THE monacle has come to stay. It is chic and, besides being ornamental, is useful. Mrs. W. T. Robinson entertained at one of the larger social affairs of the week Monday evening, when she gave a bridge dinner for Miss Lucile Schraubstadter of St. Louis and for Miss Amy Gilmore. Each received a monacle with tortoise shell rim, with the black ribbon band attached with a small gold clip.

Among the guests who wore monacles at the bridge dinner were Miss Frances Hochstetler, who had a small monacle with black rim. Mr. Robert Switzer also wore a monacle.

One of the first to introduce the new style here was Mrs. Gerrit Fort. Mrs. Fort wears a large monacle, with tortoise rim and black ribbon band. This larger style of monacle is always held in the hand when in use and not held in place over the eye as in the original English custom, the larger monacle being used only occasionally and otherwise worn as an ornament.

Bridge Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Robinson entertained at a beautifully appointed bridge dinner at their home in Dundee Monday evening in honor of their guests, Miss Lucile Schraubstadter of St. Louis and Miss Amy Gilmore. The rooms were artistically decorated with roses and Shasta daisies. At dinner the guests were seated at small tables, each table having for a centerpiece a basket of ferns tied with bows of Ak-Sar-Ben tulle, green, yellow and red. Following dinner the bridge was played and prizes were awarded to Miss Gladys Peters, Miss Amy Gilmore, Mr. Paul Beaton and Dr. W. O. Bridges.

Many handsome evening gowns were worn by the young women present.

Miss Schraubstadter wore a stunning gown of cerise chiffon with wired tulle edged with black fox. The black fur also outlined the bodice.

Miss Gilmore wore a dainty gown of pale blue chiffon draped over charmeuse of the same shade.

There were many gowns of lace. Mrs. Charles Beaton wore an evening costume of imported cream lace elaborately trimmed with a crystal tunic. Mrs. Fredric Thomas wore pink chiffon draped over charmeuse, trimmed with shadow lace.

Fashion Hint

By LA RACONTEUSE.

The summer frock for the run into town, be it by train or motor, must be chosen to meet social exigencies that cannot be covered by the usual traveling suit. By reason of the removable yoke of linen and waistcoat, this model is adapted to train travel. Made of corseas crepe in the plum tones with "semis" of yellow and purple roses, it shows a bodice blousing with the low armhole. The long and half-loose sleeves are finished by a double cuff of white linen.

The waistcoat of white plaid linen, framing a small removable yoke of same material, is edged by a small band of plum velvet making over the shoulder and at back an effect of fachu-small round turn-up collar of linen. The front of this waistcoat is simply trimmed with tiny buttons with "plum" colors. Small draped belt of pink liberty fastened at back with two, each ends. The skirt plain and round at back is simply draped in front in the belt.

City to Complete Gas Plant Appraisal

The council, by resolution passed at the meeting yesterday morning, invested Mayor James C. Dahman with power to employ the necessary assistance to complete the appraisal of the gas company's property. Expert appraisers will not be employed, according to Assistant City Attorney W. C. Lambert, who is handling the city's side of the dollar gas suit. The work requires only ordinary clerical skill, he says.

DR. COOK IS DISCUSSED BY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Since Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, spoke at a public affairs luncheon as the guest of the Commercial club, there has been much criticism of the executive committee of the club. This matter was brought up at the meeting of the committee at noon and discussed pro and con and at the end all members agreed that it would be impossible to bring any man to Omaha who would be just the choice of every member and that in bringing speakers to Omaha to talk before a public affairs luncheon the club was doing it as an educational matter only.

Rainy Weather is Boon to Railroads; Auto Roads Heavy

There has never been a time when railroad men have been in such high spirits over long continued rains as right at this time. As a result of the rains of last and the present week, they all see a big crop yield for next year and in addition to this they see a revenue that is much longer at hand. They see the automobile put out of business as a vehicle for bringing people in to the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities.

Yesterday morning all trains, regardless of from what direction they came, were crowded with passengers coming to the city to participate in the festivities, whereas, if the weather of the last few days had been fair and dry the majority of these people, especially those from seventy-five miles or less would have come in automobiles.

A striking illustration of the volume of automobile travel when the roads are good is cited by the passenger man who was working business up for the state fair. This road was running special trains into Lincoln from the east and during one of the days of the fair it was on a train made up of six coaches. Reaching a station a few miles out from Lincoln the train had to get onto a siding for a regular train. In the train equipment two coaches were filled, three others were partially filled and in one coach there was not a passenger.

At the station the man in charge of the train, in talking with the agent, asked for a reason why travel was so light and was informed that during the morning prior to the arrival of the special 23 automobiles had passed along the railroad, all destined for Lincoln and the cars carrying from three to six people. With the railroad man this solved the problem.

Women of good judgment soon learn

Armour and Company's "Glendale" is the perfect spread for the daily bread. It is pure, wholesome, nutritious. It looks good on the table. It tastes good—on hot or cold foods.

There's nothing better for children (ask the doctor!). They just love it—spread thick—when they get a taste of it. And it saves a third of the "spread for bread" cost.

So Armour and Company and the leading dealers of this city are co-operating to show all housewives how "Glendale" cuts the high cost of living.

On the table for "spread," and in the kitchen for cooking, it pleases and satisfies. It makes the table money go farther. It abolishes "skimping."

It means better meals for the same money.

"Glendale" every day means better living

For "Glendale" will save you at least one dollar in every three you now spend on the spread for your daily bread. You have this extra dollar for table "extras." You gain this dollar again and again, week after week, throughout the year. Think how it will buy more of these:
