TOMMY ORR LIKELY TO DIE
 Little Hope Entertained for Recovery of Injured Boy.
BULLET IS DEEPLY EMBEDDED
 Two Others Seriously Hurt at Same Time When Pistol is Discharged, Going through Hand of One and Shoulder of Other.

But little hope is entertained of the recovery of Tommy Orr, the 15-year-old boy who was shot Thanksgiving evening by Harry Duffield, a companion. A further examination made yesterday afternoon revealed the probable fatal character of the wound. The bullet had entered from the point of the chin, had torn its way through the flesh underneath the tongue and lodged in the medulla oblongata, or secondary brain. The missile was fired from a high-powered automatic rifle of .22 caliber, not an ordinary .22-caliber target piece. A consultation of physicians was held at the 5th-mission hospital during the day and the decision reached that an attempt to remove the bullet would be inadvisable. One side of the child is completely paralyzed, indicating injury to the spinal nerves. If the decision is reached later that the boy has any chance to recover an X-ray examination will be made.

Two Other Boys Injured.
 It was disclosed yesterday that two other boys in another part of the town were wounded by the discharge of a pistol in the hands of a boy who "didn't know it was loaded." The bullet passed through the hand of one boy and lodged in the shoulder of another.

The accident happened at the home of Earl Nelson, 232 South Twelfth street, during the afternoon. Ray Thompson, a youth from Wyoming, is visiting at the home of young Nelson and has the experience of being one of the victims as well as the cause of the accident. A neighbor boy named Jensen went to the house with a single-shot pistol of .22 caliber. The Wyoming youth immediately became interested in it and took it from the hands of the Jensen lad to examine it. It was fired while his left hand was in front of the muzzle. The bullet tore through the fleshy part of the hand and struck young Nelson in the right shoulder. It was a hard-shooting weapon and the missile was deeply embedded in the lad's shoulder. This wound may prove serious, as the ball was lodged beneath the shoulder joint. There is also the added danger of infection, which Dr. Hombach, who was called, immediately took measures to guard against. The Wyoming lad will only have a sore hand to nurse while he contemplates the possibilities that an unloaded firearm. The accident happened at almost the exact moment, 9 o'clock, when the Orr boy was shot.

Gets Your Stomach Under Perfect Control
 Instant Relief for Indigestion and Stomach Troubles, May Be Reached Upon by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.
 There is no occasion to suffer from indigestion or any similar stomach trouble when you can easily get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.
 There is scarcely a well stocked drug or general store in the United States but what considers these tablets part of their staple stock.

Why Can Travel Anywhere and Eat Anything They Serve, If You Have Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets With You?
 Millions are used every year—and when every other man or woman you meet recommends them to you if you will but inquire—why do you continue to suffer from stomach trouble?
 The reason why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are such a widely used remedy are very easy to understand. These tablets contain almost the same elements as the gastric juices of the stomach. And when your stomach is sick and not working just right. It does not give out enough of the natural digestive juices to properly take care of the food you eat. So if you will only give the stomach a little help by taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals you will relieve the stomach of its chief duty and allow it the rest it needs to recuperate. One grain of the active principles in a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet digests 2,000 grains of food, whether you place it in a glass jar with cooked food or in your stomach after you have eaten the food.
 All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and once you try them you will never again wonder what to do for indigestion, weak, sour and gassy stomach. 50 cents a box.—Advertisement.

Burglars Crack Safe in Refrigerator Room
 Burglars, who had apparently worked a large part of Thursday afternoon and late in the night, made a rich haul when they broke open the safe in the butcher shop of M. Frohm, 1015 Broadway. They got $50 in cash and some other things of value, but the manner in which they went about the job made it appear that they did not want to get something altogether for nothing. They rolled the 1,500-pound safe from the office through the door of a rear room and thence into the refrigerator room, where the thick walls would deaden the sound of hammers, out off the heads of more than thirty rivets and took out the whole bottom of the safe. Boilersmiths equipped with good shop facilities would have charged up several hours to the job.
 The office safe is one of the old style with its seams held together with round-headed rivets, protecting an inner lining of six inches of concrete. The bottom is flanged inwardly like the end of a steam boiler and held with a row of rivets extending all the way around. To cut off all of these was the task the burglars set for themselves. An old axe, sledge hammer and a cold chisel were the tools used. When the heads of all of the rivets were cut off the safe was turned on its side and the bottom pried out. It was an ironworkers' job and was skillfully performed, although nothing but a sheet of lead and the carpet in the bottom of the safe intervened. The cash box was torn out and its contents taken.
 All of the receipts of the Thanksgiving business were in the safe, and when Mr. Frohm balanced up Wednesday night there was a little more than $200. It was too late to bank and the banks were not open on Thursday. It has been his habit to pay all packers' bill in cash and he has always kept large balances in his safe for that purpose. It is believed that the burglars learned of this practice and knew there was a rich reward for the effort of breaking into the safe. The job was not done by professionals, who could have blown it open in five minutes. Entrance to the building was effected by breaking out the transom over the rear door. In the seclusion of the refrigerator room the men could work without being seen or the sounds they made heard.
 Frohm's shop has been a frequent prey for burglars, who have made successful raids several times within the last few years.

Memorial Service For Deceased Elks
 Annual memorial services will be held by the local lodge of Elks tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. The service will be held in the lodge room of the Elks' building, and Arthur C. Wakeley of Omaha will deliver the memorial address.
 Although there has been an increase in the membership of the Council Bluffs lodge and the roll of the dead has likewise lengthened, it will be the first time in many years that the annual memorial service will not be held in the Doherty theater. The services have always attracted audiences that filled the theater, and although there will be even greater interest this year it will be necessary to use the smaller area presented by the lodge room of the order. This is due to the fact that the theater has been transformed into a moving picture house and is no longer available.
 In addition to the memorial address of Mr. Wakeley, Rev. Dr. Alfred G. A. Buxton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, will pronounce the eulogy. An unusually fine and impressive program has been arranged. The famous Elks' quartet, Dr. Claude P. Lewis, W. S. Riddon, J. R. Gerke and Charles S. Haverstock, will sing at several parts of the program. Mrs. W. W. Sherman and Mrs. N. O. Ward will give a duet. Following is the program in full:

COMPETITION OR MONOPOLY
 Nation is Facing Road that Leads Toward State Socialism.
CUMMINS IS WRITING REPORT
 Senate Committee Gathers Data for Suggesting Needed Changes in Anti-Trust Law—Big Problems to Be Solved.
 (From a Staff Correspondent.)
 DES MOINES, Nov. 29.—(Special.)—Of vast import to American commercial life of the next century may be the congressional report in course of preparation in a modest office in the Fleming Block, this city.
 Shall the American republic insist finally and firmly upon preserving as a governing principle in industry and commerce freedom of competition, or shall it abandon competition and turn to a state controlled monopoly which leads inevitably to state socialism?
 An answer to that question is being framed by Senator A. B. Cummins. He has been at work upon it for some time working at such time as he can take from waiting at the bedside of his dying father. That which he is doing is the writing of the report of the senate committee on interstate commerce upon the inquiry following a resolution to "report desirable changes in the laws regulating and controlling corporations, persons and firms engaged in interstate commerce."
 In short, the report of the committee on amendments of the anti-trust law is due. Senator Cummins, while not chairman of the committee, is writing a report, which may or may not be the committee report; but in view of the fact that Chairman Clegg and other members of the committee virtually placed the entire inquiry in the hands of the senior Iowa senator it is more than likely the report being prepared here will find its way into the record.
 Inquiry is Broad.
 The inquiry consumed a great deal of time. It was under way all last winter. All sorts of men were called to testify. There was George W. Perkins, who told of his plans for regulating trusts; Andrew Carnegie, who gave advice on trusts; Lyman Abbott, who had it all worked out on paper; Samuel Gompers, who considered largely the side of the laboring man; Colonel Roosevelt, who had some explanations to make, and a score of others. It was not a mere thorough investigation of the subject ever made. The intent was to secure information as a basis for legislation of the most important kind relative to the operations of the anti-trust laws. It was felt that a crisis had been reached and congress should avail itself of the advice of all who had information to give.
 The real question is whether or not the anti-trust laws shall be maintained with some amendments to strengthen it, or there shall be material additions and alterations, or whether it shall be virtually repealed and in its place be substituted a system for the regulation and legalization of combines engaged in monopolizing business.
 "A large proportion of the business men who appeared before our committee," said Senator Cummins, "agreed that there is no need of some change or amendment of the anti-trust law. They agreed that as the law is now and as it stands interpreted it is ineffective for the purpose in view when it was enacted, that of preserving reasonable competition in the business of the country. The complaint that is most serious, however, is that under the law now it is impossible for business men to know whether they are within the law or whether they are transgressors, until they have established themselves in business and then have taken the chance of a prosecution in court. What many of them want is something or some way by which they can know definitely just what they can or cannot do in a business way, for the business men, as a rule, have no desire whatever to ignore the law. We cannot go on as at present and be fair to the great business of the country."
 Mr. Perkins presented to the committee

Important Sale of Towels Monday At Kilpatrick's, Monday Only
THE MANUFACTURE. Style and Character of Towels have undergone as many changes as the name—Explorations in Assyria indicates their use centuries ago. Confucius refers to them and in the Zend Avesta mention we believe is made of them also—so down the ages in Old French, High German and German the name has undergone changes until today in all English speaking countries this important article is dubbed TOWEL.
 The sale on Monday will be confined to Fine Towels, towels such as you would use for decorative purposes, for the guest room—for use. And perhaps most important of all at this season for gifts. The range and variety is wonderful, excellent and exceeding any former display or sale of ours—and we have a reputation for carrying a great stock of Linens of all kinds.

Sparring Partners Lacking in West
 LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 20.—Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, who will fight twenty rounds with Luther McCarthy on December 16, at Vernon arena in the white heavyweight championship elimination, began training today, but deplores the lack of sparring partners.
 McCarthy, who is training at Venice, is experiencing the same difficulty and a hurry call has been sent north and east for volunteers for both camps.
 Al Palmer, who will meet the winner on January 1, will leave New York for Los Angeles tomorrow to begin early training.

BLUFFS "Y" QUINTET DEFEATS OMAHA NATIONALS
 The Council Bluffs Young Men's Christian association basketball team defeated the Omaha Nationals of the Commercial league of Omaha by the one-sided score of 52 to 15 last night at the Council Bluffs "Y." This is the "Y" team's second victory. The feature of the game was the basket shooting of Crowl and Bussing and the passing of Grow.
 The local team took the lead from the start. All-around team work was too much for the Omaha five. Both forwards, Thomas and Crowl, got baskets at will. The Omaha Nationals were out-clashed by the half court. Council Bluffs Young Men's Christian association, 20; Omaha Nationals, 15.
 In the second half the local punch put in a new team, with the exception of Phillips, while the Omaha five changed their guards. Both teams were then evenly matched, with the score a tie, but after ten minutes of playing the "Y" team, through the basket shooting of Harris and the passing of Gerten, gained the lead that was not overcome. The half ended: Young Men's Christian association, 22; Omaha Nationals, 12.
 Next Friday the local "Y" will play the Woodbine Normal school five.
