Black Rust Reports Have Little Effect on Wheat Market.

Strong Upturn in Price Consequently Takes Place When Effort is Made to Fill In the Buy-Ing Orders.

OMAHA, July 22, 1913.

The early advance yesterday was helped by some additional black rust reports from the northwest A leading Chicago interest sold September wheat around top figures and this, with the visible supply increase, caused quite general selling on a half cent point after midday. That the black rust reports wired to Chleago had little effect on the trade yesterday was due to two causes. First, the wheat in many sections of the northwest is so far advanced that it is thought a light visitation of black rust will do little injury. Second, the northwest markets did not show the snap on the buying side the trade expected, indicating little alarm in that quarter over the rust outlook. When the visible supply was posted and the Chicago stocks showed nearly 500,000 bushels increase, as many of the OMAHA, July 22, 1913. 500,000 bushels increase, as many of the carly buyers were willing to switch to the selling side to secure profits. It was this selling which caused the reaction of half a cent from the top prices. Traders in the cash trade were slow to give up shipping or export sales, but at the close the business was reported. business was reported at 250,000 business the business was reported at 20,000 business. Cash markets showed decided firmness here and at Chicago, Cash wheat was unchanged.

Offerings of corn in the open market at the outset yesterday were very limited and the result was a strong upturn in filling th buying orders, which came to the market since last week. The forecast of a clear weather map for the greater part of th week and a fear of a return of high temperatures for the westor or high temperatures for the west-ern states gave much of the buil force under corn futures early in the session. CHICAGO, July 22.—Fading away of the rust scare allowed the wheat market today to ease off. Closing prices were steady at a net decline of 142%c to 160. Other trading staples, too, showed a setback; corn, 160 to 160%c; oats, 160, and provisions, 150 to 12%c.

Danger from black rust seemed to be regarded as practically over in view of the cool weather in Minnesota and the Dakotas and conditions today for the apring crop were declared to be ideal, with the rust making no progress whatever. So rapidly was the plant said to be filling that a great deal of wheat would be cut this week in Minnesota. The Russian outlook was reported to be fine. ing the middle of the session on account of good export inquiry, but much foreign demand had reference only to shipments that would be immediate. As miling sales were comparatively slight, the merchandising did not seem sufficient to sustain the market at a permanent advance. Short sellers again took a hand and were in control throughout the last hour. Predicted showers made corn prices decline. At first, however, the bears were at a disadvantage owing to the weather map showing an absence of moisture. Osts displayed no independence, being swayed wholly by the action of corn. Provisions weakened with hogs and most of the business was in lard.

Beef steers were in good demand this morning, but the quality was very poor, consisting largely of half fat or warmed up steers. There were, however, some right good killers among the offerings and yearlings sold up as high as $2.90, the highest price paid since December of last year. It would be safe to quote the better grades as strong to 10c higher with the common kinds slow and weak.

Cows and heifers were also in good demand and have showed a little strength as compared with yesterday.

There were only a very few stockers and feeders in sight, but they sold in about the same notches as yesterday.

The demand for lights continued good today, and shippers picked up a good snare of the light and butcher stuft at strong to be higher prices, a few loads reaching B.B. Packers made their first bids at steady prices, and in spite of the fact that seders held out for some cline, the bulk of the packing logs were at steady figures. On the close the narket even weakened off a little, and several loads that were still unsold at 10 o'clock were refused when offered at steady prices, buyers in most cases saking reductions of about 5c. Salesmen refused to make any concessions, and at a late hout these hogs were still in first hands. The bulk of the hogs soid at $5.898.50, with a springling of lights on up to $9.15, the top. At no time could the movement be called active, and towards the close trude stopped altogether, buyers, in some cases, refusing to even bid on what stuff was left.
