ELEVEN ARE TO GRADUATE

First Class of Omaha University to Receive Honors in June.

PREPARING FOR MAY DAY

Entire Student Body Will Participate in the Functions, Which Are to Extend Over Two Days.

Busier even than most seniors the last months of school are the senior at the University of Omaha, for not only are they going to graduate and have all the functions that usually accompany graduation, but they form the first graduating class that has ever gone out from the university, and for this reason they must set all precedents and lay the foundations for the customs which are to prevail in the future. True, there have been two other graduates from the local university, one last year and one the June preceding, but these two were persons who had extra credits when entering the new school. This class was the freshman class when the doors of Redick Hall were first thrown open to the ambitious youths and they have since bent every effort to build a strong university within the limits of Omaha. Of the eleven who will graduate all but one was in school the first year and all save two were present the first day and one of those two registered the second day.

To make arrangements for commencement week the following committees have been appointed: Class day program, Stanton Salisbury, Zella Beebe, and Helen Hansen; programs and invitations, Gladys Solomon, Katherine Mathias and George Parish; banquet, Ferné Nicolas, Fanny Williams and Melane Ramsey.

Preparing for May Festival.
The first step in preparation for gala day, the annual May festival at the university, was taken Thursday morning, when each of the four classes met to choose their representatives on the central committee which will have the management of this festive day. Those chosen were: Senior, George Percival; Junior, Lottie Underhill; sophomore, Agnes Nielson; freshmen, Anna Myers. In addition to these there will be one member-at-large elected from either the junior or senior class.

This festival heretofore has been the biggest event of the year in the student activities. It takes in the entire student body and in addition to having the crown of the queen of May and accompanying maypole and fairy dances, has an entertainment which takes on the nature of a vaudeville performance. These have always been of a high order. Each class and organization is entitled to put on a number.

This will be the third annual gala day and it is probable that, instead of being given only one day, as was done last year and the year preceding, will be produced three times, Friday evening, May 16, and the afternoon and evening of Saturday, May 17.

The personnel of the various committees will be announced next week.
