To Have German Day. Arrangements are soon to be completed for a German day celebration, October 2, as a part of the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities. It has been authoritatively announced that the Germans have selected Omaha as the place of this year's celebration, and the local committee of the Nebraska German-American alliance is working with J. D. Weaver, secretary of the knights, to plan a big parade, in which 10,000 of them will participate that day.

German day is celebrated by United States citizens of German birth, or extraction, in commemoration of the landing of the first German colonists, led by Daniel Pestorius, October 6, 1683.

"The day has been celebrated by the German-American alliance all over the country very successfully," said Val I. Peter, "and the local branches of the alliance have for years been endeavoring to carry out this celebration in Omaha. Inasmuch as the harvest festival of the Ak-Sar-Ben will be held at that time. we thought it well to celebrate German day in connection with the annual festival, thereby assuring a larger attendance of Germans of the state and also of western Iowa. "We expect to have about 25,000 Germans in the city for three days about that time. We will build floats and have them in an afternoon parade in connection with one of the Ak-Sar-Ben parades. About 19,000 Germans will march in the
