CROWDS FILL STREETS AT GAYNOR FUNERAL

Body Taken from City Hall to St. Paul's Church, Where Services Were Conducted by Bishop Greer.

SUN PEERS THROUGH CLOUDS Single Line of Mounted Police Heads the Throng.

RAND PLAYS DEAD MARCH Coffin Ten Feet Above the Roadway on Catafalque.

DRAWN BY 16 BLACK HORSES Procession Made Up of Twenty-Five Thousand Men Escorts Body to the Church and Cemetery in Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The body of Mayor Gaynor was taken at 10:30 o'clock this morning from his resting place in the city hall to Trinity church, where Bishop Greer read over the solemn Episcopal service for the burial of the dead.

Many thousands of citizens blackened the sidewalks from curb to building line as the funeral train crept along the ten blocks of lower Broadway from the city hall to the church. The low-lying clouds lifted shortly before the long cortege started, and over the march to the church the sun shone fitfully.

Heading the throng of marchers was a single line of eight mounted police. Behind them came the police band playing the dead march, a regiment of mounted police, twelve abreast, and another regiment of police on foot in lines that stretched across Broadway from curb to curb. Next was the coffin.

With the official flag of the mayor draped over its head, the coffin lay on a catafalque, whose sombre folds of crepe were unrelieved by color. A great wreath of white chrysanthemums lay on the right of the casket, another wreath of orchids and ferns lay on the left and a third rested on the dead mayor's feet.

Drawn by Sixteen Black Horses. Sixteen coal black horses, heavy with black trappings, flanked on the right by a single file of police, on the left by firemen, drew the catafalque through the street. As the coffin passed between the two walls of spectators, held to the curb by an unbroken line of police, every man bared his head and only the blue capped patrolmen remained covered. Of these there were 5,000 in the line of march or on duty along the way of the funeral train.

The twelve honorary pall bearers, headed by William H. Taft, marched six on each side of the coffin. Behind them came official committees of city hall police-men who had come in daily contact with the mayor during his life time and the long train of organizations and individuals chosen from the many who applied for places in the funeral train. More than 2,000 had wanted to be in line, but in accord with Mrs. Gaynor's wishes only as simple services and little display as possible, less than half the number were permitted to participate.

Another Service at St. Paul's. So silent stood the throngs of spectators that the tolling of the bell in the tower of Trinity could be heard at the City Hall when the cortege started. Tens of thousands stood silently about the church during the service. The seating capacity of 800 was insufficient to provide for even a small fraction of the thousands who sought admittance. An overflow meeting was held in St. Paul's church, half a dozen blocks away.

After halting at the church while the body was taken from the catafalque to the chancel on the shoulders of six firemen and six policemen, the funeral train marched to the Battery, turning back and standing still till the conclusion of the service. Then the march was resumed to Greenwood cemetery in Brooklyn.

The city's industries marked time during the funeral services. The municipal departments were closed for the day; the New York Stock exchange did not open until noon, the Consolidated Stock exchange and several mercantile exchanges were closed all day; 1,000,000 school children participated in services in the dead mayor's memory in every public school house and thousands of firms headed the request of Mayor Kline hat business be suspended for an hour.

PROPOSAL FLATLY DECLINED Story May Explain Presence of Death Blanks in Priest's Trunk.

MURET INSURANCE BROKER Inspector Faurot Looking Into Supposed Connection of Accused Men with Johanna Hoch, Chicago Wife Murderer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Evidence that Hans Schmidt and Dr. Ernest Muret, his dentist friend, planned a campaign of murder for the purpose of collecting life insurance money reached the police today. It tended to explain the blank death certificates found in Schmidt's room.

The evidence came from a physician who told Inspector Faurot of the detective bureau that Schmidt and Muret a short time ago tried to arrange with him to issue death certificates in the event of the sudden death of persons just insured.

"I cannot divulge at this time the identity of the physician," said the inspector. "If the story told by him is true the fact stands out big and black that Father Schmidt and Dr. Muret had a plan whereby they would collect insurance money by killing several persons."

Inspector Faurot has learned, he said, that the dentist at one time in his life figured as an insurance broker.
