EXPECT TO DEPORT THAW

Canadian Officials Plan to Send Him to Vermont.

JEROME SAYS HE IS HOPEFUL

Prisoner Shows Little Interest in Anything Except His Publicity Campaign — Sends Many Letters and Telegrams.

BULLETIN. Quebec, Aug. 26.—Harry K. Thaw's Canadian attorneys late today withdrew the writ of habeas corpus obtained last week in his behalf and the fugitive from Matteawan will not be arraigned in the superior court tomorrow morning as had been expected. The withdrawal of the writ may prolong the proceedings indefinitely.

SHERRBROOKE, Quebec, Aug. 26.—The possibility of a long-drawn-out fight in the courts over the constitutionality of Canada's drastic immigration act, under which it is proposed to deport Harry K. Thaw was the theme today of both factions gathered at Sherbrooke.

Going over the situation informally, William T. Jerome and District Attorney Conner of Dutchess county sat by a roaring wood fire in the dining house, the storm center, since Thaw's arrival of nearly all conferences about him.

"I can't express an opinion on every theoretic defense suggested by Thaw's lawyers," said Jerome. "We hope to get him back to Matteawan, where he belongs, but it does look as though we were in for a siege."

Thaw Sends Telegrams. Thaw continued to show little interest in anything except his publicity plans. He is smiling and telegraphing statements to papers in Vermont, where, notwithstanding all the theories of court delay here, he apparently expects to be deported. He also insisted again today that in view of Jerome's presence here, he wanted his lawyers to reissue a statement quoting Jerome as saying in New York in 1902 that Thaw was sane.

T. B. Williams of the Dominion Immigration department was quoted today as saying he placed no faith in Thaw's chances of testing the immigration act in the courts.

"We believe Harry Thaw will be promptly deported," he said, "and we don't put much faith in this story that he can make an international affair of his case. Our duty is simple. We will give Thaw a hearing. As soon as he is turned down by the minister of the interior, as I have every reason to believe he will be, then we will take Thaw to Vermont and turn him loose. That will settle our end of the affair. What happens in Vermont is none of our affair."

Counsel for Thompson. "Gentleman Roger" Thompson sent a message to his widowed mother in New York telling her not to worry. His case, on a charge of aiding a lunatic to cross the border, will come up before a police judge here on Friday.

Thompson has not receded from his determination not to "quail" and tell all about his driving Thaw from Matteawan in the black car. His threat last week to tell all resulted in the employment of counsel for him by the Thaw family, and in other ways Roger has been made so comfortable for the time being that he prefers to say nothing.

PRESIDENT DELAYS MESSAGE FOR DAY AT HUERTA'S REQUEST

national comity in the obligations of treaties.

"Such recognition, if afforded, would imply a belief that the government so recognized will faithfully execute its duties and observe the spirit of its treaties. The recognition of a president in Mexico by the United States has an important moral influence, which, as you explained, is appreciated as the capital of that republic."

"It aims to strengthen the power and lengthen the tenure of the incumbent, and if, as you say, the example of the United States in that regard is one that other nations are disposed to follow, such recognition would not be without effect—both on the international and external peace of Mexico. You justly remark that in fifty years there have been about sixty changes of administration in Mexico and it may be added that those administrations have been longest lived that were most faithful and friendly in the discharge of their treaty obligations to the United States."

Immediately on assembling the house passed the necessary resolution for a joint session at 1 o'clock tomorrow to hear President Wilson's address.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, left here this morning for Vera Cruz. He is accompanied by Luis D'Astous, an attaché to the American embassy. The understanding here is that from Vera Cruz Mr. Lind will continue his journey to Washington. Scores of Americans filed the train on which Mr. Lind made the run from here to the port of Vera Cruz.

Irrigation Works in Progress. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 26.—Colonel W. H. Holabird, receiver of the California Development company, who has charge of the Imperial Valley Irrigation system, left today to watch the situation which developed yesterday with a fight between Mexican federalists and insurgents at Sharp's Head, the intake of the system south of the international line.

All of the sources of water supply for the irrigation system lie in the Mexican territory of lower California. During the last insurrection in lower California the ranchers of Imperial valley urged the United States government to send troops to Sharp's Head to protect the water supply.

According to dispatches today from Calexico the insurgents are now encamped at Black Butte, at the head of the Volcanic lake. This lake is the head of navigation for vessels coming up from the Gulf of California, and the rebels said they expected reinforcements from the constitutional army in Sonora.

Germans Will Protect Canal. CALEXICO, Cal., Aug. 26.—Governor Gomez of lower California arrived at Calexico today and took charge of the situation. The federal garrison of about 250 men continued preparations to fight the insurgents, who, after their attack on the irrigation canal guard at Sharp's Head yesterday, retired to Black Butte, a strategic point at the head of navigation on Volcanic lake.

J. C. Allison, chief engineer of the California Transportation company, reported to Receiver Holabird at Los Angeles today that he had been assured there was no danger to the big irrigation system of the Imperial valley. Allison and his men were not molested in any way by either side.

A Mexican close to the insurgents was authority for the statement that the present revolution in Lower California is confined exclusively to Mexicans, there being no Americans involved, as was the case in the revolution of 1911, when Mexican socialists and American industrial workers of the world invaded the territory with the avowed intention of establishing a modern utopia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Troops will be dispatched to protect Sharp's Head, the intake of the Imperial Valley Irrigation project from the Colorado river, whenever the State department asks the war office to do so. Residents of the valley, alarmed by a Mexican attack on the works, have asked Secretary Bryan for troops and he is considering the request.

Michael Maybrick, Musical Composer, Dies in England

BUXTON, England, Aug. 26.—Michael Maybrick, an English musical composer, who, under the name of "Stephen Adams," wrote some of the most popular songs in the English language, among them "Nancy Lee," "The Warrior Bold" and the "Holy City," died here today at the age of 59.

Michael Maybrick was a younger brother of James Maybrick, whose wife, Florence Maybrick, was sentenced to death at the Liverpool assizes in 1890 on a charge of poisoning him with arsenic. The trial caused an immense sensation throughout the world, opinion being sharply divided on the question of her guilt or innocence. Her sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life. She served sixteen years in prison and was released in 1906, after which she went to the United States.

Her brother-in-law, Michael Maybrick, took charge of her two children, whom she never saw after her release from prison.

JAPAN AGAINST GERMANY

Great Britain Wanted to Include Kaiser in Alliance.

DIARY REVEALS SECRETS

Correspondence Shows That Mikado Objected to Proposed Deal and Threatened to Treat with Russia.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The revelations that the diplomatic negotiations which finally resulted in the Anglo-Japanese alliance, first contemplated an Anglo-German-Japanese alliance and that Germany was largely instrumental in starting them, but was shut out by Japan, is made in the diary of the late Count Tadasu Hayashi, former Japanese ambassador to Great Britain and twice foreign minister, part of which has just come to light.

The excerpts, whose authenticity is not questioned, are expected to have a tremendous effect in European politics as showing the desire of the British government for an alliance with Germany.

The Jiji Shimpo of Tokyo printed portions of the Hayashi diary, but the Japanese government prohibited further publication and the censor suppressed telegrams sent by foreign correspondents in Japanese reporting details.

The diary showed that the British government, under the premiership of the late marquis of Salisbury, was in favor of the inclusion of Germany, but that Japan opposed it. Count Hayashi, in alliance hinted that Japan was ready to ally itself with Russia if Great Britain was unwilling.

Germany Takes Initiative. Baron Hermann von Eckhardstein, charge d'affaires of the German embassy in London, according to the diary, made several visits to Count Hayashi during the spring of 1901. In proposing the formation of a triple alliance among Great Britain, Germany and Japan he said he knew that the British government and such personages as Joseph Chamberlain, Arthur J. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne, the duke of Devonshire and the marquis of Salisbury were in favor of it. He said that the German nation was strongly anti-British, but not the German government. He added that King Edward, Emperor William and Imperial Chancellor Von Bulow had long conversations on the subject at Osborne, in the Isle of Wight, and were anxious for such a triple alliance.

Count Hayashi finally approached Lord Lansdowne, then British secretary of state for foreign affairs, officially suggesting an Anglo-Japanese agreement on policy in China. Lord Lansdowne in reply said he thought a third power should be included. A program was roughly drafted at that time and this afterward became the treaty of alliance.

Japan Keeps Out Germany. Japan suggested that a third party should be omitted from the alliance because Anglo-Japanese interests were identical. Great Britain, however, for some time clung to the idea of a triple alliance, according to Count Hayashi, as it was anxious for an alliance with Germany in order to isolate the Franco-Russian alliance in any action it might take in the far east or elsewhere.

In the end the Japanese wish prevailed. The continuation of the diary showing why Count Hayashi opposed the inclusion of Germany has not been published.

Congress of Hygiene Discusses Infection and Tuberculosis

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Dr. Charles V. Chapin, commissioner of schools for the state of Rhode Island, was among those who today addressed the Fourth International Congress on School Hygiene, now in session in Buffalo. Dr. Chapin's subject was the disinfection of school rooms, and he said:

"The way to prevent infection in school is to teach personal cleanliness. Abolish the drinking glass and the towel used in common. Keep careful watch of contagious diseases and exclude them. Then, if desired, though it is of little importance, the use of the patient and other things touched by him may be thoroughly cleaned, with a disinfectant if you will. The fumigation of school rooms is a concession to the prejudice of the past."

Dr. Mary E. Lapham of Highlands, N. C., selected as her subject the prevention of tuberculosis by the medical inspection of schools. Dr. Lapham said: "Tuberculosis must be studied where it starts in the public schools, so that we may overcome it in our children and thus cut off our future supply of consumptives. The child is father to the man, and to prevent the death of the father we must begin with the child."

Dr. Walter W. Roach, who is supervisor of school medical inspection in Philadelphia, said:

"The beneficial effect of open windows on the health and scholastic progress of pupils can be attributed to the following: 'Volumes of pure, fresh, cool air roll into the room with none of its vital qualities impaired by artificial handling. Nature's proper proportion of moisture is mixed with this atmosphere and nature's variation is a beneficial change. Ventilating engineers have made the mistake of trying to establish a norm, and sticking to it.'" the society's debts. The society pays interest on deposits and loans to its members at 5 or 6 per cent; and gives to each band of farmers the money with which it can finance co-operative selling, buying and producing organizations.

The other kind of credit is found in mortgage bond societies which hold long-time mortgages bearing a moderate interest and automatically discharging part of their principle each year.

"This form of mortgage credit would mean more money for machinery, more or purchasing land and for developing poor land," said Senator Fletcher in his report. "It means fewer tenants and more owners. It means better rural-like conditions."

Personal Credits Needed. The preliminary statement prepared by the rural credits commission and contained in Senator Fletcher's report, said in part:

"The organizations for the provision of personal credit facilities are as highly developed as are the systems of commercial banking. The prevailing rate of interest paid by the farmers for short-time loans is from 4 to 5 1/2 per cent. The terms offered European farmers are generally better designed to meet the regular requirements of agriculturists than are the terms obtainable today by the American farmers."

"The 'personal credit' organizations, it added, are usually co-operative societies. "These short time credit societies furnish cheap, safe and elastic credit to their members by reason of their control by farmers and are organizations exclusively in the interest of farmers, who operate them at nominal cost and without seeking dividend profit to such societies," said the statement.

"It is the opinion of many leaders of this movement in Europe that the question of rural credit ought not to be divorced from co-operation for business purposes and the general organization of community life in rural districts. The studies of the commission emphasize the necessity of defining the functions, on the one hand of the government, and on the other of voluntary organizations, in promoting the development of country life."

How Commission Worked. The commission on rural credits, with representatives of the American government, twenty-nine states, four Canadian provinces of several independent American organizations, went to Europe in April, a year after the Southern Commercial congress and David Lubin of the International Institute of Agriculture, had begun the movements for its appointment.

Its members studied the farming and credit systems of eighteen principal European countries, receiving the close cooperation of the State department, the governments of foreign countries and business and financial interests abroad.

Senator Fletcher in his report today to the governors urged them to undertake earnest co-operation with the Rural Credits commission, which has established permanent headquarters in Washington. The first active steps of a national character, he indicated, will be toward the establishment of an adequate system of rural banking, through which a great scheme of co-operation and country development can be built up.

Railroads Are After Farmers Who Ship Hogs with Cholera

WEBSTER CITY, Ia., Aug. 26.—(Special.)—A railroad detective who has been spending several days in this city, has thrown condemnation into farmers and shippers who have been handling hogs from farms infected with cholera. Probably not in the history of Hamilton county has the cholera been so bad as this year and as a result farmers have been marketing their stuff freely, fearing the disease.

The railroads are interested in the matter because an unusual number of hogs shipped out of this part of the state died in the cars before they reach the market and claims are made against the companies for this loss.

A farmer in Boone county, convicted of marketing cholera hogs, was fined $500 the other day and this fact has added to the agitation apparent among farmers and shippers here since the advent of the railroad detective. To add to the discomfiture of the pork raisers, people hereabouts have almost ceased to eat pork. This and the scourge of cholera has tended to shoot the price downward and the farmers are bound, at best, to lose largely on their hogs this year.

While the railroads as yet have caused no arrests, it is broadly hinted that later developments will cause the apprehension of several alleged guilty parties—the charges, of course, being that of marketing diseased meat.

WOMAN BLOWN FROM DEPOT

Appeal in Supreme Court from Clay County Judgment.

BLAST OF EXHAUST STEAM

Mrs. Wilson, in Direct Path of Same from Electric Company Near Depot in Harvard, is Thrown Out of Window.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Aug. 26.—(Special.)—The Harvard Electric company has appealed to the supreme court from a judgment secured by Mrs. Martha J. Wilson in the Clay county district court for damages in the amount of $1,000.

Mrs. Wilson sued the Harvard electric company jointly with the Northwestern railway company because of damages sustained by being blown out of a window of the station of the railway company while accompanying some friends to the station and waiting for the train.

She sets out that the Harvard Electric company has its power house across the street and in close proximity to the railway station. The pipe which carries the steam from the exhaust is situated in such a manner that it blows the steam toward that depot. While sitting in the depot talking with her friends who were waiting for the train, the steam from the pipe was suddenly forced through the pipe with such force that it threw dirt into the depot, striking her with such force that she was blown through a window and permanently injured.

She sets out that before the injury she was an able-bodied woman, and could do a full day's washing, go out to the field and shock grain and, in fact, take the place of an able-bodied man in the harvest field, but that now she is physically unable to do this any more and sued for $1,000 damages.

The court ruled that the railway company could not be held for any damages and the jury in the case considered that about $1,000 would make the thing all right. However, the electric company thinks otherwise and appeals the case. The Interstate Silo company of Spokane, Wash., has petitioned the State Railway commission under the blue sky law for permission to issue and sell $100,000 worth of stock in its company in this state. The stock is placed at $100 per share. The company has a capital of $200,000 and is subsidiary to the silo company owned by the Woods Bros. of Lincoln. The company will sell its silos in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, Idaho and Montana. The commission has granted the company a temporary right on the application.
