

Stomach Trouble of 12 Years' Standing Gives Way to Duffy's

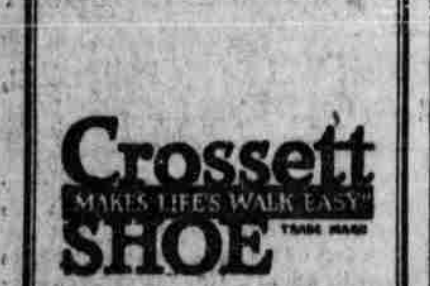

MR. FRED F. ZINK.

Mrs. Fred F. Zink, 222 Saratoga St., New Orleans, La., writes: "My husband suffered with stomach trouble for over 12 years, during which time he doctored with three doctors who gave him no relief. He kept growing worse, had to be very careful as to what he ate, as things always soured on his stomach, but, thank God, after taking three bottles of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey he was entirely cured. He still takes it as a tonic and we would never be without it. He now looks fine and weighs 130 pounds. I can highly recommend it to any one afflicted with stomach trouble."

MORGAN SHELLS OUT CASH

Investigators Find Out Where the Roosevelt Funds Came From. HARRIMAN HEAVY CONTRIBUTOR

Probing the Colonel's Campaign Fund of 1904 Details the Paying Over of Large Sums of Money.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Wayne MacVeagh of Philadelphia, former attorney general, testified before the Clapp committee today that he did not recall an alleged conversation between J. P. Morgan and E. H. Harriman in 1904 about republican campaign funds.

The pre-convention expenditures of the supporters of President Taft and the Roosevelt activities in the south this year, as well as the 1904 campaign fund were scheduled for discussion before the committee today. Former Senator Chauncey M. Depew of New York, Nathan B. Scott of West Virginia, Congressman William B. McKinley, who managed the Taft pre-convention campaign; Ormsby McHarg, Roosevelt contest manager at Chicago, and Matthew Hale of Massachusetts were on the list of the day's witnesses.

Mr. MacVeagh said he did not wish to say he had not given Mr. Wallver some basis for his story.

Mr. MacVeagh called on Mr. Morgan, "I may have called on Mr. Morgan the day I have in mind," said Mr. MacVeagh, "but I remember calling on Mr. Twombly at his office in the latter part of October, 1904. While we were conversing he was called to the telephone by his clerk. His office is in the same building as Mr. Morgan's, but in the upper stories."

Mr. Twombly returned he told me he had been talking to E. H. Harriman; that Mr. Harriman had been called to Washington by Colonel Roosevelt and had found the president anxious for the raising of an additional fund for the campaign that it had resulted in Mr. Harriman agreeing to raise and give to Mr. Illus $200,000.

Mr. Twombly said that Mr. Harriman had called him up and said he expected him to give $50,000. Mr. Twombly told Mr. Illus that he had been asked to give $50,000. He said something that led me to infer that Mr. Morgan would give $50,000.

Mr. MacVeagh said that undoubtedly was the incident to which Mr. Russell and Mr. Wallver had alluded. Just a Patriotic Thing. "I made no secret of it," said Mr. MacVeagh, "because it was thought at that time to be a fine, patriotic thing to give funds to a campaign."

Mr. MacVeagh also related a recent conversation with Charles A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company in which Mr. Peabody said he had been in Mr. Harriman's office when he called up Mr. Twombly about the contribution.

Mr. Peabody said Mr. Harriman told him he had been down to Washington and that the president insisted, or requested or desired, that he raise the additional money, part of it for the state campaign in New York and part of it for use in other states."

Mr. MacVeagh added Mr. Twombly told him he had once been invited to lunch at the white house with Mr. Prick, before the Harriman incident. "While he did not say so, he gave me to understand that they had both made contributions afterwards," said Mr. MacVeagh.

Mr. MacVeagh had objected to relating the incidents because the men concerned were dead and unable to testify, but the committee insisted.

Mr. Twombly represented, he understood, the Vanderbilt railroad interests; Mr. Prick, coal and steel; Mr. Archbold and Mr. Rogers, Standard Oil, and George J. Gould, leading railroad interests.

Policewomen Must Be Shown Proper Respect by Officers

Lieutenant Hayes, disciplinarian of the police force, dropped around to call on the lady members of the department the other day, and observing that he was not properly saluted, jestingly called their attention to it and offered to show them how to make a proper military salute.

But Hayes was dumfounded when, instead of being grateful for the proffered assistance the lady cops demanded that he doff his cap to them. Hayes, being their superior officer, demurred, seeing it in his mind's eye the fine precedent of several years smashed at one fell blow by two women.

Police Matron Gibbons and Policewoman Drummy, insuring against established custom and desiring to strike a telling blow for the freedom of the weaker sex, bled 'em thence to the chief of police.

But Chief Dunn is a "wily cuss" and when he saw the two stern women of the law come marching into his office he forestalled all riot calls by taking off his hat and making them a low, sweeping bow, which took all the ginger out of the indignant protests against the lieutenant's "joke."

Now it is rumored that a new rule may be issued and brought to pass in the department, making the failure to salute the lady coppers equal to the heinous crime of offering a 5-cent cigar to superior officers.

City Council Meeting Stirred by Murphy-Watkins Clash.

QUESTION OF USING ROOM City Attorney Scores Citizens Over Effort to Escape O Street Grading Taxes—No Mucio Supervisor Chosen.

The usual calm and peaceful atmosphere of the city council meeting was thrown into a scene of turmoil last night when City Attorney H. C. Murphy and J. B. Watkins clashed in open conflict over the O street grading taxes.

Mr. Watkins appeared before the members of the council in behalf of property owners on O street, who wanted to use the council chamber as a meeting place to talk over the tax question, and see what agreement could be reached with the council in regard to the payment of the taxes.

City Attorney Murphy objected to granting this request, saying if the council did so, it would mean affording a place for the disgruntled property owners to hold meetings at the expense of the city to formulate ways and means to bring about the annulment of these taxes.

Mr. Watkins was one of the property owners on O street who circulated the petitions for the grading of O street. Mr. Watkins refused to Mr. Murphy's address to the members of the council as an excellent brand of "bull con." He denied being a tax shirker and said he was working in behalf of the poor, down-trodden persons interested in the O street grading affairs. He said the O street residents will never receive any benefits from the grading of the street unless the plans originally thought of were carried out. He said the taxes would never be paid.

Councilman Riba told Mr. Watkins to "go hire a hall," and refused to vote to give the council chamber over for a meeting place. Councilman Alton, who made the motion that the O street tax payers have the privilege of using the hall, said he was with Murphy in everything that he said, but that the city hall should be used for public meetings.

William Adams asked the council that $133 interest on personal taxes for the years 1907-9 be stricken from the city treasurer's books. He said he received the first notice that these taxes were not paid from the legal department last week, and although he had paid his other taxes each year, the treasurer's office never informed him that personal taxes for these three years were never paid.

Asks for Doctor Bill. Claiming the unsanitary condition of the sewer in front of her home at 308 X street caused serious illness to her children and a doctor bill of $212, Mrs. M. Smith petitioned the council to have the sewer repaired and to reimburse her for the expenditures caused by the unhealthy condition of the alley.

The claim of the rubber company against the city for $2,300 for fire hose, which the city did not purchase, but accepted and put into use, last year, has been put in the hands of Chicago lawyers. They notified the council that unless some action was taken in the matter in the near future, a lawsuit would probably be started.
