

Two Beautiful New Roses

Climbing American Beauty

All the glory and fragrance of the old American Beauty. Hardy as an oak. A prolific bloomer. Strong growth. Thirsts everywhere. One six-year-old plant produced 200 blossoms and buds at one time. A most splendidly in pillar and bush form. A magnificent acquisition.

Christine Wright

A very strong climbing or pillar rose, succeeding equally well in bush form. A perfect mass of roses in June with occasional blossoms through the season. Flowers bright, clear, beautiful, wild-rose pink, 3 1/2 to 4 inches in diameter. A splendid companion to the Climbing American Beauty.

Both these roses have large, dark green, glossy leaves, retaining their foliage throughout the entire season. One year plants, $5.00 each, $3.00 per dozen, postpaid. Orders booked as received and shipped at the proper season in the order of entry. Order at once. For further description and colored illustration, send for circular or catalogue.

A GARDEN TO LIVE IN

vines. A naked pergola is an esthetic crime.

A pergola of cedar poles with climbing roses at each post is handsome; but for more formal gardens a painted cypress pergola is more appropriate. Ready-made pergolas are now on the market, and are ingeniously convenient.

A tiny pool in a well ordered garden is pleasing. A small cement basin may be constructed for not over a hundred dollars, and if there is pressure, a little jet of water may be arranged so that it will shoot up from the center and toss a hollow ball.

Likewise, a well in the garden is something to be treasured; for an attractive well-head in which hangs an old oaken bucket gives a home-like feeling to the grounds surpassing that of almost any other accessory. There are many designs. Field stones may be used successfully.

The sun dial is to many the crowning feature of a garden. But it should be chosen with care. An elaborate sun dial in a very simple garden is a solecism. Sometimes, a cedar post with the bark on makes a suitable pedestal, and the dial may be made of wood or slate. "The Book of Sundials" by Mrs. Getty will tell you how to construct yours. Pedestals of terra cotta or composition stone may be bought for twenty dollars or more. Metal dials cost from ten dollars to as much as one cares to pay. Field stone pedestals, or even a large boulder of suitable shape such as many a pasture will offer, may be used. With posts, care must be taken to have them deep enough so that the frost will not throw them out of plumb. There are other furnishings such as bird houses, gazing globes and vases; but a home-like garden is not made so by the multiplicity of its furnishings. An over-furnished garden may look as dowdy as a decorated room or an over-dressed woman. The main thing is to have privacy, which may be gained by tall hedges or garden walls, if the location makes these things necessary, with comfortable seats where one may sit to gloat over his garden treasures, a table for an open book, and such other things as will help to make the garden a place in which to live and to rest as well as to work.

A NEW THOUGHT IN ROSES

If any one has a space where he or she can plant a fine rose and only one, the Climbing American Beauty is one of the best selections to be made, because it has not only the advantage of producing wonderful blossoms, but it possesses the fragrance of the American Beauty as well as its form and character and has a beautiful and lasting foliage superior to the average climbing rose or Rambler. This can not be said of the older varieties of climbing roses.

The Climbing American Beauty has been produced by a method of cross fertilization which has retained the charming qualities of the American Beauty Rose; and yet, by way of contrast, it is hardy and will stand heat and drought almost as well as any rose.

The photograph on Page Four illustrates the wonderful growth and fine appearance of this fragrant climber. Some plants, after two years, have had as many as 300 to 400 blossoms on them, and after the flowers are gone you have still a beautiful plant with glorious foliage.

Read what one garden-maker, writing in May of this year, says about this rose.

"About fifteen months ago I purchased a Climbing American Beauty rose bush. Last season, it completely covered the trellis four feet wide and twelve feet high. After an unusually severe winter for Memphis, Tenn., we found that not a single root of the reeds was damaged by the cold. We did not cover it or make any attempt to protect it. This year it is one glorious mass of color. One morning I attempted to count the roses and quit at 250. I should judge that there were at least 350 roses in bloom at one time, with more than that many buds ready to bloom in a few days."

What are you doing for your throat?

WHAT are you doing to protect yourself against sore throat attacks, which often result in tonsillitis or worse? If you would safeguard your throat against highly dangerous germs—you must first assure yourself that these infectious invaders do not multiply or breed beyond control.

You cannot secure this assurance merely by gargling or rinsing the mouth and throat—because such methods only reach the exposed surfaces of the membranes. To destroy germ life, the remedial agent must be able to reach the hidden pockets in the throat where germs hide. Science has discovered a scientific, pleasant, luxuriously efficient method for checking germ-infection.

Prepared as a pleasant tasting tablet, it is sucked like candy. Dissolving readily, it releases its germicidal, antiseptic qualities which impregnate the saliva and are carried naturally and easily around the mouth into the deepest crevices of the throat—destroying the germs where they are causing the mischief. Formamint prevents and destroys infectious germ life in a soothing, grateful way. Luxuriously efficient and convenient. Can be used any time—any place.

Enrico Caruso, the world's greatest tenor, writes: "I have found Formamint Tablets very pleasant to taste and beneficial to the throat."

Miss Adeline Patti, the Queen of Song, writes: "I have taken Formamint Tablets for some time past and have such pleasure in saying that I find them very beneficial for the throat."

From an article in "The Lanet," March 29th, 1908. "The sole object of a medicinal lozenge is to keep part of the mouth or throat one desires to treat bathed for a time in a drug dissolved in the saliva. I know of only one medicated lozenge—FORMAMINT—which meets this requirement."
