The Bee's Mome Magazine Page

Jeff Has Inside Dope on Mutt's Generosity

Drawn for The Bee by "Bud" Fisher

Foolish Craze in Wome n's Dress

By WINIFRED BLACK.

Oh. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, can it be true what they tell us? Are you really and truly going to dress on $1,000 a yearand let us all know about it?

Will you really try to show the every day Ameriwoman that she doesn't have to mortgage her very soul to keep up with the fashions, and that it is possible to live even if you have only one set of furs and don't pay more than $20 for your hats?

A Daniel come to judgment -I mean a Portia; and oh, dear Por-need your calm, sane, level-headed example, your friendly, quiet advice. For we're all going crazy-as crazy as bumble bees in June-over dress, and hats and shoes, and silk stockings, and dingle dangles, and fiddle faddles, and whinwhams and things that swish and things that jingle, and things that sparkie, and things that twinkle, and bead, and rattle, and swing, and float, and wave, and cling and reveal, and things that ought to shame every drop of good old American blood in our veins. Do come to the rescue, do. I met a friend the other day, an old friend-a sweet, modest, gentle, intelligent, well-bred woman. And I didn't know her till she spoke to me and called me by name, and then I thought it must be some horrid dream and that she would presently turn into someone else. But no, it was real. I knew that when she began telling me what bargains there were at So and So's.

And she whom I knew to be a good wife, a loving mother, a sweet sister and an honest woman on her own clever account, stood there looking like a creature from the Paris pavement and not a particularly fine part of the pavement at

Her skirty coats were too tight, too short; her shoes were too small and too low: her stockings were too thin and they had beady things sparkling on them so you just had to look at the decent middle-aged ankles whether you funny little hat made for sweet sixteen, and her muff was almost as big as my grandmother's feather bed.

And yes! She was painted, too. You have to paint, they say, to carry on these bright colors and to live up to the general style of the gorgeons dress and the amazing hat and the ridiculous muff. You can't dress like an odalesque out of a harem and wear your own complexion. And her hair! Was it always as red as that? And, oh the dingle dangles and the fildals and the dildals-that effect never cost less than a cool $300, anyhow, and five years ago that woman thought a long while before she paid more than $10 for a hat of $4 for a pair of shoes.

SOOTHES AND HEALS

HYOMEI Medicates the Air You Breathe and Gives Quick Relief in Catarrhal Troubles.

Be wise in time and use HYOMEI at the first warning of catarrhal troubles. Do not let the disease extend along the delicate mucous membrane, gradually going from the nose to the throat, thence into the bronchial tubes, and then down ward until the lungs are reached and you are in danger of consumption.

HYOMEI will relieve all curable forms and stages of catarrh. It is so uniformly successful in curing this common yet dangerous disease that we take all the risk of a trial treatment and agree absolutely to refund the money if anyone uses HYOMEI and does not get relief

There is no other treatment for catarbh that is like HYOMEI or just as good. None can take its place, none give such quick and sure relief and at so 'it-such qu such quick and sure relief and at so 'ittle cost. Its medication is breathed through a pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, thus reaching the most remote cells of the air passages, killing the catarrhal germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrans

Begin the use of HYOMEI today and you will soon find that the offensive breath, the droppings into the throat. the discharge from the nose, sniffling and all other symptoms of catarrb are overcome and cured. The complete saitfit costs but $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid. if later needed, 50 cents at druggists everywhere. Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y .- Advertisement.

And her husband isn't making a penny more now than he was then. I saw him the other day and wondered what made him look so wrinkled and old and anxious.

She has a daughter, my friend, a girl of 16 years or so. They tell me her daughter wouldn't think of a hat that didn't cost at least $20, and as for furs she has to have three sets, one for each street costume.

Where does it all come from, this money o pay for all these things? Are salaries to much higher these days? Shoes $6 a pair and very ordinary at that-eight is the regular thing-no stockings but silk; twist of silk around a plain hat, a little enot of something hanging down the back, '$35 please," and there you are in debt, worrled to death and still behind in the wild scramble for outlandish dress. Where is it going to end and what are we going to do about it? Oh, ho! you needn't sit back and look martyred, Mr. Man. You're to blame. oo, as much as the woman who runs you into debt with her fine feathers.

You talk about simple clothes, oh, yes! you talk about them, but your wify isn't blind, she sees which woman you look at, which one you admire whenever you go out together. It isn't the one with the hat made over, and the plain neat little gown. You'll pass her by every time for the woman in gitters and dingle dangles, you know you will, and so will every other man in the place. What was the story Ruskin told about the children's party in the cen, the lovely flowers, the dancing lights, the soft music, the flowing fountains. and in the midst of all the beauty and the music and the glory the children at the party were fighting over who could carry home the biggest lot of shiney buttons they'd begun to pick off of things? And they fought and they fought, and they hurt each other, and they cried, and all the music was drowned in their cries of rage, and all the fountains' soft splash was forgotten, and all the flowers bloomed in vain, because all that the

"Button, button, whose got the button?" We're all going crazy over the game. Dingle dangle, fingle fangle, blue and silver and scarlet and gold, silk and satin and furs and lace-we'll have them if we have to die to get them.

tons, gilt buttons.

nary bird indeed.

babies, can she?

We'll have them if we have to sell our very souls. We'll have them if we have to drive the man we pretend to love to suicide and starve the little children of their meed of mother's love. Ten dollars wanted to or not-and she had on a week the stenographer gets, and $8 of it goes for clothes, and such silly clothes at that. Ten thousand a year the man gets whose dictation she takes. and he has to walk down back streets to escape from his duns, all gone for feathers, fine feathers, for a very ordi-

> Fuss and finery, shine and sheen and sparkle. Are we all going crazy, or what? Do help us out, Mrs. Wilson, You can do it. Start the fashion in simple inexpensive dress, and the women of this nation will rise up and call you blessed as soon as they come out of their wild delirium of dress. "I couldn't think of dressing on less than $10,000 a year," said a smart woman about it if I were you, I really would not; it isn't quite wise or kind or politic. Some woman whose baby will die because she can't get enough clothes to keep the poor little thing warm might hear you, and then-but what should you care what such a woman thinks? She never had a $1,000-frock in her life so

Advice to the Lovelorn

she can't amount to much, she nor her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I have met a young woman on the car two or three times and from the first time I would give any thing to know her. But here lies the diffi

Find out where she is employed, where she attends divine services, and what is her social life. In this way you may find some one who is a mutual acquaintance.

Inform the Mother.

Dear Miss Fairfax: One year ago I deed, that is kept company with a girl unknown to her mother, and when her mother heard of this young it she forbade me to go with her daugh-ter until about a year. The year is up now. What would you advise me to do as I love the girl very much? OTTO. Write the mother a very respectful note, telling her your year of probation heart scens to be allowing him, he is is up, and that you still love her daugh- working nights as well as in the dayter and wish to renew your attentions.

Saraband, a Dance that Shocked People of the Sixteenth Century

Put Yourself in His Place

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Love may exist without jealousy, alin New York the other day. Couldn't you, indeed, dear lady, couldn't you, indeed, dear lady, couldn't you, indeed? Well, I wouldn't say so much sweet, and is sustained by pride as sweet, and is sustained by pride as sweet, and is sustained by pride as often as by affection, Charles Calel > young woman have kept company for two and a half years the young lady engaged for nine months. During the two and a half years the young lady never went out with anybody but her flance, who took her to twelve or fifteen plays and several social functions

> "Now the young lady believes sho ought to go out with other young men because her fiance cannot afford to take her out so often. He teaches evenings is the city recreation centers and is working his way through medical college The young man tells her she ought not to go out with others if he can't afford to take her so often. Which is right? "The young lady works in an office where a friend of her flance is manager he acting right?" One cannot barter in love without paying a price any more than one can go to the grocer's and get sugar as a free gift. The price of love is sacrificedeed, that is all there is to love-sacrifice

The young man has asked her to go out with him, but never tells his friends. Is

This young man spent all he could afford on his sweetheart. There is no complaint that he was lax in his attention or devotion. With an ambition that merits better returns than his sweettime, not only to make something of himself, but that with the making be may sooner be in position to name the wedding day. Naturally, he is jealous. "Love may exist without jealousy, although this is rare." He grows hot and cold and miserable as the thought that the girl he loves is putting on her prettiest clothes for making herself attractive for another man. He has given up the plays and social affairs, and counts them as no loss. Why can't she?

This may be selfishness, but one connot barter in love without paying a price, and man's selfishness is the price every woman pays. The dog in the man ger has nothing on the man in love. Every man joves in the same fiercely possessive way. If this girl prizes that love, she will rejoice at the evidence of fealousy that accompanies it. She need know no apprehension that the fire of his love is growing cold. Love is all there is in the world worth having, and the girl who is not willing to make the sacrifice of an occasional play to keep it is throwing away the substance for the shadow. I would not have her make a needless sacrifice of herself, but in this case there is a justification of the man's jealousy. working for a woman who is dancing

I would ask her to put herself in his place. The golden rule is the safest guide the path to the altar knows. Were she teaching evenings, and he at leisure fancy that her love would go peranently lame very soon on the way if he devoted his evenings to other women. As for the young man's friend. He to not a true friend, and one who doesn't know how to be a true friend never learns how to be a true lover

All the protests we heard last year against the "lurkey trot," the "bunny hug" and the other new dances which have now been expurgated, de-vulgarized and made proper for drawing room use, all this hubbub was as nothing compared song was directed against some common to the outcries made by indignant citizens of the sixteenth century at the popular Saraband.

Like the Turkey trot, the sarahand is of African origin, and along about 1580 was introduced into Spain by the Moors. who loved dancing and were not too particular about its moral influences, as long as it was amusing

The saraband was the original song and dance number that is still with us in re-

It was a combination of dancing and singing to the music of a light guitar air one may believe, none too proper couplet by little the same thing happened to that and strum his or her accompaniment as dance that is happening now to the trot.

The saraband told a story and the dancer had to be something of an actor cut on the rubbish heap and some of the and illustrate by gesture and facial exout of breath, but a few steps were taken even the queen was well acquainted with time to the music and the body was herbent gracefully to the rythm of the tune. later forms of the dance. The verses were home made and genscription of a brawl or any other in dancers. teresting kind of story. Naturally the Now it took the saraband about 199

one could never tell when some incensed their history. person would take exception to the story told by the dancer and make things uncomfortable for all around. When the saraband was danced by women the enemy, or it was about an imaginary or none too proper story.

"The saraband is worse than the pest; it is a greater menace to the good morals of our people than war." wrote an earnest and enlightened old man at the beginning of the seventeenth century Other priests hurled their condemnation at the saraband from pulpit and one of them even had his scathing words printed and distributed on hand bills. which was a good deal in the days when printing was comparatively new in Spain The saraband was considered an inand the dancer had to sing a spicy, and | vention of the heathen devils, but little

It was tarned down and all the vulgarity expurgated. The old songs were thrown suggestive and indecent steps were elimipression just what the poem was about nated. The "Saraband," who had been There was little actual dancing, for then a degraded creature of the streets, bethe singer would have gotten completely came a polished lady of the court, and

In this new and idolized form the sara-When the music was performed by others band exists today and is taught in dancthe dancers sometimes used their scarfs ing schools, though the dancer does not or shawls as properties to help them U- sing to her own accompaniment and more, ustrate the story better, especially in the except in Spain. There the songs are really poetle and charming or funny, and would not offend the good old monk erally described the latest bit of goasip who spent his time denouncing the sara-In the village or they gave a vivid de- band and praying for the souls of the village pact used all the sectle license years to conform to the laws of common needed in the making of his tule, and decency, and it has only taken one short as there were no laws against stander season of the turkey trot to be trunsor likel in those days directes that formed into the perfect a horsess "one arese were settled at once with fists step. This traches as that the people

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER. This kind of thing grew pretty general who say that the world is not getting and made the dance more exciting, as | better are pessimists and don't know

New Method of Reducing Fat

Good News From Paris.

Good News From Paris.

A news item from Paris informs us that the American method of producing a clim, trim figure, is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmoia Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is anfe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh a pound a day without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dicting, or interference with one's meals is a mighty important and usefu addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results, however, follow the use of these pleasant, harmics and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (mede in accordance with the famous prescription) can be obtained of any drugglet or the makers, the Marmola Co., Farmer Bldg. Detroit, Mich., for saventy-fire cents the large case, which is a decidedly economical prices considering the number of tablets each case contains.