MEXICAN FEDERALISTS REPORTED FLEEING FROM CHIHUAHUA

and Orpnel—who were trying to check the advance of the rebels by feigning an attack on Jimenez.

General Villa is now in the vicinity of Parnal. The railroad between Jimenez and Santa Rosalia has been badly damaged and the federal troops are obliged to proceed overland, a task which hitherto they have not succeeded in accomplishing well.

News from Juarez.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 31.—No news has reached Juarez of the evacuation of Chihuahua by the federalists or of an attack by the rebels.

The rebels are known to have been close to the city yesterday afternoon. Juarez officials this afternoon were in communication with Chihuahua by wire. They say the city is quiet and that there are no trains on the line between Juarez and Chihuahua. Yesterday trains were reported made up and ready to take the troops out of Chihuahua for the north in the event of a rebel attack.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Francisco Esquadero, chief of the Department of Foreign Relations for the constitutionalists in Mexico, telegraphed their headquarters here today from Hermosillo that the federalists had evacuated the city of Chihuahua on the approach of Pancho Villa and the constitutionalist troops.

Relics of Tyler and Van Buren Added to White House List

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—After a search covering several years, Mrs. Abby G. Baker, in charge of the White House collection of historic relics, today placed in the cabinet household relics of the administration of Presidents Tyler and Van Buren. Mrs. Wilson has taken a deep interest in the collection, which includes dishes and personal effects used by former occupants of the house and has expressed her thanks to the donors.

The President Tyler relic was the gift of Mrs. William M. Ellis of Shawville, Va., and is a dinner platter, one of a set especially prized by President Tyler. In addition, Judge D. Gardner Tyler, a son of the president, who lives in Sturgeon Point, Va., has advised Mrs. Baker that he is sending two silver fruit baskets which were used in the White House and which were rescued from the ashes of the Tyler home when it was burned after the surrender of Richmond in the civil war.

Mrs. Helen Singleton Green of Columbia, S. C., furnished the Van Buren relic, a handsomely engraved silver water pitcher, a gift from Benjamin F. Butler to the president. Mrs. Green received the pitcher from her aunt, who was the wife of President Van Buren's son, and who for two years served as "mistress of the White House." President Van Buren being a widower.

CHINESE STUDENT REFUSES TO WEAR GREEN CAP

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 31.—A Chinese student, John Kozme, today was before the student court at the state university for failure to wear the green cap for freshmen. He gave the following defense:

"The green cap is a token of disgrace in China. When a man's wife is unfaithful to him, people point to him in scorn and so he has to wear the green cap."

Young said that although his countrymen don the green cap here to show their desire to live up to the Wisconsin customs, it is nevertheless with some qualm. His case was dismissed.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Grafton Stevens and his wife, wealthy residents of Wilmette, a suburb, were burned to death early today seeking to save a pet dog. Returning from the home of friends they found their house, in which the dog had been locked, in flames. Both rushed into the house and were trapped when the roof collapsed.

Stevens, a consulting engineer, and his wife, were of the same age, and were born and brought up in the same town, Charles City, Ia.

WILSON'S TRUST PROGRAM

President Orders Inquiry Into Effect of Monopoly. DAVIES OUTLINES THE PLAN Suggestions for Legislation Will Be Based on Investigation to Be Made by the Bureau of Corporations.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 31.—The beginning of a new, scientific investigation of the industrial situation, under the direction of President Wilson, which will contribute to the administration's trust legislation program at the session of congress beginning December 1, was announced here today by Commissioner Joseph E. Davies of the bureau of corporations, in an address before the National Association of Hardware Dealers.

"Whether a competitive system of large units, or a monopolistic system is the most advantageous to society is the question the bureau will attempt to determine. It is characteristic of the quality of mind of the president of the United States that he should desire facts on which to base his judgment," said Commissioner Davies. "We shall enter into this investigation with the sole intent of working out in a scientific and fair-minded spirit the facts, absolutely as they are."

Commissioner Davies declared that the ultimate solution of the trust problem depended upon the determination of the question his bureau would investigate. This investigation he believed would determine whether the problem might be solved by amendments to the Sherman law; by an industrial trade commission, or by action looking to regulation by the individual states. If the monopolistic system should be found to be most effective in spite of that fact a question whether the government should maintain an attitude against monopoly by reason of other and greater evils it induces.

Chief Concern of People.

He said one of the chief concerns of the people was which form of production, competitive or monopolistic, can produce and sell what the public buys most cheaply, consistent with a fair standard of living for workers. He sketched the business growth of the country and the rise of the corporation.

"Within the last decade and a half," he said, "30 corporations have come into property of more than $2,000,000,000. Two hundred artificial persons own three times as much wealth as the country owned in 1850."

"This fact is not cited as an indictment against the men engaged in these enterprises, but simply to show the way in which we are growing. The period of greatest development in this movement occurred in the face of the Sherman law and prior to 1904, when it first was sought to make it an active agency for the government."

"The unorganized many are demanding that law shall protect their rights from the encroachment of the organized few. Government or society is concerned with these tremendous industrial units on several different angles. What effect have these gigantic concentrations had upon the question of representative government and its perpetuity? Is there danger of the child becoming greater than the parent? What guards must the state throw about itself so that powers of government may not be subverted by the greed of men?"

Must Preserve Freedom.

"The economic aspects of the problem, the fair, just attitude of the government to capital invested and men interested in and directing these great enterprises as well as to the public at large, and what shall be done to preserve freedom of opportunity for business, is the problem to which congress will address itself in the immediate future."

"This problem reaches down to the fundamentals of government itself; it will tax the greatest minds of this generation and the next. In its solution there is a call to all outstanding, thinking, patriotic men to aid in preserving conditions which shall safeguard the liberties of men and that there may be an industrial freedom founded in this country which shall enable our children to be men—not slaves, etc.—to an industrial hierarchy or to a governmental despotism."
