TEACHERS VISIT THE UNION PACIFIC SHOPS

Union Pacific officials are delighted over the large attendance of teachers Friday afternoon at the headquarters of the company shops. Some 40 teachers took advantage of the opportunity, going first to the headquarters building. They visited the offices on the lower floors and then were escorted to the offices of President Mohler. There in the outer office he extended a welcome to them, after which he made a short speech, telling them some facts relative to the magnitude of the Union Pacific. Leaving the offices of President Mohler, Dr. Millner piloted the teachers to the roof of the building, where the mysteries of the wireless telegraph was explained. Then they got a bird's-eye view of the city, after which they went to the shops, where Superintendent Hats took them in charge.

At the shops the teachers were shown the huge cranes that were handling locomotives and cars with as little effort as if they had been toys. They were shown the great forges, the hammers that weigh from ten to twenty tons and given an inside view of the furnaces where the iron is melted for castings.

There was no attempt at show, the work in the shops being performed according to the every day schedule.

FEW NAVAL APPLICANTS
FAIL TO PASS THE EXAMS

Out of 621 applicants 382 were accepted for service in the United States army at the recruiting station in Omaha during the year ending October 31. This means that 61 per cent of the applicants pass the test and are accepted. The recruiting officers say this is a fair indication of the percentage of able-bodied men. It is a fact that many are rejected for reasons other than that they are not able-bodied, and on the other hand, a number of those who know themselves to be too far from able-bodied men do not make application at all. Often an able-bodied man is rejected because he is not familiar enough with the reading and writing of English to pass the educational test.
