REGISTRATION LIGHT AT S. O.

Not Half of Voters Have Appeared During First Two Days.

DEMOCRATS ARE IN THE LEAD

All Parties Except the Progressives Made a Substantial Gain on the Second Day Over First Day's Count.

The second day of registration brought out a little less than twice as many voters in South Omaha as the first day, according to figures just received by the secretary of the republican committee. The total registration the second day was 1,400 as against 800 on the first day. The total registration in South Omaha, however, so far is only 2,200 for the two days. The largest previous registration in South Omaha was 5,000. This means that the last day of registration this year will have to bring out 3,311 voters if the registration is to be even as heavy as in former years, while it has been hoped by the different parties that a larger vote than ever would be brought out this year, as there are always a lot of first voters at a presidential election.

Seed Corn Selection Week Great Success

Three times as much corn has been stored away for seed this year than ever before in the recorded history of Nebraska, declares C. W. Pugalety of the Nebraska State university experiment station.

"Seed corn selection week, September 25 to October 5, was a greater success than we had expected," he says. "More than 40,000 bulletins were distributed through the state asking the farmers to care for their seed corn and store it, and requests still are coming in for more of the bulletins. The seed corn campaign followed by the seed corn selection week has been a great success, and there is no doubt that the propaganda has made many friends for Omaha."
