This game was the first that Minnesota took a brace in the last half. They then was able to put down on the credit side held their opponents to an even score, of the ledger, it being their second game but were unable to overcome the lead of the season. When the two teams lined that Omaha obtained in the first period, up they appeared to be evenly matched The Omaha team were considered to be as to weight, but the Maroon and Gold the victors after the first few minutes aggregation seemed to have it on the of play, when the Omaha five played red and white, when it came to speed their opponents off their feet by their and ability to negotiate baskets. The Cornhuskers did not pull together in any

from the beginning to the end, always sistently and did but little gaining with playing to their utmost, although they the dribble. Minnesota on the other hand were unable to hold the purple and white seldom used short pass playing, the long the hardest of luck when they shot for a braska, shooting free throws in neat fashgoal. Contrasting with this was the alion and also getting into the team play, most perfect basket tossing of the Omana Stykes at the pivotal position made two five, goals being tossed from all angles baskets, both of which were of the senand places. Chiefly among the high sational order and brought much apschool tossers was Burkentoad, who made plause from the gallery. Frank Lawover half the team's score by field goals ler, the former Minnesota star, officiated.
