LIND ON WAY TO MEXICO

Envoy of the President to Reach Vera Cruz on Friday Night.

GOES MERELY AS AN ADVISOR

Official Circles at Washington Do Not Anticipate Any Remonstrance Against the President's Representative.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 7.—John Lind special representative of President Wilson of the United States, now on his way to Mexico, will be persona non grata to this government unless he brings credentials in due form, "together with recognition of the government of Mexico," according to an official statement issued late tonight.

Manuel Garza Aldape, the minister of public instruction, who is acting as minister of foreign affairs, issued a statement and had it transmitted to the United States embassy. It was also dispatched by the Mexican government to the United States and to Europe. The statement follows:

"By order of the president of the republic I declare as minister of foreign affairs ad interim that if Mr. Lind does not bring credentials in due form, together with recognition of the government of Mexico his presence in this country will not be desirable."

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 7.—The United States battleship New Hampshire, bearing John Lind of Minnesota to Mexico, as the personal representative of President Wilson, sailed enroute to Vera Cruz at 11:30 o'clock this morning. The warship is due at Vera Cruz Friday night.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Administration officials do not believe the Huerta government in Mexico really intends to send John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, as would seem to appear in last night's official statement by the Mexican acting minister of foreign affairs.

At the White House, the State department and official circles today the impression put out was that when the Huerta government was fully apprised of President Wilson's views as transmitted by Mr. Lind, a different construction would be placed on Lind's errand and Mexico would realize it as a mission of peace.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan are disposed to await the arrival of Mr. Lind in Mexico City before taking any further steps in the situation. This was made clear today at the White House. It was pointed out today that Mr. Lind goes merely as an adviser to the American embassy in Mexico City and carries credentials to neither the federal nor the constitutionalist government. He will deal with the Huerta government only through the charge d'affaires of the American embassy, so that there will be no necessity for his being received by President Huerta.

While the broad intimation from the Mexican capital that Mr. Lind will be persona non grata attracted attention to day officials were confident that no contingency would occur which would afford an opportunity for any overt remonstrance against Mr. Lind's presence. The envoy is expected to transmit the opinions of the American government in such a way as to reflect only the friendliness of the United States government toward the Mexican people and no political in interest in the factional warfare. He will make clear that what the American government desires to establish is a constitutional government legally set up, and it has no concern with the personnel of the candidates.

It was recognized here, however, that it was within the range of possibility for the Huerta government openly to show its disapproval of Mr. Lind's mission, and while no drastic measures to enforce the opinion of the Washington government was planned it was suggested that the United States might in such an event feel justified in lifting the embargo on arms or recognition of the belligerents.

CLARK RESOLUTION GOES TO FOOT OF THE SENATE CALENDAR

Senator Bacon declared the Clark resolution went further than disrespect to the president; it flouted him in the face. "The president of the United States is face to face with the gravest emergency that has confronted us since I have been a member of the senate," said Mr. Bacon. "It is much graver than that which faced us in the Cuban situation. That was a tempest in a teapot compared with what we may be required to do—to establish order in Mexico and maintain it for a generation or two."

"And when the president stands face to face with this tremendous responsibility, this unseparable duty; when he, a man whose integrity and good faith we all recognize, seeks to settle it, for us to adopt this resolution, which can be based on no other basis than the failure of the president's plan, is to do nothing but to flout him in the face."

Members of the foreign relations committee, without regard to party, had agreed, said Chairman Bacon, to let the president go ahead with his attempt to peacefully solve the Mexican situation and not to interfere until the president's efforts have had a fair trial.

President is Criticized. Senator William Alden Smith called attention to a statement in the Congressional Record, at the request of Senator Sheppard, as to the strength of the revolutionists and declared a lobby existed in the capital spreading misinformation.

He declared the lobbyist was a man who stood at the elbow of the late President Madero and who had been given a hearing by the foreign relations committee (Colonel Hay). He urged that the senate should be warned against such misinformation and added that he believed the president and the secretary of state were acting on misinformation and unfounded statements.

Senators Smith and Clark criticized the course President Wilson had taken in not more fully communicating information to the senate. "I am tired of following a blind trail," said Senator Clark, declaring he wanted information whatever the outcome of Lind's mission. He declared President McKinley and others had been more frank in other times when international problems were under consideration.

"I mean no disrespect to the president of the United States," said Senator Clark, with emphasis. "This question is bigger than the president," he added.

The Clark resolution finally was forced aside and can be taken up again only by a vote of the senate. Senator Clark tried to secure a vote, but as the tariff bill had the right of way at 2 o'clock the democrats forced the resolution to the foot of the senate calendar. Senator Hoke Smith objected when Senator Clark tried to keep it before the senate for another day.

Mexican Bandits Raiding Ranches

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Anti-American demonstrations and attacks on American property about Acapulco have been reported, according to today's State department advice. The last attempt was made by bandits on Stephens brothers' ranch. Money was demanded and horses and cattle stolen. Consul Edwards says very little protection is being afforded outside of the larger towns. Official dispatches from Guaymas confirm reports that the town is in a state of siege with the streets barricaded and the food supply very short.

ROBBERY OF OMAHA MAN SENDS TWO TO PRISON

YANKTON, S. D., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Lee Blair at a special term of circuit court pleaded guilty to robbing George Mortenson of Omaha of $5 and was sentenced to the state penitentiary for seven years. Clyde Braughman, who confessed as an accomplice, was given five years.

Hotel Stewards to Boston Next Year. ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—Boston was chosen as the place for the 1915 convention and National Hotel Stewards' association in San Francisco for the 1916 meeting by the men, sole representative of Los Angeles, made a strong fight for that city with the reports that the San Francisco hotelmen would be too busy with their fellow workers.

CRUSHED UNDER AEROPLANE

Colonel Cody, Anglo-American Aviator, and Evans Are Killed.

MACHINE FALLS WITH A CRASH

Three Hundred Feet Above Ground When the Plane Goes Wrong and Drops Them Through Space.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Colonel F. S. Cody, Anglo-American aviator, was killed in an aeroplane accident at Aldershot today and a passenger he was carrying also met death.

Cody was trying out a new aeroplane when he met his death. In the machine with him was a passenger named Evans. They were flying over the open country in the Aldershot district and had just reached the government house when their machine began traveling badly and finally fell with a crash to the ground. Several officials rushed to the spot and found the bodies of Cody and Evans lying beneath the machine.

Cody was the most interesting figure in aviation in the British Isles. He was a real soldier of fortune, with a very varied career behind him. He was well known to the public in England and very popular. He wore a sombrero, a long mustache, an imperial and long hair and was almost an exact replica of "Buffalo Bill" of the United States. He came to England a number of years ago from the United States, where he had been a cowboy in the west. He had a severe struggle to obtain a start in England. After giving precariously for a while he attracted the attention of the experts in the British war office on account of his display of natural gifts of construction, particularly in aerial machines. He was said to be able to build anything in the way of a flying machine or balloon.

Evans was member of the Indian civil service who had obtained leave of absence to come to England to study aviation.

The aeroplane was flying at an altitude of between 300 and 300 feet when it fell. Members of the royal flying corps removed the bodies and an inquest is to be held tomorrow.

Cody's neck was broken and both of Evans' legs were fractured in the fall. Cody's sons, Leon and Frank, were eye witnesses of the accident, which was attributed by experts to faulty construction, the body of the craft proving too heavy for the wings. The machine, they say, appeared to struggle up, the wings suddenly shooting upward and the whole structure collapsing.

imposed on them and occasionally it has become highly important that he should know the real facts in reference to charges preferred against them. "The suggestion that the Department of Justice is maintaining a system of espionage over the courts and judges of the country is entirely without foundation. The conduct of judges and the actions of the courts have very seldom been the subject of inquiry by its agents and in these few instances specific complaints seemed imperatively to have required ascertainment of the real facts."

Telephone Values Are Given a Boost

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—The State Tax commission is closing up its figures on telephone assessments and, while it will take several days to get summaries of the totals of all the companies in the state, there will be an immense increase in such valuations. The three big companies operating in the state, the Dakota Central, Nebraska Bell and Northwestern, have been increased from practically $600,000 last year to over $2,000,000 this year. These companies and increases are:

	1912.	1913.
Dakota Central.....	$1,253,068	$2,292,045
Nebraska Bell.....	285,432	83,024
Northwestern.....	458,495	684,553

The heavy increase in the Nebraska company's valuation is largely accounted for by the lines acquired west of the Missouri river the last year, in which they secured practically control of the territory.

ONE KILLED, FIVE HURT, AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

WEBSTER CITY, Ia., Aug. 7.—(Special Telegram.)—In a freight train collision with an auto, two miles east of Duncombe, on the Illinois Central, late this afternoon five persons were injured and one killed.

Ollie Nelson, owner and driver of the car, and sister, Mrs. Porter, and Henry Gunderson are probably fatally hurt. Two small children of Mrs. Porter escaped with less serious injuries. Mrs. Henry Gunderson was fatally injured and died soon after reaching the hospital.

Nelson had been driving the car less than a week and the engine went dead on him at the crossing just as the train rushed upon him. The train was stopped and the injured brought to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital in this city.

NEW SOUTH DAKOTA TOWN IS BORN WITH AUCTION

YANKTON, S. D., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Heaton, S. D., was born and ushered into official existence Tuesday, and is half way between Platte and Geddes, on the Milwaukee extension from Yankton. A special from this city went to the site with W. E. Heaton of Yankton, owner of the townsite, on board, and Colonel Hillman of Sioux City as auctioneer. A large assemblage of people greeted the special train and at 2 p. m. the sale of lots commenced, with 500 people present, standing in the hot sun, so as to procure the lots they desired. Lots for churches, elevator, saloon, bank, stores, etc., were quickly bought at good prices.

Omaha Man Falls Heir to Nearly Two Million Dollar Estate

FREDERICK GROSS VON ALVENSLEBEN, HELPER AROUND THE HOME OF W. W. UMSTED, INHERITS BIG ESTATE IN THE OLD COUNTRY.

POOR MAN HEIR TO MILLIONS

that his mother had died and he was heir to an estate valued at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 near Danzig, Prussia; that $250,000 in cash was in a Danzig bank subject to his order; that the $,000,000 estate was his disposal. Von Alvensleben instructed the consul to at once wire the bank to hold all moneys due him until further orders. He goes to Chicago tonight on his way to Germany.

He Hated His Mother.

Von Alvensleben's story is a strange one, full of bitter personal hatred, wild love and almost unbearable tragedy. Seated on the porch of the Umsted home, a tall lean man, a little round of the shoulder, hands knobby and gnarled, he told the story in broken English; the story of "a sweet little nurse in a Danzig hospital, a stony-hearted mother, a marriage against the mother's will and the hard struggle for a livelihood in America; hopes dead after the Johnstown flood in which his wife and two children were drowned; tragedy on tragedy."

"My life is ended," Fritz abruptly declared during the recital of the events in his dramatic life. "There's nothing left for me! My wife and children are dead. My mother murdered them. I told her she murdered them, and the only thing I asked of life was permission to die, before my mother. But you, want to hear my story? Then I'll begin at the beginning."

"There were four sons, and I was my father's favorite. My mother's favorite was the youngest son. One day my boys were standing in the yard looking at the teams hitched outside. We decided to have a ride and drove off in one of the wagons. My younger brother fell out of the wagon and broke his neck. We carried him back to the house and my mother called down curses upon us. She said the rest of us could go hang; that the dead brother was the only one which meant anything to her."

In Love With His Nurse.

"While in the army I fell sick and was taken to a hospital in Danzig. A little nurse girl cared for me and pulled me through. I told my father I loved the little nurse and wanted to marry her. He said, 'Go ahead, my boy, and do what you like.' My mother said I should marry none but a lady. I told her I intended to marry the little nurse and was quarreled and I left the place and told her that as long as she lived I would never sleep under the parental roof again nor accept one cent of my revenues. And I didn't."

"The little nurse girl and I were married and came to America. The struggle here was hard. We settled in Johnstown and I engaged in gardening. The flood wiped out everything. My wife and two sons were drowned. Their bodies were never recovered. I wandered then all over America. Out of my savings I bought five acres of land in Louisiana and intended to spend my years gardening there. But the levee broke and the bayou swept over the place and ruined it. Then I left. I have been with Mr. and Madam Umsted since April. I panned my gold watch, a family heirloom, at St. Joseph to get money to come on to Omaha."

Says Mother is Murderer. "Only once have I been back to Germany, and that was seven years ago. I got into Danzig and went to my mother's house at 6 o'clock in the afternoon. I shook hands with her as I would with a stranger and I told her: 'You are the murderer of my wife and children. You drove me from home. I only ask that I may die before you do, that life may be as hard as possible for you. You have made it as hard as you could for me.'"

"I do not want to live there. I will spend my time traveling. I'm going back now to arrange affairs and then I'll leave them as they are managed now. I will spend my winters in Florida, and probably the months of May and June in Germany, for it is fine there then, a paradise. I will come back to America in September and October and will tour through Yellowstone park. That is one place I haven't seen. But now there is a fire under my feet and I must be going."

When Von Alvensleben came to America he dropped all but the first part of his name and has been known for twenty-seven years, except to the German consul in Chicago, as Frederick Gross. During the hard years when his heart was so bitter his disposition remained cheerful and, although 63 years old now, he is strong and healthy and apparently happy, despite his assertion that his life is ended. He is not very enthusiastic about his $2,000,000.

He is a Good Gardener.

The photographer asked von Alvensleben to pose for a picture. "What?" he said; "why, I haven't had a picture taken for twenty-five years." He was pleased as a schoolboy and insisted on brushing his hair before the picture was taken. He asked that he might be taken with his chickens and ducks about him. He threw off his coat and hat and called the chickens together and stood there feeding them while the photographer made snaps of him.

"I'd take these chickens back with me," he told Mr. Umsted, "but we've got lots of ducks and chickens at Ostrometako." Ostrometako is the name of the family estate.

"He's been a good gardener," said Mr. Umsted. "One of the finest fellows you ever saw. There are a lot of weeds over there he ought to cut, but I don't feel like asking him to do it now."

When the newspaper men were ready to leave Mr. Umsted asked "write" to see if the oil in the auto was running right. Quick as a flash the lank German sprang to the task.

"Well, well," said Umsted as he watched von Alvensleben with a genial eye. "It's probably the last chance I'll get to order a millionaire around like that."

Fire Bugs Continue Work in Atlantic

ATLANTIC, Ia., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Another fire, evidently of incendiary origin, broke out in the Rock Island ice house, destroying the building. The loss is $1,500, covered by insurance. Detective J. A. Tracy from the state fire marshal's office of Des Moines is here investigating the situation.

Members of the Forsythe family, whose big annual reunions have become events, are preparing to hold the tenth gathering at the home of B. C. Forsythe, in Ottumwa, August 21.

The family has a regular association, of which G. R. Forsythe of Kirksville is president; James E. Forsythe, Peru, Neb., vice president, and Mrs. Jennie Warren, Indianapolis, Ia., secretary-treasurer.

The city council passed an ordinance extending the fire limits of the city to include the territory in which were located the buildings burned in the fire of Sunday morning and also to include the east side of Poplar street up to the corner of Fourth, where stands the Phoenix saloon building. This means that

XII. Home Rule Charter—Comparative Length

What is in it—what is not in it—what it means.

Our last charter talk explained, in answer to the criticism aimed at the length of the charter, the reason why the charter draft is not shorter. But the question of length, as a matter of fact, is largely one of comparison. The 1905 Omaha charter constitutes a pamphlet of ninety-seven pages, and would make about half as much more if all the amendments and new chapters since enacted by the legislature were incorporated into it.

Our new home rule charter when printed will make between three and four pages of newspaper print in The Bee. St. Paul, Minn., has just framed a new home rule charter which, in the newspaper publication there, takes up about the same space.

The bulkiest city charter of all is that under which New York City is governed, which, printed in fine type, three columns to the page, makes a book of 195 large pages.

The shortest charter on record is that of the city of Spokane, which in pamphlet form takes up only twenty-seven pages, but has but the bare outline of a government vested with general powers only.

The charter of Denver is embodied in a volume of 188 pages. The charter of Seattle makes a pamphlet of 110 pages. The charter of Los Angeles is kept within a booklet of ninety pages. The charter of Kansas City makes a volume of 238 pages.

By comparison Omaha's new home rule charter is a reasonably short document.

henceforth no one will be allowed to erect a building in this territory unless it be fireproof.

Storm Near Pierre Does Much Damage

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 7.—(Special Telegram.)—The storm last night carried down telephone lines to the north, where there was considerable hail, and small structures were demolished. In eastern Sully county lightning struck and fired the fine farm home of F. Dehner, with total loss of the structure and contents.

TERRIBLE ITCHING OF SKIN TROUBLE

Small Red and Yellow Spots on Leg, Covered with Dry Scale. Had to Walk Floor Nights. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 3, Clarkfield, Minn.—"My trouble was of long standing. It started with some small red and yellow spots about the size of a pin head on top covering the affected part and when the scales were falling off the itching was more than I could stand at times. The first year I did not mind it so much as it was only itching very badly at times, but the second year it advanced all around my leg and the itching was terrible. I had to be very careful to have my clothing around the affected part very loose. At night time I often happened to scratch the sore in my sleep. Then I had to stand up, get out of bed and walk the floor."

"Then I read the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I wrote for a sample and got it. To my surprise I was feeling relief after the second application. So I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and when I had used them I was nearly over the itching, so I got another box and that healed it all up so I looked smooth and sane. I kept on with the Cuticura Soap for six weeks and the cure was complete." (Signed) S. O. Gordon, Nov. 20, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c, and Cuticura Ointment 50c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 25-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.
