Corn Market Given Temporary Rally by Large Purchases.

Trailing Along After Other Grains,

Small Cereal Keeps Near Shore and the Traders Are Quite

OMAHA, Sept. 5, 1918.

A group of big houses bought corn on the early dip westerday, giving the market a temporary rally, but top prices for the day were made on early trades in all if the months. There was a renewal of realizing sales through a number of the lig houses during the last hour yesterday, and this, together with the natural week. olg houses during the last hour yesterday, and this, together with the natural weekerd liquidation, which was expected, brought prices down about I cent under the best levels. Transactions of that kind were augmented by larger Chicago receipts and with a number of Illinois points reporting more liberal offerings. Many reports from Nebraska and the southwest told of continued hot weather working injury to corn and feed generally. The buil enthusiasm, however, was out of the trade for the day, and while the more important observers believe high prices will eventually obtain, they would not be surprised to see some further reaction, and also believe that such a movement would put the market in a more healthy position. Commission nouses absorbed the offerings on the break, and it was noted that the buying on the decline was of good character.

oreak, and it was noted that the huying on the decline was of good character.

Cash corn was 16% to lower.

The action of wheat, as in other grains,
was of a conservative character—at the same time the trade was a little disappointed, because the English market failed to respond to the strong advance on this side Thursday. The explanation offered in the cables was that there were more liberal offerings of new Canadian and Russian wheat. Spring wheat receipts in the northwest were of nuch larger volume, and numerous messages from that section told of a slackculing of the cash wheat situation.

Cash wheat was 140% tower.

Brokers reported a La Salle street operator as the chief buyer of oats for the day, while the local trade was inclined to take profits on holdings and following the deckine in corn.

Cash cashs were 1/20 lower.

CATTLE—There were a few cars of cattle here as usual on the last day of the week, but not enough to make a market. For the week receipts have been the largest since the beginning of the range season, arrivals consisting very largely of range cattle, but with quite a little sprinkling of corn-feds. As compared with a year ago there has been a gain of around 3,000 head in the arrivals. Good to choice corn-fed steers have been in very moderate supply throughout the week, and in consequence steady

The week's market on packing hoge has been very unsatisfactory to the selling interests. Receipts have not been heavy at any time, and the large decline registered on the first two days of the week was the result of a very slack killing demand. The decline for the six days amounts to about 20c, As a rule the markets have been weaker on the close than at any other time and on two or three occasions hogs had to be carried over, packers flatly refusing to buy them. them.
