

J. J. KANE DIES FROM WOUND

Fatally Stabbed by Unknown Person in South Omaha Alley.

TWO MEN HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

Circumstances Lead the Police to Believe Both Know Something About Assault Made with Sharp Instrument.

J. J. Kane, a tinner for Morris & Co., recently from 706 Exposition avenue, Dakota Terr., was found to death yesterday in the alley running between N and O streets from Twenty-sixth to Twenty-seventh street. The man was stabbed with some long instrument that penetrated his intestines and reached to the region of the kidneys. He was found some time after midnight in his rooming house at Twenty-sixth and N streets and taken to the South Omaha hospital, where he died at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

The police arrested Gus Seibert, time-keeper for Morris & Co., who resides at 415 North Twenty-fourth street, and I. W. Carter, also employed by Morris & Co., Wilma Martin, a negro woman rooming at Ben Kusio's hotel on the N street end of the alley, was also brought to the station this morning.

Headed Men Quarreling. The murder was done midway between the notorious black dive under the O street viaduct and the old Roosevelt hotel, now known as the Kusio hotel and run by Steven Miloski. Miloski and his wife say they were attracted by the sound of men quarreling about 11:30 o'clock and saw what appeared to be a scuffle. Then a small man, supposed to be Kane, ran from the alley toward Twenty-sixth street with a tall man behind him. Seibert is tall. Miloski says a short, stout man walked slowly behind the first two and that the tall man called back to him to come on, using a vile epithet.

Carries Negroes. According to Miloski the three made north on Twenty-sixth street, where he lost sight of them. After 1 o'clock the police found Kane on the second floor of Mrs. Smeal's boarding house at Twenty-sixth and N streets. He could give no account of the stabbing, but muttered something about "d-n niggers." Dr. E. F. Shanahan, who attended the injured man, found that the instrument used had penetrated nearly through the body.

Reputation as Fighter. Seibert lives with his wife at 415 North Twenty-fourth street, where, he says, he runs a rooming house. He is a young man and the police say he has the reputation of being a fighter. Seibert says he was out with Kane and Carter. He admits being in the alley and of having been down to the negro dive at the end of the alley, but says he was unable to get into the place. He says that as they walked north out of the alley Kane and Carter stopped to talk with a negro. He claims to have bid them good night at this juncture. A few minutes later as he walked towards Twenty-sixth street, he says, Kane came running behind him and told him he had been stabbed. He says he was assisting the wounded man when arrested. Seibert says as he left the alley he was met by a negro man.

"All Were Pretty Fair." Carter is a heavy set man of 35. He says he is innocent of the deed. Carter came from Kansas City two weeks ago to work on the Morris plant. He has a wife and two children at 201 Terrace street, he says. He admits talking with a negro in the alley, but says he left Seibert and Kane before the talk ended. "We were all pretty full, I guess," he told a reporter.

Wilma Martin and Charles Martin, negroes living at the Kusio hotel, according to the proprietor of the place, had a rousing time last night. Miloski, the proprietor, says the woman ran out into the alley three times after the fight. He says she was laughing and crying as though under the influence of dope. She offered Miloski 75 cents to come and help put Martin to bed. Miloski says he was afraid and refused to go. The woman says she was with another woman at the black dive under the viaduct.

The black dive on the south end of the alley is within the shadow of the O street viaduct. It has been raided time and again by the police, but each time reopens. Negro parties from Omaha come down at all hours and it is said white men frequent the place.

Poor Babies' Fund is Cut Down by the Vandalism of Boys

While the Visiting Nurses look in more money from their connection at the band concert Thursday night at Curtis Turner park than they have at any of the previous concerts where they have served, their profits were cut considerably by the vandalism of boys who stole some of the refreshments.

One group of lads was caught making away with a five-gallon tub of ice cream. Boys also stole 12 worth of candy which was in large cartons which had not been opened. They secured this by crawling through the bushes to the rear of the main concession booth. A case of pop was also swiped. In spite of these handicaps a neat sum, estimated at about 140, was raised for the baby fund.
