FOLLOW HIGH COST OF LIVING

Prices for Seeing Base Ball Games Are Being Boosted.

SIZE OF BLEACHERS CUT DOWN

Cheap Seats Given Poor Locations in Order to Force the Fans to Buy Where the Prices Are Higher.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Base ball is going to cost a whole lot more this season—that is, if the fans want regular seats from which they can see things happening in the field. Real seats have been advanced in price. The 50-cent bleacher seat of the old days is being eaten up gradually by grand stand additions and the erection of new stadiums and the older 25-cent accommodations are disappearing slowly but surely. Not so many years back the bleacher bleachers at the Polo grounds, for instance, started behind the first and third base lines. Now a seat in the same location or thereabouts costs 75 cents and upstairs is $1, while the old 50-cent bleacherite is shifted to the back of the grounds where field glasses are almost a necessity.

When Charlie Ebbets made his little speech on the high cost of base ball, in connection with his new $750,000 base ball stadium in Brooklyn, he inadvertently, perhaps, started a fire of indignation among the fans, which has been smoldering for a couple of years. Ebbets says the price of base ball is going up, makes no bones about it, and intimates that the fans must foot the bills. In other words, they will be taxed more for seats, which formerly cost them from 25 to 50 cents less. The Dodgers' owner explains this by saying players' salaries have increased and everything else has gone up, too.

In mapping out a plan of recouping, Ebbets has decided that there'll be fewer 25-cent bleachers at his new stadium, a raise of 50 cents in the price of box seats besides, and a smaller number of 50-cent seats. Ebbets, however, isn't alone in the movement to raise the prices, for supporters of the Athletics in Philadelphia have seen their cheap bleachers replaced by grand stand extensions, and Boston rooters also have had their 25-cent seats decreased in number.

The Giants' management, too, have felt compelled to stretch the grand stand at higher prices, of course, around both sides, and the old-time bleacherite has been steadily pushed further away from the home plate.

While the base ball public lets out long and raucous yells of protest against the increased cost of the national sport, the magnates are emphatic in declaring that higher prices can't be helped, because to make both ends meet it is necessary to charge more on account of the great rise in players' salaries. Then there are other expenses an owner must incur to turn out a winning team.

Manager's Task. The situation that confronts the magnates is made known by John J. Foster, secretary of the New York base ball club, who has been identified with the diamond game for twenty-five years.

"The base ball public little realizes the tremendous cost of base ball," said Secretary Foster discussing the pending movement to raise the admission charges in some cities. "Big crowds are seen at the Polo grounds, and the fans get the idea that fortunes are made overnight in the game. But the profits are not so great, when, say, that out of a crowd of 20,000, probably 5,000 are dead-heads."

"Base ball owners, like other people, have been forced to sit back and see expenses steadily climb during the past twenty years. Take one item alone, players' salaries. Men like Mathewson, Cobb and Wagner are paid any way from 25 to 60 per cent more than the stars of the brotherhood days. The increase in the wages of the average run of players is much more. A player getting $1,000 twenty years back was thought to be well paid, but the same man today is receiving $2,000 or $3,000. The minors have cut in on the higher scale with an increase of 25 per cent in their salaries.

"To carry a team through a season now requires the services of nearly twenty-seven men. In the old days fourteen and even twelve players were deemed sufficient. The raise in players' wages began when the American league was created and the resultant keen competition with the National league. Teams started to bid against each other for the best players, with the result that now many are paid bank presidents' salaries. Back in 1889 a team's franchise could be purchased for about $25,000, but that sum would hardly buy two players of the Cobb and Mathewson type now.

WAGES INCREASE

"Along with that of the players, the wages of umpires and other officials were increased 50 and 100 per cent. Then to take up another item of expense—that of transportation. It costs about 200 per cent more to send teams around the country now than it did in the days before the Interstate railroad laws went into effect. Arriving at a hotel a base ball manager finds that it costs $5.00 a day to house each member of his team.

HOTEL ARRANGEMENTS

were vastly different in the old days. Then it was customary for the hostilities to cater to the ball teams and the best rooms in the house could be had for $2.25.

Secretary Foster here divulged some interesting facts about the polo grounds. "Just to open the grounds," went on the secretary, "costs the club $200. So, when only a small crowd turns out it can readily be seen that the loss to the club in this one particular is considerable.

"The greatest cost, however, that was saddled on the magnates was the building of the great stadiums in New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Boston and Brooklyn. The fans became very high-toned in their tastes and wanted only their stadia constructed of iron and steel. Naturally all this costs a great deal of money, in fact several of the stadiums represented an outlay of over $1,000,000.

Prices Raised. "This burden proved too heavy and the Philadelphia American league club, shortly after the beautiful Shibe park was completed, was forced to abolish the 25 cent seats. This move was taken notwithstanding the fact that the Athletics have had champion teams since 1906 and Philadelphia is a good base ball city. While the figures were never given out, it is believed that the Philadelphia club just barely made expenses during this period."

Getting back to the New York club, Mr. Foster said that the Giants lost money every year from 1889, with the exception of 1904, until the late Mr. Bruhn took charge. The secretary concluded with the statement that base ball, from the side of the magnate, was a huge gamble. A club can lose in one year the profits made in three, and the second division clubs do business on a trust-to-look policy like a race dog who hopes to get a good break from the barrier.

Secretary John Heydler of the national base ball commission agreed with John Foster that cheap ball was on its last legs. Mr. Heydler voiced the opinion that the higher cost of the diamond sport was inevitable.

"Base ball expenses have outstripped the charges to the fans," said the secretary, "and the days of 25 cent base ball are over, really they were over five years ago, for then the tide began turning to the high scale of prices. A true fan, nevertheless, will cheerfully come across with 50, 75 cents or $1 to see a good game," declared the general secretary.

UNIVERSITY TEAMS HINDERED BY COLD

Winkles, Clark and Racer were picked to compose the team with Lindstrom and Bates as alternates.

Spring Foot Ball Practice. Although Stehm had planned on the first spring foot ball practice Monday it was Thursday before the squad finally assembled. The meeting resulted in nothing more than organizing and active practice will begin next week.

Stehm carefully outlined the features which he expects to take up in spring training. In the squad were a number of last year's veterans, including Captain Purdy.

Nebraska's newly established wrestling department will hold its first tournament of the year next Saturday with the University of Iowa. The Cornhuskers will wrestle the Iowans at Iowa City.

Injured has crippled the Nebraska team and it will be the last of the week before the team is definitely selected. Tryouts were held last Thursday, but another series of elimination bouts will be held to definitely select the representatives.

In the lightweight class the Cornhuskers have two classy men—Gans and Phares—and the scrap between the two is a close one. Gans won last year and succeeded in taking his match against the Iowa man after a tussle lasting nearly an hour. Guenther has been selected definitely to represent the Cornhuskers in the welterweight class. In the tryout Thursday he failed to secure a fall from Franklin, but showed greater speed, skill and experience, and was the unanimous choice of the judges.

Bates and Keer are yet to decide the middleweight class representative. Bates injured his knee severely and the bout had to be put off Thursday.

In the heavyweight class it is conceded that McCornick, the foot ball man, will have the call providing he is in shape to wrestle, but he recently injured himself in a practice bout and may not be in shape to go on.

The team is scheduled to leave for Iowa City Thursday and the last workouts will be held Wednesday night.

Jiggs Donahue Dies in Insane Asylum

CHICAGO, March 29.—The fact that John "Jiggs" Donahue, the former Chicago American league first baseman, who won fame in the world's series games of 1906, between the two Chicago league teams, is dead, became known here today. The man who was termed the greatest first baseman he had ever known, by President Comisky of the local American league club, died in an insane asylum near Columbus, O., five weeks ago. Mrs. Donahue was notified of his death yesterday by an insurance company, in which he had a policy.

The players first big league engagement was under "Connie" Mack at Milwaukee during the infancy of the American league. In 1906 he accepted 1,200 chances at first base, a record which has never been equaled. "Jiggs" also had the record on the fewest number of chances in a single game, on May 23, having only one. He made one assist. It had never been known in base ball before where a first baseman was not given a chance to make at least one putout.

"Jiggs" was one of nine brothers, all of whom were base ball players. Donahue derived the nickname "Jiggs" from his dog dancing.

GOOD ROADS ARE NEEDED MORE THAN BATTLESHIPS

"Battleships against Good Roads" as a topic for debate always elicits the warmest responses from George E. Daniels, vice president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car company. Mr. Daniels has some very decided views on the comparative advantages of well-constructed highways over huge navies, and it is his opinion that greater benefit to the country at large can be secured through a good roads movement than through his plan to increase the equipment of our navy.

COOPER HAS WON A PLACE WITH THE GIANTS.

Claude Cooper, the recruit outfielder of the New York Giants, whom Manager McGraw has assured that he will be permanently engaged. Cooper's hitting has been timely, his work on the bases unsurpassed, he has shown lightning speed in the outfield and his throwing arm equals that of any major leaguer.

O'Toole Looks Good

Marty O'Toole the "32,000 beauty" of the Pittsburgh Pirates' twirling staff, who is expected to pitch to his true form this year, has been rousing into form very slowly, but at the close of last season appeared to have all the batters in the National league on his hip. O'Toole, for it was in this league he first attracted notice. His pitching for St. Louis City was of the sensational order that afterwards raised him to the position of the highest priced ball player ever sold. He has not been a disappointment at Pittsburgh for the reason that he has shown just the sort of ability he was expected to have. That his record will be against him is due to the fact that the Pirates have always seemed to play their poorest back of him, while it was his luck to have opposed to him the best of the league in the way of pitchers.

was on third and Congalton at second. A hit meant two runs if properly placed. He allowed the first strike to be called on him and then drove a hot one through short so fast Dowling had time to make no more than a futile stab at it, both runners scoring. In the third he sent a long fly to center field, which had it not been dead against a forty-mile gale, would have gone over the fielder's head, but it was caught. In the sixth he slammed out another single to left and in the eighth, after Cobb's home run had tied the score, Shetkoff opened the second half by laying the mill far over the left field fence, winning the game unassisted, for no one scored thereafter.

Two Men Hard Hit.

The two youngsters that appear to have the hardest row to hoe to a regular berth are Neff, an infielder, and Bright, an outfielder. It would be next to impossible for any club short of the majors to put in an outfield superior to Coyle, Thomason and Congalton. The first two have been tried and found worthy by Omaha, and Congalton never hit below .300 since he entered the American association several years ago. This is what Bright is up against. Yet he should not make the Omahas, for Rourke has said he has had several offers for him and that he can place him to advantage.

Neff has somewhat of the same things to contend with in his fight for a station inside. Kane promises to play his best season this year at first, Schipke at second and Justice at short, both are going well, while Grubb at third looks like a phenomenal youngster. A book could be written eulogizing his prospects, but such a publication might turn the head of a more experienced hero, and since up to the present time Grubb is a model youngster for modesty, it probably would be better to suspend publication for a while at least. Neff has shown ability both in the field and with the stick. There is a possibility that he may be able to play a better game than some of those now on the infield and even if he does not make a regular berth, he still has a chance of beating Scanlon out for utility infielder. Scanlon has been in poor health and has not reported.

Weather Unfavorable.

The weather here since the Rourke went into camp has been characteristic of that encountered by the major leaguers this spring. It has been a bad spring everywhere and if anything the Omaha club has been favored more than
