New Books

THE TURN OF THE SWORD. By C. MacLean Savage. 275 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

In this story of Japan the author presents a fascinating and thrilling tale. The book opens with a gala gathering before whom the young son of the retainer prince tries his skill in swordsmanship with the son of a high nobleman. By an unfair blow the prince is overthrown and apparently slain. A faithful serving man, however, spirits him away, and after saving his life leaves him with a poor peasant, who does not know of the prince's identity. The boy's memory has been destroyed by the sword stroke. Meanwhile the father of his opponent has overthrown the reigning house and seized the government himself. His rule is harsh and cruel, and drives the peasant to an uprising. By a curious train of circumstances the real prince becomes the leader of the revolt, and, engaging in mortal combat with his old adversary, is again struck down with a sword blow. With this second stroke his lost memory returns and he discovers his identity. The usurping house is defeated, and he seizes the throne and returns to his rightful place.

THE MAXWELL MYSTERY. By Carolyn Wells. 265 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

An elusive mystery and a delightful love story in which Fleming Stone, the great detective, again figures. Well planned crimes are often those which are easily ferreted out, but in this case the solution of the mystery on account of its simplicity eludes all investigation, and the climax is a complete surprise.

THE ADMIRABLE CRIMES OF DIRK MEMLING. By Rupert Hughes. 250 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

A thief who can steal a statue weighing over a thousand pounds from a public square, is certainly a "voluc" extraordinary. But to remove a millionaire's entire art collection and sell it back to the unsuspecting victim is the work of a genius. Dirk Memling's artistic temperament revolts at the commonplace, even in crime, and with his beautiful model, he devises thefts that are certainly ingenious.

THE UPHILL CLIMB. By E. M. Bower. 235 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

A story of Montana; the narrative of a cowboy's fight with himself, of an uphill climb that was aided by one or two sincere friends and sadly hindered by others. Men who have the cheerfulness that comes of taking life in twenty-four-hour doses, and of looking not too far ahead and backward nor at all; true-hearted women who exert a refining influence on those with whom they sympathize, while condemning their faults, are the chief characters.

THE SUTTER OF SAFA. By Dulota Dramer. 210 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

A tale of Hindustan. A powerful king possesses a zanana of Oriental gorgeousness, but is not content and desires to gain the favor of the wonderful Safa, being the mother of a lad who is captive in the king's palace. The tale abounds with intrigue, treachery, battle and stern death, but presumably is necessary to the setting of the story.

SILVIA. By Upton Sinclair. 415 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

The story revolves about the character of Sylvia Castleman, a southern girl of great charm. The scenes are laid chiefly in New York and Boston, and the characters are convincing and well drawn. The story has many pleasing elements, but beneath it all Mr. Sinclair has attacked one of the greatest problems of the day, but there is nothing repulsive about the story; on the contrary it is an interesting and charming book.

THE ADVENTURES OF MISS GREGORY. By Percival Gibbon. 250 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

Miss Gregory knocks about the world, and wherever she goes, is in the thick of things. At one time it is a Nihilist plot which fascinates her; at another time, a plague-stricken community that calls her. She is in Africa when the slayer is secretly plotting his trade, and again, in wretched Bora. Wherever she goes she attracts adventure to her. The book which recounts her extraordinary experiences is full of pictures of men and women in widely separate parts of the globe, and they play their parts in swift movement.

THE ROAD OF LIVING MEN. By W. H. Lippincott & Co.

The story is told in the first person and concerns, primarily, the tales of the men who take it and of a strong-hearted woman, Mary Romney, who is his one beloved. They first meet in their middle teens, by chance and briefly, and are then swept apart until they meet again, ten years later, in Hongkong. There the action of the tale begins, and is carried far into the interior of China, whence it flees back, amid perils and breathless excitement, urged on by the Boxer rebellion. Then comes a quiet place on Long Island, and finally the reader is hurried down to South America, where, in a lonely valley high up in the Andes love comes into his own.

HISTORY AND STORIES OF NEBRASKA. By A. E. Sheldon. 294 Pp. University Publishing Company. A little book by Addison E. Sheldon, director of the Nebraska legislative reference library, which puts in easy reading form for children and young folks an outline of the state's history, and a collection of interesting stories about historic personages participating in its making. The work is intended to be used in connection with reading and history in the schools, and seems admirably adapted for that purpose, each chapter being supplemented with review questions to test the impression made. Here we have related in simple language true tales of romance and adventure set in historic background, many of them more alluring than fiction, and taken together affording a firm foundation for further study of the growth and past experiences of Nebraska and its people.

A LANDSMAN'S LOG. By Robert W. Nease. 194 Pp. E. Yale University Press. This book has an informing and entertaining account of actual conditions on board of a modern man-of-war. The forty illustrations are of unusual beauty and interest and were taken by the author while on a cruise with the Atlantic fleet.

THE FAMILY. By Charles Franklin Thwing. 210 Pp. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co. This standard work has been given renewed life after a revision by the author. Combining that which has stood the test of college classrooms, public libraries and the homes of intelligent people for years, with the latest deductions from research and statistics, it is fitted to meet the need of information on one of the greatest questions of our time.

ZONE POLICEMAN. By Harry A. Franck. 214 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

From the opening account of Mr. Franck's application for service in the Zone police to his last ride across the isthmus, the book is one flashing glimpse after another of scenes, people and things being done. Wherever the author goes he sees the amusing side of things, whether of personal follies or human absurdities, and he is always ready to illustrate a point with an apt story of life in the zone, but he is equally ready to discuss, though with many a whimsical touch, the serious side of the methods by which things are being accomplished down there. Mr. Franck gets away from the conventional beaten paths, and what he sees is always full of human interest.

THE COMING MEXICO. By Joseph King Goodrich. 204 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

The author gives us the story of Mexico in its earliest romantic days to the present turbulence. Social, industrial and political conditions as they are today, are described, together with an inference of what may happen in the future.

OUR NEIGHBORS: THE JAPANESE. By Joseph King Goodrich. 248 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

A simple outline of the history, natural resources and industrial conditions of Japan. Dr. Goodrich's book is written from the inside, and not in the casual vein of the touch-and-go globe trotter.

OLD AND YOUNG AMERICA. By Sarah Pike Conger. 190 Pp. F. G. Brown & Co.

Mrs. Conger presents some pretty side-lights on things Chinese, and also offers some little stories on America, strongly patriotic and uplifting. While adapted for children, the book has a message for older readers, and will especially appeal to teachers and parents.

BOTH SIDES OF 100 QUESTIONS. By Edwin Dobols Shurtz and Carl Cleveland Taylor. 200 Pp. H.E. F. G. Brown & Co.

A handbook for school and college debaters, and for those interested in literary or debating societies.

"SLEEPING BEAUTY" RAISES THREE FIFTY FOR RELIEF

The sum of $350 was added to the general relief fund through the benefit and entertainment "The Sleeping Beauty," given by a number of young society people, under the direction of Miss Isabel Lowden.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Judge and Mrs. Joseph Oberfelder of Sidney are in Omaha for a few days. Arthur M. Oberfelder, general manager of the Rocky Mountain department of the Redfield Lumber bureau of Denver, is returning from New York, where he made a number of contracts for the coming season.

WATER CAUSES BIG DAMAGE

Railroads in Iowa Are Heavy Losers from the Rains.

CORN LAND IS UNDER WATER

Planting of Corn Will Be Considerably Delayed While Farmers Wait for Waters to Subside—Nebraska Not So Bad.

With a discontinuance of the rain for a time, at least, the railroads have begun to take account of stock as to the amount of damage done by what amounted to almost floods throughout western Iowa. Indications are that this damage will run into hundreds of thousands. The Northwestern and Burlington escaped practically unscathed, but the Milwaukee, Illinois Central, Great Western and Rock Island suffered severely, the Milwaukee being the heaviest loser of the Omaha-Chicago roads.

The Milwaukee lost about a mile of track between Omaha and Manila and miles of the new grade at many places east of the latter named place. This grade had been completed, or was in course of construction and washed down like piles of sand.

The Rock Island lost half a mile of track east of Council Bluffs and this side of Neola. It being carried off the dump and landed in the bed of Mosquito creek. There were numerous washouts along the Illinois Central south of Missouri Valley and along the Great Western between Carroll and Manning.

Large forces of men have been put on by all of the roads caught by the flood, and repairs have been completed, or will be within the next few hours, so that by Saturday they will all be using their own tracks.

More Damage in Iowa. While the rains were heavy in Nebraska, the damage to the roads was slight to that in Iowa. The Burlington had a bad washout on its Sioux City-Ashland line and the Northwestern on the Norfolk-Niobrara branch. Repairs have been made, however, and trains are back on schedule.

Passengers coming in on morning trains from the east say that the level lands of central and northern Iowa the country is flooded and that waiting for the water to run off is going to greatly delay the planting of corn.

Along the Illinois Central from Rockwell City, west to Wall Lake, a distance of thirty miles, the entire area for miles on either side of the track the fields are under water to the depth of from six inches to two feet. Along the track, most of the way, the water is up over the ties, and as the country is flat and without much drainage it will be a long time before it will run off.

Another stretch of country that has suffered severely is farther east and between Webster City and Alden. This is flat and without drainage, but generally under a high state of cultivation. Now, for more than twenty miles along the railroad and for several miles on either side, there is a sea of water, ranging in depth from a few inches to several feet. It is right in the heart of the Iowa corn belt and it is predicted that the flooded condition of the ground will mean heavy losses to the farmers.

Fine Arts Society Objects to Engine House's Location

The Omaha Society of Fine Arts, which holds its meetings in the lecture room of the public library, has sent the following letter to the city council:

"The Omaha Society of Fine Arts, as an organization and its members as patrons of the public library, earnestly request you to reconsider your action in locating an engine house and fire station at the northwest corner of Nineteenth and Harney streets, for the following reasons:

"First—The danger to small children who come to the library.

"Second—The noise attendant upon an engine house so situated would be a serious disturbance to readers in the library and to the several organizations and study classes which make use of this building. These have insufficient quiet and seclusion, due to the present necessary disturbances.

"Third—The surroundings of the library at present are unfit for a building of its kind. It is unfortunate that in Omaha a great public library should not have a more prominent position in the city's plan. The least that can be done now is to keep further menace away from the building.

"Fourth—Owing to the terms of the bequest under which the ground occupied by the library was given to the city, namely, that it must be used for library purposes, there is little chance of moving the library to a more suitable location. The only course remaining is to make the present location as desirable as possible.

"Fifth—To locate a fire station across the street from the library is a step antagonistic to the aims and endeavors of the new Omaha City league and the organizations it represents, with their admirable purpose of making Omaha a 'City Beautiful'.

"Trusting the above protest will receive due and favorable consideration. MARTHA McDONALD (Mrs. John McDonald), Secretary. HARRIET F. W. SMITH (Mrs. Arthur Crittenden Smith), President."

Women Buy Alcohol, Men Stick to Whisky

Women patrons of the liquor department of Omaha drug stores are impartial purchasers of wine and alcohol. The men, judging from their purchases, prefer whisky almost universally.

City Clerk Flynn has received reports from forty druggists of the seventy-five who have taken out permits this year to sell intoxicating liquors for "medicinal purposes."

"Thirty-five have not reported," said Flynn, "although the law requires that each store report monthly, giving the names of those to whom the liquor has been sold."

The majority of the stores have had the customers write their own names on the blanks kept for that purpose. A ludicrous attempt has been made by many to conceal their handwriting.

Assumed names, evidently thought of on the spur of the moment, are written by some of the patrons of the liquor department of the drug stores. "John Doe" is not infrequently used.

A few women are steady customers, purchasing alcohol or whisky for medicinal purposes at their drug store every few days. A few "business" patrons come of the store.

MISSOURI PACIFIC TELLS HOW TO COOK ONIONS

While the Missouri Pacific is not going into the business of teaching domestic science, it is having a word to say as to the cooking of onions. Farther south, and along the line of the road, there are large areas where onions have come to be one of the leading crops. Feeling that it is meet and proper that artists of the kitchen should know how to prepare onions for the table, the company has issued a pamphlet in which there are thirty-three recipes for cooking onions and making them palatable.
