"FRESH FINDINGS FROM MARK TWAIN"

By ALBERT BIGELOW PAINE

Illustrations by Horace Taylor

The life of Mark Twain, by Albert Bigelow Paine, recently published by Harper Brothers, proved one of the biggest books of the season. Mr. Paine was a life-long friend of America's greatest humorist, and was honored by being appointed his official biographer. To the Semi-Monthly Magazine Section he contributes a sheaf of personal reminiscences, episrammatic sayings and excerpts from unpublished works chance to read for the first time. The article is profusely illustrated with thumb nail

"NEEDED ... A POWERFUL NAVY"

By ADMIRAL GEORGE DEWEY

Backed by the authority of his past achievements, and his present high standing in naval affairs, Admiral Dewey's editorial plea for more battleships challenges attention. Germany and other nations are building more rapidly than If we do not want to drop to fourth or fifth place on the sea and thereby to risk terrible disaster in case of war, we must hold up the hands of those who are patriotically working for a powerful navy for the United States. Fifty million dollars, writes the Admiral, spent in battleships in the early nineties would have made the Spanish-American War impossible and saved five hundred million dollars, not to mention the many valuable lives sacrificed. Even those who do not agree with all of Admiral Dewey's views will see the point.

"THE NEGRO AND THE LAW"

By HARRIS DICKSON

Illustrations by J. N. Marchand

There is one law for the white man in the South and another law for the black man. This has often been charged, but it has remained for Judge Harris Dickson to tell us what it really means. The relationship between the races is that of father and son, rather than of equals competing in the struggle of life. The negro has no traditions behind him, and that is why a Southern judge will often punish him much more lightly for a given crime than he would punish a white man. Rather a new angle on the problem, isn't it? There is a dark side, too, and the author does not hesitate to show it up. The article has a wealth of interesting anecdotes, and the illustrations are

"KEEPING UP WITH WATTIVILLE" (Part II)

By OWEN JOHNSON Illustrations by Oscar Cesare

Those who read the first installment of this rollicking story will be glad that half the treat is in store for them. Wattiville and his friend, Stukey, have been initiated in a new game at the Bar and Bottle Club, and have lost heavily.

They now return with a brand new scheme to recoup their fortunes. Sitting at the club windows in Fifth Avenue they speculate on the number of colored citizens that will pace up and down. Was it by accident or design that the association of the Dixie Gren-adiers should choose that very day and hour to have a parade? You will laugh immoderately at the solution that Mr. Johnson has provided. Oscar Cesare's pictures are
