THE SECRET OUT AT LAST

Why One Photographs So Seldon Picture the Original as He In.

The photographer beckoned me inhought he seemed quieter and grave. than before. I think too, there was a certain pride in his manner.

He unfolded the proof of a large photo graph, and we both looked at it in silener "Is it me?" I asked. "Yes," he said quietly, "It is you," an

we went on looking at it. "The eyes," I said healtatingly, "don look very much like mine."

"Oh, no," he answered. "T've retouche them. They come out splendidly, don they?" "Fine," I said, "but surely my eye brows are not like that?" "No," said the photographer, with momentary glance at my face, "the eye brows are removed. We have a procesnow-the sulphide-for putting in nev-ones. You'll notice here where we've applied it to carry the hair away from the brow. I don't like the hair low on the skull." "Oh, you don't, don't you?" I said. "No," he went on, "I don't care for it I like to get the hair clear back to th superfices and make out a new brow

"What about the mouth?" I saked with a bitterness that was lost on the photographer, "is that mine?"

"It's adjusted a little," he said, "your is too low. I found I couldn't use it." "The ears, though," I said, "strike me as a good likeness. They're just like mine?

"Yes," said the photographier thought fully, "that's so, but I can fix that all right in this print. We have a process now the sulphide for removing the ears entirely. I'll see if--"
"Listen!" I interrupted, drawing myself up and animating my features to their full extent and speaking with a withering scorn that should have blasted the man on the spot. "Listen! I came here for a photograph-a picture-something which (mad though it seems) would have looked like me. I wanted somethins that would depict my face as Heaven gave it to me, humble though the gift may have been. I wanted something that my friends might keep after my death, to reconcile them to my loss. It seems that I was mistaken. What I wanted it no longer done. Go on, then, with your brutal work. Take your negative, or whatever it is you call it-dip it in sulphide, bromide, oxide, cowhide-anything you like-remove the eyes, correct the mouth, adjust the face, restore the lips, reanimate the necktle and reconstruct the walstcoat. Coat it with an inch of gloss, shade it, emboss it, gild it, till even you acknowledge that it is finished. Then when you have done all that-keep it for yourself and your friends. They may value it. To me it is but a worth less bauble."-American Magazine.

training is required, though it is generally available. As matters now stand in medical practice, when the general practitioner must be on emergency call for every known allment and accident, it would perhaps be unwise and impracticable to demand a separate diploma for operative work; but that there should be some distinguishing mark whereby the public could determine what physicians are adequately fitted by training, experience or exceptional qualities for the craft of the knife is most desirable. Hence the prospective value of the movement for a society or college (in

Came to His Aid in an Emergency and Made Him Solid with the Philosophy is never quite so wise as common sense, science never knows quite all the truth, and eugenics, which is-or are—of course, rather young and inex-perienced, has—or have—been outdone by a nursery rhymc.

When a prince marries a princess, they must have a son. That was the custom in the time of the "Arabian Nights" and t is the custom today. In the "Arabian Nights" there were magicians and fairles who always saw to it that the prince and princess should have as many heirs as they pleased, but today there is nothing but eugenics, and nobody knows just what that means. And not so long ago-it has all been in the papers-when a certain prince and princess began to wish for a son, they did not know where to find a magician or a fairy, and the best they could do was to consult a doctor. The poor doctor was in a dilemma, because he was supposed to know everything, and aithough nobody would have cut off his head the way they did in fairy stories. they might have cut off a big piece of his reputation, which was better than his head any day. A doctor never could get along without his reputation.

That popped right into the doctor's head and there it was. I course if little girls were made of sugar, little boys must be made of no sugar, and that is what he decided. He told the princess that if she would eat no sugar she would surely have a son, and she didn't eat any augur and she did have a son, and what further proof would anybody want? In a world so full of knowledge, foolish this ga like nursery rhymes are a great comfort-Indianapolis News.
