BEAUX FOR LONESOME GIRLS

English Maids Get Good Company for Hire Rather Than Be Without.

To the girl who is able to choose from a legion of admirers the man whom she is pleased to honor with her smiles it must seem incredible that there are hundreds of her less favored sisters who are glad to pay for lover-like attentions such as she can afford to look coldly on every day of her life. In the East End of London, and the manufacturing towns of England especially, the finger of scorn is always ready to be pointed at the girl who has no Lothario to dance attendance on her, to escort her to picture palace or theater; and this is a situation which no daughter of Eve could tolerate.

The consequence is natural. The maid who cannot attract a lover by her charms is often very willing to pay for his company; and there is never any lack of gallants eager to play the role of squire to her for a consideration. In the busy streets on Saturday evening you will see them by the score, dressed in such finery as their pockets can afford, ready to act as squires of dames. The girl who wants their escort reviews them with critical eyes, signals to the one who takes her fancy, and the couple disappear together to spend a few hours at a picture palace or listening to the latest comic songs at a local music hall.

Of course, it is all perfectly proper. The lady hands her purse to her squire, who acts as paymaster for the outing and receives a couple of shillings as the reward of his chivalry; while she considers the money well spent for the company of an agreeable escort and for the pleasure of showing to the world that she is at least not among the nameless maids. The professional "walker-out" is really a man to be envied by his fellows. He gets abundant recreation and amusement at no cost to himself, and he makes quite a substantial addition to his other earnings in the most agreeable fashion. If he is a smart man, good to look upon—the man of whom a girl may be proud as her escort—he has no lack of engagements. In some fortunate cases he is booked up months in advance. In one case known to the writer a handsome young factory worker, who is the proud possessor of a frack coat and a tall hat, is so much in demand that, as a rule, he has no vacant date for fully six months ahead, and his earnings make a good addition to his wages.

But it is not every man who can aspire to this honorable office. The professional walker-out must be a man of good character. The loafer and he who is too fond of his "cup" either has no chance or gets short shifts. He must be an escort to be proud of. He need not be handsome, but he must at least be well dressed and an entertaining companion. The shabby man may look in vain for employment; the dull dog is soon sent about his business.

It is by no means always the unattractive girl who thus gets companionship in this strange way. Many a pretty and lonely maid finds this a useful avenue to introductions to other young men, friends of her chaperon among whom she not infrequently finds a real lover and a husband. Others there are who find the favored lover an excellent means of hurrying up a laggard wooer who is too long in coming to the proposing point.

Naturally the best "walker-out" is the smart, well-set-up Mr. Atkins, who cuts such a brave figure in his regimentals; and if he is disposed to enjoy an evening at the theater at no cost to himself while escorting a girl who desires his company who shall blame him? But whether he be one of the king's soldiers, a stalwart constable of duty or a good-looking coxter, the "walker-out" plays an important part in the life of hundreds of girls in the East End, who, without him, would lack loose companionship, and have to endure the pity and contempt of their more fortunate sisters—London Tit-Bits.
