated on election day was recorded as having voted. In the Fourth election district, he said, the record showed that the usual 105 votes cast were cast in perfect alphabetical order. Under questions by Senator Pomerene, Mr. Mills said he believed for President Taft was by all pro-nounced the oratorical gem of the Chi-the districts.
