BEST PERENNIALS FOR THE HOME GARDEN

The gas plant is as interesting as handsome. Given a sunny corner, with rich soil, and it asks for little else, save to be let alone. It has a long lease of life, often blooming in one spot for a century. In hot weather, it gives off a peculiar vapor that will ignite if a match is held close to the plant.

Peonies are beginning to rival the rose. The amateur should by no means neglect them; for they are free from pests, need little attention and bloom year after year with the greatest freedom. But beware of planting them too deeply, which mistake is often the explanation of lack of flowers. The crown should have but two inches of soil over it. Festiva Maxima is especially good for cutting.

The good old German iris or Fleur de Lis is one of the easiest perennials to grow; it makes a fine show early in spring. The variety named is one of the best. Give it a sunny situation, barely cover the roots with soil and don't use fresh manure.

Very obliging is the day lily, because it will grow anywhere. The sort recommended attains a height of four feet, and the flower is a rich buttercup yellow, in bloom all through July.

Blue is not so common as many other colors, and of all the blue flowers grown, none is handsomer than larkspur, an old-time favorite. It blooms from the end of June until nipped by frost; if the plant is cut off close to the ground as soon as each stalk has faded, a new lot of flowers comes along very quickly.

Most amateurs do not know the tufted pansies; but they are too lovely to be missed. They are remarkably free blooming, giving flowers seven or eight months, and they like partial shade. Start them from seed sown in April, and the variety named may be used as a substitute for violets, which they much resemble.

The particular foxglove listed has spotted flowers in white, purple, lilac and rose. Whether massed or grown among shrubbery, these tall perennials make a striking appearance in June and July, old-fashioned though they be.

Japanese anemones are very welcome in the fall, when one senses the approach of "the melancholy days." They are exceedingly beautiful, last a long time when cut, and ask only good garden soil and protection of leaves in winter.

It would be hard to find an assortment of flowering plants more satisfactory, with a minimum of attention, to the amateur than these perennials. Unaided, they will make the garden gay almost from frost to frost. If montbrettias, gladioli and lilies are planted among them, the result will be a garden of unadulterated delight.

ANNUALS FOR THE RENTER TO GROW

There should be sun-flowers, by all means, the huge, old-fashioned kind along the back fence and the handsome, newer sorts in front.

Finally, let the renter round out his garden with a specimen or two of the castor oil plant, which he will find listed as Ricinus. No plant in the garden, except some of the vines, will achieve so much growth in a given length of time. The way in which it stretches upward day by day is astonishing. Plants six feet tall are often seen, and some specimens grow twice as tall. It is easy to see that a row of such plants will make a very effective screen. Growing so fast, they need rich soil and plenty of water. Probably, the renter can easily obtain a few shovelfuls of manure to spade into the ground. In order to get the best results, the seeds should be started in boxes in the house in March, and the boxes kept in full sunlight. When storky plants have been formed, say by the middle of May, they may be set into the open ground, and at least three feet apart.

Surely, the plants named in this list will give the renter a garden to be proud of. And the seeds, bought by the package, will cost just one dollar.

"Two souls with a single thought"

"How to look my best?" That is the thought of almost every man or woman when preparing for an evening's engagement. To look your best and happiest of an evening, try this receipt.

Bring home from downtown one unhappy face, —tired, drawn and soiled. Before a relentless mirror place that face. Work or worry, and dust or grime have treated it harshly, you will agree. But now, watch for the transformation. On each moistened cheek apply a pinch of Pompeian Massage Cream.

POMPEIAN Massage Cream

Massage vigorously. Into the pores the Pompeian goes; out it comes, darkened and dirt-laden, and—

Presto! You are transformed. Your skin looks clear and clean, for Pompeian has brought out the hidden pore-dirt. The massage with Pompeian has also given you a natural healthy glow, because the mild friction of the rubbing in and rubbing out process has stimulated your sluggish circulation and brought the rosy blood to the surface. No ordinary cream can do this.

Moreover, your face feels refreshed and you will note that the tired lines are subdued, because the invigorating Pompeian massage has relaxed the tightened muscles of your face wonderfully.

Now you are ready for the evening's engagement, happy and confident that you look your best, and not pale, sallow and worn. Try this receipt and you'll join the great army of Pompeian users who don't worry how they look. They know. They use Pompeian Massage Cream. "Don't envy a good complexion; use Pompeian and have one."

WARNING!

You can't be too careful what you put on your face. Stick to a safe standard massage cream. Do you realize why an imitation or substitute is offered? Because it costs the dealer less and he makes more—at your expense. Get the original and standard massage cream. Get Pompeian. 50,000 dealers sell it, 50c, 75c and $1.
