Cole Motor Company Sends Experts on Extraordinary Trip.

SUBJECT CAR TO HARD STRAINS

Drive Machine Through Worst Places and Take Notes of the Results and Data on Parts that May Be Broken.

A Cole motor car from the Cole Motor Car company's engineering department, arrived in Omaha yesterday on an engineering tour from Indianapolis to the Pacific coast.

In the car were Chief Engineer Charles B. Crawford, Head Tester Law Pettijohn and Field Advertising Manager H. C. Bradford of the Cole Motor Car company and J. G. Turner, a Delco field service expert. These officials claim that they are on an investigation and engineering trip such as was never before taken by an automobile. The trip is being conducted by the Cole Motor Car company under the auspices of the engineers of the Standardized Cole's roll of honor consists of the Timken Detroit Axle and Bearing company, the Northway Motor and Manufacturing company, May's Radiator company, Gemmer Steering Gear company, Detroit Steel Springs company, Spicer Universal Joints company, Firestone Tire and Demountable Rim organization, Dayton Engineering Laboratories company, manufacturers of the Delco electric lighting, starting and ignition unit.

The tourists reported the White Pole route in the shape of every hill given a severe test. The car they are touring in is a six cylinder of the Cole series nine. It has been taken from the floor of the local salesroom in Indianapolis and Cole's chief engineer is anxious to get a personal observation of conditions as he sees them in the territory he passes through. Engineer Crawford wants to know the road conditions of the hilly parts of the west and witness the performance of his car in various altitudes. Head Tester Pettijohn is also making observations so that he will be in a better position to finally judge the automobiles that come to him.

Carry Camping Outfit. The big six-cylinder is heavily loaded. The party is carrying with them a tent and full camping outfit. They sleep out at night and prepare their own food.

Chief Engineer Crawford says he is giving the car he is driving the most severe test possible. He is driving through the hardest places that he finds and breaks everything he can break, taking notes so that he can thoroughly diagnose every particular feature of the car. Incidentally, Field Advertising Manager H. C. Bradford says that with the coming big announcement that the Cole Motor Car company will make in Engineer Crawford's trip will be one that every man interested in the purchase of a motor car from the economical as well as pleasure giving standpoint is vitally interested in.

CADILLAC ANNOUNCEMENT AROUSES KEEN INTEREST

The automobile world, always susceptible to changes and innovations, has been put on tenter hooks by the preliminary announcement of the Cadillac Motor Car company referring to certain progressive developments which will distinguish the 1914 Cadillac, the exact nature of which will soon be revealed. Those active in the industry—and laymen as well—are always keenly curious about contemplated motor car improvements and what they portend, but this interest is whetted to its keenest edge when the Cadillac announces a new series because of the position the company occupies in the history and development of the motor car. The reason is obvious; conservatism has been coupled with foresightedness. Henry M. Leland, advisory manager of the Cadillac, the founder and guiding spirit of the concern, is an extremely conservative man with half a century of experience in the mechanical world, yet he has been called the "youngest" man in the automobile industry today. In the affairs of the Cadillac, there has been a wholesome fear of the whim of the faddist, and the merely temporary innovations. But the company nevertheless, has from time to time played the role of pioneer and has inaugurated several important epochs in the development of the motor car. One of these epochs illustrates in an especially significant manner the reason for the public's attitude toward this company. It was two years ago that the Cadillac had the honor of being first to introduce an automatic electrical cranking and lighting system. It was a revolution in efficiency and comfort. As there have been many other progressive features first developed in this car, the query is now naturally voiced each year: "What will the Cadillac do?"

The Cadillac company's conservatism has not prevented it to make rash promises. Therefore, when it declares that it is about to inaugurate another new and progressive development, the automobile world, remembering past performances, is on the qui vive to know just what these statements portend.

Nooray! Baby To Rule the House

No Longer Do Women Fear The Greatest of All Human Blessings.

It is a joy and comfort to know that those much-talked-of pains and other distresses that are said to precede child-bearing may easily be avoided. No woman need fear the slightest discomfort if she will fortify herself with the well-known and time-honored remedy, "Mother's Friend."

This is a most grateful, penetrating, external application that at once softens and makes pliant the abdominal muscles and ligaments. They naturally expand without the slightest strain, and thus not only banish all tendency to nervous twitching spells, but there is an entire freedom from nausea, discomfort, sleeplessness and dread that so often leave their impress upon the babe.

The occasion is therefore one of unbounded, joyful anticipation, and too much stress can not be laid upon the remarkable influence which a mother's happy, pre-natal disposition has upon the health and fortune of the generation to come.

Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers, thousands of whom have used and recommended it. You will find it on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Write to-day to the Bradford Regulator Co., 130 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a most instructive book on the treatment of all subjects, motherhood.

Barnum & Bailey Circus Comes to Omaha This Week

"Hold your horses, the elephants are coming."

The giddiest, gayest, grandest, gratifying, glamorous and glittering galaxy of the whole wide, wonderful world is trekking this way and will spread its acres of tents here on next Wednesday. If one doesn't infer from this that reference is made to the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, the publicity man will regard the case as hopeless.

Of course all this isn't news to the kiddies, for every blessed one of them has kept tabs on the flaming boards and already the leading topic of conversation in the average home is the coming of the circus and its street parade.

The time-honored custom has always been to refer to each successive year's circus as "bigger and better than ever," but the phrase "bigger and better than ever" that this year's Barnum & Bailey circus hesitates to use it, despite the fact that it adequately describes the season's entertainment. More cars are required to transfer the show, more tents are used, more areas required to accommodate the show than ever before.

In fact, the circus has reached a point where it is the despair of many of the smaller railroads and taxes their facilities to the limit, for eighty-five cars are needed to transport the gigantic canvas awning from town to town.

There's material enough in this year's circus to make half a dozen circuses of the old school. In place of the stereotyped "grand entries," with which circuses have been content to open their program for many years, the Barnum & Bailey entertainment is inaugurated by the splendid spectacle entitled "Cleopatra," a wordless play based upon the story of Egypt's ancient queen. The story is effectively pantomimed and there is a cast of 1,300 persons, including a ballet of dancing girls trained by Ottaker Barik of the Metropolitan Opera house in New York City.

The costumes and properties are historically correct and the entire innovation is the most stupendous thing ever attempted under canvas. Eugene Sibson portrays the "Sorceress of the Nile," while Camille Fortune, a pantomimist of merit, enacts the role of Antony.

Johannes Josefson's company of Icelandic gladiators are conspicuous newcomers to the Barnum & Bailey tents. A base ball game between elephant players

WILL TEACH WOOD CARVING

Omaha Manual Training Teachers Are Greatly Interested.

NEW YORK TEACHER IS COMING

Miss Helen Thompson Talks of Karl von Rydingsvard and Development of Wood Carving in Public Schools.

Miss Helen L. Thompson, supervisor of manual training in the Omaha schools, believes wood-carving comes properly within the scope of the public schools.

Teachers of manual training are so interested that they have secured Karl von Rydingsvard of New York City to teach a four weeks' course in wood-carving, beginning Monday, August 4, of Mr. Rydingsvard and wood-carving Miss Thompson says:

"This is the age of the specialist, and one who intends making a serious study of any branch of art naturally looks about and asks himself, 'Where can I best get what I want?'"

"Many of the eastern cities include wood-carving in their public school curriculum, and Omaha, as usual, wishing to keep abreast of the times, teaches this subject in its manual training department."

"Our manual training teachers are so interested in this branch of their work that they have engaged Karl von Rydingsvard of New York City to come to Omaha for a 'four weeks' course, which begins Monday, August 4."

"Only One of Its Kind. 'The Von Rydingsvard School of Art Wood-Carving has the distinction of being the only one in the country devoted exclusively to this art, with its accompanying study of design and historic ornament."

"His founder, Karl von Rydingsvard, is a descendant of the old Swedish noble families. One of the most cherished possessions now hanging in his New York studio is a sword used by one of his ancestors in fighting against Peter the Great in Russia. He received his training in the technical school of Stockholm, and after having worked at the bench long enough to acquire a complete mastery of all branches of the art, came to this country and began to teach. The widespread and continually increasing interest in this art at the present time is largely due to his efforts. His small private classes soon grew into a school in which a large proportion of the best teachers in this country have received their training. He has introduced his system in the teachers' college of Columbia university, Rhode Island School of Design, Boys' Institute of Boston, New York School of Ethical Culture, Manchester Institute of Arts and Sciences and many private schools."

"The professor's work is well known having been exhibited at the National Sculptor's society, the Architectural league, the National Society of Craftsmen in New York and the best exhibitions elsewhere."

"King Gunnar's Fleet. His commissions are usually executed at his summer studio at Brunswick, Me. One of these was three large oblong panels for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtis James' yacht, which is the largest ever built. They are placed on the walls of the main saloon of the New York Herald office. The art critic of the New York Herald of July 12, 1913, has this to say of them: 'One represents King Gunnar's fleet. This is a splendid work, the movement of the ships being represented in a manner most spirited.'"

"King Gunnar, as the last of the Volungs, and with whom the race expired, rather than wait its extinction through his death in old age, summoned his men and with all his ships set sail from Rivik on the coast of Iceland. Neither he, his men, nor his ships were ever seen again. In the Norse ceremony on the death of a Viking the body was taken out to sea and burned on the ship in which as leader the Viking had traversed the deep."

"King Gunnar's fleet was an adaptation of the ancient ceremony to an entire race. As a yacht decoration this panel and its companion panels are superb. Their beauty is enhanced by a rise of ships, also carved in wood and coming above the panels."

"Many physicians have come to realize the benefit of wood carving in the treatment of nervous patients." Dr. J. Pierce Clark, nerve specialist, has during the last year had all his patients under Prof. von Rydingsvard's training with what he considered very marked benefit, both bodily and mentally.
