

WOMEN FIRE GRANDSTAND

Suffragists Taken in the Act by Watchman at Kelsor.

WIRES CUT, WINDOWS BROKEN

Number of Outrages Committed in Various Cities in the United Kingdom—Grandstand at Ayr Destroyed.

LONDON, April 4.—Two suffragette "fire fiends" were captured this morning while setting fire to the new grandstand on the Kelsor race course in Scotland.

The grandstand on the Ayr race course, also in Scotland, was gutted by fire this morning with a loss of $14,000.

A large number of window breaking and telegraph wire cutting outrages were committed during the night by militants in various parts of the country.

The bomb and arson campaign threatened by the "wild women" had caused intense alarm in the provinces, especially at historic places like Chatsworth and Blenheim.

Mrs. Emerson Abandons Fight. Mrs. Emerson of Jackson, Mich., had brought to a close her campaign in behalf of her daughter Zella, who is said to be in prison as the result of being forcibly fed.

Mrs. Emerson considers that the concession made by the British home secretary, Reginald McKenna, in taking ten days off her daughter's sentence is an extraordinary favor, and she has decided therefore to await the release of her daughter on Wednesday next.

Mrs. Emerson received a cablegram today from Secretary of State Bryan at Washington informing her that she had instructed the American embassy here to take up her daughter's case.

"PETTICOAT CAFE" IN ACTION

Booze Chasers Cleverly Hounded Off by Wise Women in Swiss Town.

In the village of Piona, Canton of St. Gall, Switzerland, the men petitioned recently the local authorities to open a cafe where they could obtain drinks and pass a pleasant evening.

The cafe was launched by the women of the village and kept under their control. Good drinks and food were sold at a little over cost price, and the farmers' daughters took it in turn to wait on the customers once a week, and everybody is so well served that there have been no more excursions to other villages and midnight returns.

BREAD AN' BUTTER AN' SUGAR

Youth's Joyful Sandwich Sprung on Elders Spells a Game.

Old man had one serious fault, however, which I deem it my duty to mention, although it was perhaps a natural symptom of real boyhood. In the middle of an exciting game of woolly-woolly-wolf, three-o'clock, alba or shiny he would slip away home, to return presently with a perfectly paralyzing slice of bread-n'-butter-n'-sugar-oh. Now if you were ever a boy yourself you'd agree that Charley was very immoral to behave that way.

NEW LEAF MILLS. By William Dean Howells. $1.50. Harper & Bros. This new novel pictures the simple conditions of the middle west, is a story of American country life after the Mexican war, when huckins, barn raisings, quiltings, spelling-matches, coon hunting and candy pulls were the amusements of a homogeneous community.

EASTER. By August Strindberg. 303 Pp. $1.50. Stewart & Kidd company. A play translated from the Swedish by Velma Swanton Howard, in which the author reveals a broad tolerance and understanding of humanity.

New Books

ONE WOMAN'S LIFE. By Robert Herrick. 406 Pp. $1.35. The Macmillan company.

The paramount theme of this new novel by Mr. Herrick is the aggression of the modern woman. Milly R. Dige, later Milly Bragdon, and yet later Milly Duncan, is an adventuress; a fortuitous, somewhat parasitic creature. She is a gallant in her way, but with her own forms of cowardice and her tyanny, tricked out in various guises, persists to carry all before her.

CONCERT PITCH. By Frank Danby. 280 Pp. $1.25. The Macmillan company.

The heroine, Manuella Wagner, has her youth ruined by the cold-natured and exacting stepmother. Finding herself engaged, she hardly knows how, to Lord Harry Callagher, whose ancient and impetuous house is to benefit by Sir Hubert Wagner's new made millions.

THE CASE OF JENNIE BRICE. By Mary Roberts Rinehart. 228 Pp. $1. Bobbs-Merrill company.

Mrs. Rinehart draws a clever picture of the seamy side of life in her home town. From the river front of Allegheny and the streets of Pittsburgh she takes her characters. Mrs. Pitman, who keeps the theatrical boarding house, and who has had better days, is a real creation.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE FROM WITHIN. By William C. Van Antwerp. 446 Pp. $1.50. Doubleday, Page & Co.

A defense of, and a challenge to its critics, written by a member of the Stock exchange. The public is asked to consider facts, and to at least read the other side of the question before jumping to derogatory conclusions.

LECTURES ON THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR. By James Ford Rhodes. 285 Pp. $1.50. The Macmillan company.

These lectures delivered before the University of Oxford in 1912, inaugurated a course on the History and Constitution of the United States. While written for an English audience, they relate concisely the antecedents and the salient events of our civil war.

FIGHTING BY SOUTHERN FEDERALISTS. By Charles C. Anderson. 282 Pp. $1. The Neal Publishing company.

In this volume the war passes in review. The chronological arrangement enables one to weigh results, where more than one fight occurred simultaneously, and abilities of the officers are carefully considered. A distinctive feature is the record of generals and of sea officers alphabetically listed. An alphabetical list of battles is also an important feature.

THREE WEEKS IN FRANCE. By John H. Higinbotham. 215 Pp. E. Reilly & Britton Co.

The fifth volume of Mr. Higinbotham's travel books. This is not a "guide," but contains many valuable suggestions to those about to make a tour of France, and is full of valuable information. Illustrated.

TRAINING THE BOY. By William A. McKeever. 263 Pp. $1.50. The Macmillan company.

The author attempts to sketch a practical plan for rounding out the whole boy, and to place the emphasis upon all rather than some of the forces necessary for such complete training. Parents and other boy trainers will certainly find the suggestions helpful, and altogether practical.

U.P. AND CRANE CO. MEN AT 33 AND LINCOLN BOULEVARD

honored practices of the elders. He cast convention to the winds and married the pretty music teacher, which "shocking innovation" put life and zest in the romances of bygone days and half-finished courtships were taken up where they had been left off years before.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY. By A. W. Macry. 215 Pp. $1. The Cosmopolitan Press.

A sort of historical vaudeville in which kings, queens, beggars, soldiers, prelates, scholars and actors from every age and clime "strut their brief hour upon the stage," each "act" being complete in itself.

THE NEW PACIFIC. By Hubert Howe Bancroft. 544 Pp. $2. The Bancroft company.

One of the problems of the future is the occupation and development by a superior civilization of the shores and islands of the Pacific ocean. In this volume are gathered the reality and romance of this enchanting region, its commerce and industries, its wealth and potentialities, and its assured destiny.

THE JOURNAL OF A COUNTRY WOMAN. By Emma Winner Rogers. 116 Pp. $1.25. Eaton & Mains.

The author says that in moving out from the city they sought the "delight of living next to nature, among green and growing things, sunset and sunrise within the horizon," and the "added happiness and value in the founding of a country home, which shall pass from generation to generation." The account she gives of the family's experiences on their New Jersey farm indicates that up to the present there have been no regrets over the Rogerses seem to have fallen in very pleasant places.

ON TRAIL ACROSS THE PLAINS

Woman Pioneer Recalls Some Indian Scenes of the Early Days.

Mrs. Daniel Whitman, a pioneer of Denver, tells in the Rocky Mountain News some of her experience on the plains in the '60s. "My husband came to Colorado in 1859," she said, "and then three years later he went back east to bring to our western home my two little children and myself. We did not travel across the plains in a party, but drove the entire distance in a wagon to which two ponies were hitched.

"I shall never forget my first sight of the Indians. It was our first night out on the prairie. My husband had gone to look after the horses, and I was preparing a meal on the cook stove which we had set up on the prairie, when I heard a guttural 'How' back of me. I turned to look into the faces of two strapping Omaha Indians.

"I don't suppose I will ever be more frightened than I was at that minute. They asked for biscuits, and I shoved a box of crackers at them and began shaking them out, although my hand trembled so that I could hardly hold the box. Fortunately my husband entered then, and told the Indians to 'vamoose.' I had long, light hair, and my complexion also was very fair, and the Indians were fascinated by the white skins of Caucasians. You can imagine the horror with which I heard one brave ask my husband, 'How many ponies for white squaw?' My husband merely laughed, and told him again to 'vamoose,' but I was so terrified that there was no sleep for me that night. I lay during the long hours when my husband and children slept and watched the great stars that looked wonderfully luminous in the clear summer night.

Miscellaneous. TWENTY YEARS AT HULL-HOUSE. By Jane Addams. 453 Pp. $1.50. The Macmillan company.

Mrs. Addams' work at Hull-House is known throughout the country. In the plains. I thought I heard an Indian stealthily approaching. I shall never pass a night fraught with more vivid terrors, and in the morning I told my husband that if we were to make the long journey to Denver and I was not to die of fright by the way, that we should have to spend the night where there were other companions than coyotes.

"So after that we managed to arrive at night at the stations where we stopped until morning.

"The greatest Indian scare I ever had was in the summer of '68. My brother, Schuyler Colfax, and party of eastern people, including Governor Bross of Illinois and Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican were traveling through the Rocky mountain region. We went with them to Twin lakes on a trip. In the party was Miss Sue Mathews, who afterward married General Frank Hall. General Hunt was acting governor for Governor Hunt, who was with our party. We had started home by way of Colorado Springs when we received intelligence that the Arapahoes and Sioux were on the warpath and had killed all the whites between Denver and Colorado Springs.

"We were encamped in a deep canon, and Schuyler Colfax, Governor Hunt and the rest of the men in the party had gone to California gulch to a 'speaking.' My father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Mathews, Miss Carrie Mathews, Miss Sue Mathews and a few others and myself were all the persons in camp, when a man tore into the canon on a horse white with lather. He said he came to bring us news that the Indians were on our trail, and he showed a bullet hole in his saddle to prove that he had barely escaped with his life.

"Of course, we were terrified. It was in the dead of night, and he awoke the camp to tell us that we were about to be tomahawked. You may be sure there was no sleep that night. We had a man patrolling one end of the canon, and another standing sentry at the opposite end.

"Each wore moccasins, and so agitated was the whole party that, mistaking each other for an Indian, each shot at the other in the night, but no serious accident resulted. We got no time in getting to Fairplay, and we obtained an escort of twenty-five men. While eating breakfast we saw a party of Indians riding up, displaying a white flag. It proved to be a party of Utes, who were always friendly to us, and they escorted us to Denver. Of course, that night at Fairplay there was a great powwow. Governor Hunt ordered a beef killed, and the Indians ate the entire beef. They danced for us around the campfire, and entertained the eastern visitors, who were delighted with the touch of adventure.

"Occasionally a coyote howled so uncomfortably close to the tents that my heart stopped beating, while, as the night wind rustled the dry grass of the

Guy L. Smith Holds Dealers' Convention

On Thursday of last week, Guy L. Smith held a convention of Hudson dealers. The entire day was devoted to the discussion of selling, advertising and delivery plans.

After the last course had been served at the luncheon, W. W. Garrison, publicity manager of the Hudson Motor Car company, Detroit, gave a lengthy address.

Mr. Garrison outlined the factory plans for the future, explained the six-cylinder era that was at hand. He showed conclusive proofs that today the Hudson Motor Car company was the largest builder of six-cylinder cars in the world.

The meeting was replete with enthusiasm from beginning to end. The following were in attendance: W. W. Garrison, Detroit, Mich.; Guy L. Smith, and R. W. Craig, Omaha; H. H. Dillon, and R. E. Rasmussen, Lincoln; Ralph C. Wigton, Sioux City, Ia.; E. J. Macken, Platte Center; P. J. Peterson, Newman Grove; Frank Dahlstrom, Newman Grove; W. F. Looman, Pierce; J. E. Peterson, Fortia, Ia.; P.
