OVER FOUR HUNDRED CARLOADS

All This Year's Crops Excepting Corn and Beans Increased Prices Over Saturday on the Local Exchange.

For a day in July the grain receipts on the Omaha Grain exchange Monday were the heaviest in the history of Omaha as a grain market. The receipts really included the grain that came in Saturday and Sunday, but the inspection was made yesterday morning.

Monday's grain receipts totaled up 233 cars of wheat, 106 cars of corn and twenty-three cars of oats. The corn was of last year's crop, but the wheat and oats were just in from the fields. Considerable of the stuff went onto the open market, but the bulk was consigned direct to the elevator men.

Prices were firm wheat being 1/4 to 1/2 cent up from Saturday's close and corn and oats 1/4 cent.

Use of the Streets and Monopoly

NO. 8.

This question doubtless has suggested itself to you: "Why should the Gas Company try to convince the people that they should approve the franchise unless it is unusually valuable to the Company?"

Foregoing advertisements have answered the question when it was explained that a gas company must continuously seek and invest new capital year after year in order to serve the public adequately and efficiently; further, that new capital cannot be obtained for necessary enlargements and extensions with only a few years remaining of the existing franchise.

There is a vast difference between an ordinary mercantile and manufacturing business and a gas company.

The gas company is subject to regulation because it is conducted as a monopoly, whereas the merchant or manufacturer is not subject to regulation. The gas company delivers its product UNDER THE STREETS, while the merchant delivers his UPON the streets. The first named turns his capital over several times a year, while a service company takes in an amount equal to its capital investment only once in four to six years, and is compelled to invest more and more capital each year to meet public requirements.

The fact that a gas company is compelled to lay pipes under the streets of a city, and thereby has to have a franchise, is no fault of the corporation. SERVICE CANNOT BE RENDERED OTHERWISE.

Using the streets for gas mains is putting the thoroughfares to broader public use, FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE PUBLIC.

The fact that a gas company is a "necessary monopoly"—to use Senator LaFollette's words—is no fault of its own. It is a fundamental of the business that one gas company, with one set of managers, manufacturing establishments and system of mains, can render better and cheaper service to a single community than two companies, each with only half of the business, with twice the investment and twice the fixed charges.

President Wilson, in addressing the students of the University of California prior to his election, said:

"Public service corporations are, in a very interesting sense, natural monopolies. They generally use the pieces of land and the roads and highways which are most convenient for their purpose, and most direct for effecting the communication which they wish to effect; and it is perfectly obvious that if other companies are allowed to compete with them there is a very wasteful duplication in outlay and equipment, so that competition generally results in an eventual combination of the competing companies, and the necessity to charge a price on what they supply that will pay the interest on twice as great an investment as was really necessary for one service."

The franchise which will be voted upon August 19th, is NOT exclusive and will not prevent Omahans from granting a similar franchise to others, should it see fit to do so.

The facts that the Gas Company is a necessary monopoly, and that it has to use the streets, do not confer unusual earning power.

The proposed franchise in itself is valueless, but it may be possible for PROGRESSIVE, ECONOMIC and EFFICIENT MANAGEMENT, operating under its provisions, to earn a small rate of return on the money actually invested in the gas property.
