CLEANERS AND DYERS COMING

Indications Are the Influx Will Break Records.
ANXIOUS TO SEE OMAHA
Dea Show to Be One of the First Features on the Program—Women to Have Special Entertainment.
Special care is chartered by the dyers and cleaners of Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and some of the middle states to bring them to Omaha for the sixth annual meeting of the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers to be held here, July 7 to 10 inclusive. Big preparations are being made for coming to Omaha by the cleaners and dyers of the east.
The National Cleaner and Dyer in the last issue commenting on the coming convention says, "Omaha has long been known for its hospitality to visitors and especially for its consideration of those who honor the metropolis with their presence."
A well balanced cycle of business and pleasure characterizes the program. As the meeting opens July 7 which is on a Monday, the men of the association will be hustled to the Ak-Sar-Ben den in the evening where they will be initiated into the mysteries of the realm over which Samson has ruled so long, the realm of which they have heard so much at a distance and about which they know so little from first hand knowledge. No the women are not to be permitted to go to the den with the men. That is one of the rules of Samson. So arrangements have been made for a reception for the women at the Hotel Rome for that evening. It may be a grape juice affair or there may be punch, but anyway this will be for the women while the men are being misled through a sturdier program at the Den.

While the men are busy with the Monday afternoon program the ladies are to take an automobile drive over the 25 miles of boulevards at the city and through the 14 parks which at this time of the year are at the height of their beauty. Returning from the trip they are to visit some of the principal manufacturing establishments of the city including the creameries which are among the greatest in the world.
Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock there is to be a good fellowship meeting at the Hotel Rome where there will be handshaking and a general course of getting acquainted.
Wednesday morning the ladies are to be shown through the retail district, and Wednesday evening there is to be a theater party for them. Thursday evening the convention is to close with a banquet at the Hotel Rome.
During the entire session of the convention in Omaha, there is to be an industrial exhibit at the auditorium. The auditorium will be partitioned off into booths where the manufactures of machinery and equipment for cleaning and drying plants will exhibit their latest and best devices.

Mayor Dahman is to deliver the address of welcome on the afternoon of Monday, July 7. The response will be made by William H. Morgens of St. Louis, president of the association.
PINCHED FOR WEARING AN OVERCOAT WITH MERCURY 96
The charge "suspicious character" was probably never more aptly placed against an individual than it was Friday afternoon, when James Starke was taken into custody by Detectives Lahay and Sullivan at 9 o'clock, with the thermometer at 96, while strolling on lower Dodge street bundled in a heavy winter overcoat.
Starke when arraigned before Judge Foster stated he was on his way to sell the article and had donned the coat to save the trouble of carrying it on his arm. He was allowed to leave, but was cautioned to pack the coat the rest of the way to the purchaser, or another victim would receive registration on the rapidly growing heat prostation list.

NEWSIE USED MAKE-BELIEVE
Cries and Gets Quarters from Pedestrians Who See Him.
WARDEN NOT TO DO IT AGAIN
Policeman Tells Him to Quit, Followed by Advice by Newspaper Man Who Gets Next to His Little Heart.
Nicol Nicol sells papers on South Sixteenth street. He is 19 years old and wise for his age. Nicol was getting wealthy, speaking in the terms of the newspaper, when a big deputy sheriff, whose name is best withheld, ran him down in the alley and threatened him with a cell in the vermin-infested city jail if he didn't reform.
"This little rat is a grafter," said the deputy sheriff, as Nicol crouched, a forlorn little figure, against the sun-scoured side of a building. "He can cry without any provocation and he weeps as many times a day as he thinks it will profit him. When a kind-hearted person sees him crying and asks what's the matter, he sob's out that he has lost a quarter, his mother gave him.
"Almost invariably he is reimbursed. He is reimbursed several times a day. He never lost a quarter."
The little "grafter," eyes dry and burning, vehemently declared he lost that quarter, but as he spoke he scrooched closer and closer to the sun-baked building.

"You're lying, you little thief," said the deputy sheriff, "and if I catch you doing it again, I'll pinch you. Now remember that."
And the deputy sheriff turned to the newspapermen he did not know and looked for approbation. He may have been right, but the eyes of the newspapermen turned to the little urchin quivering against the hot side of the building.
"Did you really lose that quarter, Nicol?" he asked.
The boy began to sob. The deputy sheriff strode away. The newspaperman put his arms around the little shaver and asked him if he didn't want a dish of ice cream. Nicol wanted it.
Didn't Lose It.
When he had consumed the dish of frozen cream Nicol felt better. He wiped his eyes with his coat sleeve.
"No, I didn't lose a quarter," he said, "but the people will give me quarters if I tell them I did. It's lots easier than selling papers. I can make more money in a minute that I can all day crying my papers."
It was a hard argument, but the reporter tried to meet it. He employed the law of the club.
"That's wrong, Nicol. You are not honest. When you grow up you'll have the dishonest habit and you'll do something worse than that and the law will take you and send you to a place surrounded by high walls and you can't get away and there they'll make you work hard all day and they won't ever give you ice cream or anything."

But little Nicol was a rebel. He believes a copper is the impersonation of law and he hates coppers and sees no reason why he should not "but it over them" when he can. He thinks he has done them harm when he commits an act for which they would censure or arrest him, but which they do not discover.
Finally Nicol said he would try it without the graft and all day he cried his papers. Frequently the reporter slipped around to see if he was keeping his word. So far as he could learn he was, but Nicol had not sold many papers and the perspiration was streaming down his little sun-burned face. He was trying hard, but the lure of the quarter was in his eyes and the pennies had little attraction. And so he may "break over," for little Nicol has a huge appetite and he must sell ten papers if he is honest before he can buy one dish of ice cream.
WARD GIFFORD TO BE AIDE IN BIG BALLOON RACE
Ward C. Gifford, assistant commissioner of the Commercial club, has accepted an invitation to take a balloon trip with Captain H. E. Honeywell in the national balloon race to start from Kansas City July 4. Nine balloons are entered in the race, all but three of which will be eliminated after their participation in the international race scheduled for September. Gifford will be aide to Captain Honeywell, who will captain a balloon entered by the Kansas City Post.

For Soft, Silky, Fluffy Hair, Use Oatmeal
(From Beauty's Mirror.)
The value of oatmeal as a hair and scalp cleanser has long been recognized, but the difficulty of getting it in fine pulverized powder form, with bran eliminated, has deterred many from using it. Now that a caxined oatmeal compound can be obtained at the drug stores, at trifling cost, this is destined to become the most popular shampoo. A delightful refreshing and cleansing shampoo may be had by stirring a spoonful of this compound into a cup of hot water and rubbing the liquid thoroughly into the scalp. The hair should then be carefully rinsed. This makes the hair unusually fluffy, soft and glossy. It promotes a healthy condition of the scalp and a luxuriant growth of hair.
The principal objection to most shampoos mixture is their large percentage of alkali, which causes hair to split, break and lose its lustre, drying up oily secretions and irritating the scalp. The alkali produces copious dandruff. The caxined oatmeal compound makes little lather, much like an egg shampoo—Advertisement.
