

The Society Bee-Hive

BY MELLIFICIA. Wednesday, August 27, 1913.

O H, SAY, did you see those clever rhymes and pictures by James Montgomery Flagg on "Why They Parted" in the current American? They are about as pointed satires on divorce in high society as you could find. Here are a few of them, the rhymes, not the pictures:

SHE BELIEVED LADY'S MAGAZINES.
He stood for whipped cream on his kid-ney sautes.
He even took syrup on stew;
But he couldn't go cherries in thick may-onaise—
So he left her to start life anew!

CONSISTENT PARTY—WHAT?
He didn't come home much—he liked to be free.
No matter how festive the season;
She married because she was lonely, you see—
She divorced him for just the same reason.

DON'T YOU JUST LOVE MORALS?
She skipped abroad often for months at a clip;
She came home one time and she found
Her place had been filled by a yellow-haired snip—
And the moral is—just stick around!

Mrs. Cornwall Puffington Clancy De-Brin
Has left her friend husband, the paper says—
He bragged night and day of his long pedigree,
But snuffed and went out when she started on hers!

O YOU DOUBLE STANDARD!
He left her because she smoked cigs and blew rings
And gambled and swore in their flat—
She mentioned the fact that he did the same things—
He said, "We won't talk about that!"

AND BEFORE COMPANY, TOO.
Does its hubby-wub lub its killy?
Are its eyes-ways booties boo?
Does it still sink its tooties in pity?
That's why he snuk to Peru!

RETURN TO LATE CLOSING

Retailers Decide to Keep Open Stores Saturday Night.

BUSINESS AFFECTED BY CHANGE

Ten Thousand Names of Patrons of Stores Signed to Petitions Presented by Association of Retail Clerks.

Retail stores of Omaha will go back to 9 o'clock closing on Saturday nights beginning a week from next Saturday. This was decided at a meeting of retailers held at the Paxton hotel yesterday. Forty firms were represented.

Secretary J. W. Metcalfe of the association put the question directly to every representative, as to his opinion of the effect of the 8 o'clock Saturday night closing that had been in effect throughout August. Each man was asked whether in his opinion it should be continued. A majority of the men said that it had affected business in such a way that they were of the opinion the stores should be kept open later Saturday nights. It was so ordered and the dictum will go into effect a week from Saturday.

Eleven Deaths in This City Directly Caused by the Heat

Eleven persons died in Omaha in June, July and August from causes directly due to intense heat and at least twelve other deaths were indirectly due to the hot weather, while the prostrations were so numerous that no records were kept of them.

Seven of the eleven deaths occurred in July and two in June. Two have died this month.
The summer now drawing to a close has been more deadly than for many years. Health Commissioner E. W. Connell keeps down statistics by enforcing health regulations to the letter, but the heat has increased the infant death rate greatly.

Heat prostrations occurred in all parts of the city, but the sudden deaths were in the downtown business section, according to the records. Young, middle-aged and old were, apparently, equally susceptible to the heat.

Dr. Connell believes the fatalities would have been more numerous had not the citizens shown extreme caution. Constant warnings and advice forestalled carelessness.

Omaha Bankers to Get Million from Federal Treasury

That $1,000,000 will be apportioned to Omaha and $300,000 to Lincoln out of the $3,300,000 that has been set aside for Nebraska from the federal treasury for the moving of crops in the west, is the opinion of F. H. Davis, vice president of the First National bank. Mr. Davis was chairman of the committee of bankers from Omaha that attended the conference in Washington a few weeks ago at which distribution of the money which Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo proposed to loan western banks was discussed.

They will probably apportion money between the two towns at Washington," said Mr. Davis, "but in all probability Omaha will get the million, as the Lincoln representatives were a little late in getting to Washington to make their wants known.
The banks that want money out of these funds will make their wants known. Not all of the banks expect to ask for loans out of the funds. That will be a matter to be settled later after it is definitely announced what part is to come to Omaha and what will go to Lincoln.

SEPARATED FROM HUSBAND TRIES TO KILL HERSELF

Mrs. Dorce Nelson, 19 years of age, whose home has been the Flomar hotel, was found yesterday in a dying condition in her room as a result of gas poisoning. Police surgeons administered medical attention and after working with the patient for thirty minutes with the pulmotor, revived her sufficiently to be taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

Before retiring for the night Mrs. Nelson turned on the gas jet in the room and left a note to her husband, Harrison Nelson, barber, 214 South Fourteenth street, bidding him and their 2-year-old daughter, Kathlin, good-bye.
Mrs. Nelson, upon learning of his wife's attempted suicide, hurried to the hospital, where the couple have become completely reconciled. They had been separated since Sunday.

CITY COMMISSIONERS TO CONFER WITH WATTLES

The seven city commissioners, in autos belonging to the property owners in the western part of the city and to the street railway company, inspected the two proposed routes for the street car extension on Center street and Poppleton avenue. The Center street route appeared to the commissioners as the most logical, although the other route has been selected by the street railway company. The commissioners and residents of Center street will appeal to President G. W. Wattles of the street railway company to run the line on Center street.

SHAMP BACK FROM EAST; AGAIN UNION'S SECRETARY

Chauncy L. Shamp, national secretary of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, is back from Pittsburgh, where the biennial convention was held to begin his eighteenth year as national secretary. He was re-elected unanimously for two years more.
Shamp says the 70,000 members of the order who are in good standing were best pleased with the action of the convention in adopting an insurance clause of from $50 to $1,000, depending on the length of membership.

Great Crowds Now Attending Rubel's Big FIRE SALE

IT LOOKED AFTER THE FIRE

It seems that half the people of Omaha knew of our big fire of a week ago Sunday night and it required only a brief announcement of our proposed big fire sale to bring a crowd. SUCH A RUSH! Since Monday we have been absolutely unable to take care of the crowds as we would like and we have been compelled to increase our force of salespeople. It is a $40,000 stock and consists of

FURNITURE

for every room in the house, furniture of every description, also Iron and Brass Beds, Stoves, Refrigerators, Go-Carts, Carpets, Rugs, Draperies and general homefurnishings. Most of the stock is only slightly injured by smoke or small water stains but

The Insurance Companies Stood the Loss

and we are now sweeping out the goods at whatever price they will bring. Our new fall stocks are now in transit and we must clear out every article that was in any way affected by the fire and get our store in shape for the receipt of the goods in transit.

Greatest Sale of the Kind On Record

We are told by some of the oldest residents of the city that this is the greatest sale of the kind ever held in Omaha. You have never known of such a sacrifice of homefurnishings before. It stands pre-eminent today among all the big sacrifice sales ever held in this city.

Because of the greatly reduced prices at which these goods are being sold, all sales must be final and we cannot make any exchanges or refunds

Daily Fashion Hint

By LA RAONTEUSE.
Graceful and young evening dress. The kimono bodice cut in a V on front and back is developed on the left side in plain pearly chiffon, the right one in pale blue chiffon printed in cashmere colored designs. The neck and the half-long loose sleeves are edged with a simple row of smilla. A high draped Daitt bias taffeta ribbon makes the belt. The plain and round skirt is of Pannu Durter satin, partially covered by a snail of printed chiffon with cashmere designs, edged all round with a row of smilla. This tulle falls from the belt to near the bottom of the skirt at the left side to raise at the back and join the right side where it is half length shorter and gives in front an apron-like effect.

Five Policemen Needed to Hold One Suffragist

Miss Mary Sullivan of Omaha, who has been spending the summer in England and on the continent, during a recent suffragette demonstration in London was surrounded to see five huge policemen firmly holding one slender woman after having succeeded in arresting her. Miss Sullivan, in a letter to D. Clem Deaver and wife of this city, tells of her astonishment at the English way of treating the militant women. Her letter says in part:

"I was able to scramble to the top of a nearby omnibus and from this excellent vantage point I saw a woman, not very large, apparently in the hands of five big policemen—one held each of her legs, one each arm and the fifth had his hands somewhere in the ruffled clothes about her head. She still struggled a bit though apparently quite exhausted, and the five gallant captors were flanked solidly by some sixty assistants.

"To an American who had never seen a sight like that before it was a horrible spectacle. There were women on the borders of the crowd lunging recklessly with apparent intention to rescue the captive. Yet three years ago the English newspapers advertised an American foot ball game, which was to take place between picked teams from two American warships then in the Thames, as 'The Great American Game—a Field of Slaughter.'"
