

Those Designers at the 'Society' Brand shops regard a human form as a work of ART and DRAPE it accordingly!

Every suit or overcoat made in the "Society Brand" shops, seems to jump at you and say: "Take me out of the common herd!" There's a snap, dash, sparkle, vim, mode, or whatever you care to call it, that puts the gleam of fashion on every wearer of these not-like-other garments. Now Good Dresser, you'll be fitted and styled in the 1912 way if you'll leave it to "George" and his "Society."

ELECTION MEASURE PUZZLES

Lawyers Differ as to Meaning of Proposed Amendment. AFFECTS MANY OFFICE HOLDERS. Passage May Extend Terms of Office. Say Some; Others Adhere to Belief New Law Would Shorten Term.

When the voter goes to the polls November 5 he will be expected to cast a vote for or against a constitutional amendment, the interpretation of which has puzzled some of the best legal minds in the state and the adoption or rejection of which will determine whether or not certain county officeholders all over the state shall or shall not be candidates for re-election in 1913. This is the proposed amendment fixing the time of the general election in the state on the even years, beginning with 1914.

The amendment as proposed is said to be ambiguous. Part of the wording seems to make it clear that county officials elected in 1913 for what normally would be a two-year term will serve but one year, and those elected for what normally would be a four-year term will serve but three years, or until the next general election preceding the time of the termination of their office. Then, when this is made clear, so say some who have been studying the proposition, there appears the puzzling clause, "provided that no office shall be vacated thereby, but the incumbent thereof shall hold over until his successor is duly elected and qualified." This would seem to indicate that the amendment expected the provision to lengthen the term of some of the offices while the shift was being made, rather than to curtail them by one year, as part of the phrasing is being generally interpreted.

The proposed amendment to section 13 of article xvi of the constitution of the state of Nebraska, which is the proposition causing this discussion, is as follows:

What It Says.

"Section 13 (General Election, When Held). The general election of this state shall be held on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday of November in the year 1914 and every two years thereafter. All state, district, county, precinct and township officers, by the constitution or laws made elective by the people, except school district officers and municipal officers in cities, villages and towns, shall be elected at a general election to be held as aforesaid. Judges of the supreme, district and county courts all elective county and precinct officers and all other elective officers, the time for election of whom is not herein otherwise provided for, and which are not included in the above exception, shall be elected on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday in November, 1913, and thereafter at the general election next preceding the time of the termination of their respective terms of office. Provided, that no office shall be vacated thereby, but the incumbent thereof shall hold over until his successor is duly elected and qualified."

It is taken from this that the election of 1913, provided for by the proposed amendment is to elect, as usual, a sheriff, county clerk, register of deeds two county commissioners, county judge, county superintendent of public instruction, county surveyor, or all the county officials regularly elected on the odd year by the present system. As the office of sheriff, for example, is a two-year office, he would under the proposed system come up again for election in 1914, which would be the "next general election, next preceding the time of the termination of his term of office." This would give him a one-year term.

As the register of deeds regularly holds a four-year term, he would come up again at the general election of 1916 which is the "general election next preceding the time of the termination of his term of office." This would give him but a three-year term.

As the county commissioner is elected for three years, he would again come up for election in 1916, which would coincide with the year for the general election, and his term would be neither curtailed nor extended.

In view of these interpretations, many are wondering what is the purpose of the clause which provides that "no office shall be vacated thereby, but the incumbent thereof shall hold over until his successor is duly elected and qualified."

Judges Also Affected.

The district judges also would fall under the new ruling. The district judges of Douglas county who were questioned regarding the matter said they could say absolutely nothing about it, although they recognized there was reason for a difference of opinion.

Young Burglar Hurt, Thinks of His Mother

Hit by four bullets and in a critical condition, a burglar shot in a running pistol duel with Patrolman John Ptasnowski early this morning, thought only of his mother and, to spare her feelings, refused to give his name. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital. The wounds are not fatal.

Ptasnowski, with Detectives Ring and Van Dusen and Sergeant Samuelsen, answered a call to the M. Kettleman grocery, 402 North Eighteenth street, at 1:45 o'clock this morning, and as they surrounded the place, four men broke from a shadow and scattered in different directions. They were pursued by the officers and all escaped except the one taken by Ptasnowski. He was hit in the right forearm, the left shoulder, the right wrist and also had a burn on his right side where a bullet grazed him.

While running one of his comrades turned and fired at Ptasnowski, who then started shooting on his own account. It is believed that another of the burglars is also wounded. The officers think all are white with the exception of one, who is a light colored negro.

Late last night H. P. Whalin, 1114 South Thirty-fifth street, reported that his home had been entered and jewelry and clothing valued at $75 taken. Neighbors saw three men prowling in the neighborhood.

DIVISION OF MARSH TRUST

Supreme Court Passes on Points Involved in Controversy.

DEATH OF HEIR A FEATURE

Decision Covers Descent of Share in Property and Gives it to Heirs Rather Than Estate of Charles Marsh.

The supreme court of Nebraska has handed down a decision in the case arising out of the will of W. W. Marsh, deceased.

Captain W. W. Marsh died in 1901, leaving a will creating a trust whereby all of his property was to be held until January 1, 1910. Charles Marsh, one of the legatees under the will, was indebted to the estate in the sum of $10,000 and to the United States National bank in the sum of $50,000. Charles Marsh died in 1909, a few months prior to the expiration of the trust. The widow of Charles Marsh contended that that part of the estate that would have come to Charles Marsh were he living on January 1, 1910, was not subject to the payment of the debts of Charles Marsh.

The trustees petitioned the district court for instructions with reference to that part that would have gone to Charles Marsh and asked that the amount due the estate by Charles Marsh be paid out of the fund coming to Charles Marsh. The widow of Charles Marsh made an assignment of her interest, whatever it might be, to the United States National bank to secure the obligation owing it. The district court held that that part of the estate that would have come to Charles Marsh on January 1, 1910, should be subject to the payment of his just obligations.

The supreme court held that under the wording of the trust the property that would have gone to Charles Marsh, were he living on January 1, 1910, does not go to his estate, but by virtue of the specific provisions of the will that part goes directly to the heirs of Charles Marsh, being his widow and child, and was not, therefore, subject to the payment of the debts of Charles Marsh, except the property that went to the widow of Charles Marsh, which the supreme court held was subject to the payment of the debt owed the United States National bank by reason of her assignment of any interest that might come to her in the estate of Charles Marsh.

Wickersham Shows Prosperity Reigns

CAMBRIDGE, O., Oct. 25.—Declaring that "We are today in the flood of an increasing and widening prosperity," Attorney General Wickersham delivered an address here tonight.

"Our mills are running," he said, "and the demands for their product is exceeding their capacity. No able-bodied man who wants work need remain idle."

He declared that it was no mere accident, which brought this happy condition of affairs under President Taft. Mr. Wickersham commended the president for using the veto power.

Teachers of Maine Give President Taft a Hearty Welcome

POLAND, SPRINGS, Me., Oct. 25.—After a vacation of nearly two months, President Taft tomorrow starts back to Washington to take up the labors of what he expects will prove a busy winter. His plans for the return trip were changed tonight and instead of taking a motor ride of 175 miles from Poland Springs to Boston over slippery muddy roads, he will board his private car at Danville Junction, five miles away and start his journey southward. The president is not due in Washington until Sunday morning, for he has a speaking engagement Saturday in Cambridge Springs, Pa., and will turn west tomorrow afternoon at Boston to keep it.

The Maine teachers gave the president a rousing welcome. He spoke in the Portland auditorium, which was crowded. After the speech he met a few Maine friends at the Portland club. Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen accompanied him on trip.

In addressing the teachers the president said he had learned the value of teaching in the Philippines when he was governor-general. He told of the importation of 1,000 American teachers and their successful efforts, not only to instruct the Filipino children, but to show thousands of Filipino men and women how to teach.

The president drew a parallel between the teachers and government employees and said both should be taken care of after they had spent the active years of their lives in efforts to serve.

The president offered no solution of the problem of retirement on pensions for teachers but said he favored a pension for government employees who are superannuated that would be contributed partly by the employees and partly by the government.

Iowa Commercial Clubs Advocate Business Schools

SIoux CITY, Ia., Oct. 25.—(Special.)—Practical courses in business management and salesmanship will be taught in all of the colleges and universities of Iowa if the recommendations of the Iowa League of Commercial Clubs are carried into effect.

At the final session of the third annual convention held today resolutions were passed urging the "vigorous expansion of practical courses in business administration" and it was further resolved that the colleges place in their libraries more books on business efficiency and on advertising as suggested by the national authorities on these subjects.

The state extension bureau was also heartily endorsed by the league so "that citizens of Iowa and the world at large may learn of the possibilities and opportunities in this great state of Iowa." A state extension bureau was also suggested.
