NEBRASKA'S ATHLETIC PLACE Believed to Be in Missouri Conference, Not in "Big Nine."

LITTLE TO BE GAINED BY MOVE Rules of Larger Body Just as Unpopular as Those of Secondary Organization, in Which Cornhuskers Are Supreme Leaders.

By CLYDE E. ELLIOTT. In some circles of the alumni there is wild agitation for getting the University of Nebraska to ask for admission to membership in the Western conference, which is more commonly known as the "Big Nine." In Omaha there is considerable expression which favors a movement to get the Cornhuskers into this larger athletic body. But there hardly seems any probability that the Lincoln school will ask to be taken in, for there is such a wide difference of opinion on the wisdom of joining hands with a larger body than the Missouri Valley conference, which already is fettered with enough faculty rules to make the tutor of a team wonder whether he is going to have enough men to represent the school or not. Nebraska is having enough trouble in the smaller body to keep it busy; at least so contend many of the grads who are close to things athletic at their school, and they do not favor going into another conference, although they would like to see the Cornhuskers free from the organization of which it is now a member.

Little to be gained. There is little to be gained for the Cornhuskers through entering the "Big Nine." The rules which govern the students who engage in athletics for these schools are fully as onerous as those in the Missouri Valley conference; indeed, many of them are worse, and really are so silly that Michigan a few years ago pulled out. Nebraska's natural position makes it imperative that it should annually compete with such schools as Kansas, Ames, Missouri, Drake and Iowa. It does not need to look to Wisconsin, Illinois, Chicago, Michigan or any other member of the "Big Nine." There is plenty of stiff opposition in the local division, and so long as the Cornhuskers can stick in this conference and be the leaders they should not complain. That is the view many grads and undergraduates take of the situation. Nebraska is the big frog in the Missouri valley puddle, what it would be in the Western conference no one can tell. There is little doubt, however, that it would be superior each fall to all schools with the possible exception of Chicago, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois; while it would always be a hard proposition for any of these schools. The Cornhuskers always work the Gophers to the limit. For three years they kicked the Illini each Thanksgiving.

Bellevue Squad Has Moonlight Practice

Coach Holste of Bellevue has inaugurated something new in foot ball practice by putting the team through signal practice for an hour every evening by moonlight. This is in addition to the two and a half hours of practice in the afternoon, and the men are finding their time pretty well taken up by foot ball and classes.

The closing game of the season, which is to be played Saturday with Doane college of Crete, is the big game of the season for both schools and is always a hard fought battle, last year's victory over the Tigers being the first for three years, and Bellevue has never won on the Doane field since the two schools have met in athletics. Although the championship is now in the hands of Wesleyan, Holste will make a great effort to repeat last year's victory over the Tigers, as the team which wins Saturday's contest will capture second place in the college league.

The team is in good condition for the game, although one set of backs will be out on account of injuries. The team has been given a number of new plays and formations in preparation for the Tigers, whose game with Wesleyan last week was witnessed by Coach Holste.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Rumors that certain clubs in the American association and Western league are planning to become "base ball outlaws" and form a new league were confirmed here tonight. President "Tip" O'Neill of the Western league admitted that discussion of the proposed league had been going on for weeks and that the matter took concrete form at a meeting of the league held in Milwaukee last week. Certain club owners in the Western league assert that their cities properly belong to a circuit with Milwaukee, Kansas City and Minneapolis. It was also contended that President O'Neill was too close to major league influence and the directors therefore ordered the removal of the league's headquarters from Chicago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—All but one of the twenty-eight scheduled games have been played in the professional 15.2 ball line world's championship billiard tournament and the final match between Hoppe, the champion, and Morningstar, will be decided tomorrow night.

At the close of tonight's play, Hoppe is in the lead with five games won and one lost. Slonson has won five and lost two, and Morningstar has won four and lost two. If Hoppe beats Morningstar tomorrow he will win the tournament and retain the championship, but should Morningstar win there will be a triple tie for first place between Hoppe, Slonson and Morningstar, which will necessitate extra games.

Tonight Slonson played a fine game of thirty-one innings, defeating Cline, 500 to 206. Slonson's best effort was in the twenty-third inning, when he gathered 111 points.

Demarest had an easy time defeating Sutton, as the latter still is off his game. Demarest played pretty billiards and ran out in his twenty-first inning, with 120.
