

WILL CONTENT THE WOMEN

Dr. Anna Shaw Says Such Will Be Fruit of Equal Suffrage.

MEANS MUCH TO ALL HOMES

Political Equality Will Throw Responsibilities Upon the Shoulders of Both Man and Wife.

"What do I think of the effects of woman's suffrage on the American home?" said Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, when asked the question yesterday.

"There is no argument which so greatly favors the cause as the splendid fact that it will benefit the home in every way.

We are now living in a republic where there are monarchical homes. It will make a republican home in a republic and this is as it should be. It will not take their women from them, but will make them more contented in them," said Dr. Shaw, and, with a twinkle in her eye, "it will make the men behave themselves as they should."

Dr. Shaw arrived in the city at 8 o'clock this morning and was taken to the home of Mrs. F. A. Brogan, where she remained until the time of her address on "The Constitution of the United States" at the Auditorium at 10:30 o'clock, where she spoke before the State Teachers' association. Following the address Dr. Shaw went to the Commercial club, where she addressed the men of the organization and their families.

"There is nothing in which I am quite so interested as the American home and its future," said Dr. Shaw, as she was drawing on her cloak, preparing to go to the Commercial club.

"It has not affected the homes of New Zealand, in fact they are quite ideal, and why should it affect ours in America in any other way?"

Dr. Shaw leaves for Lincoln at 4 o'clock and will be accompanied by Miss Jeanette McDonald. She will address the Nebraska Suffrage association this evening in that city.

The noted suffragist said that she was feeling in the best of health and that as the enthusiasm grew in the country for woman's suffrage so she gained in strength.

Women Should Be Paid for Fitness Same as the Men

"Women of this country are being underpaid for their work, in comparison to wages paid men for the same work," said Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman's Suffrage association, before the Commercial club members and their guests at a public affairs luncheon at noon.

"What should be done," said Dr. Shaw, "is to pay for fitness. Pay men for fitness and pay women for fitness, but—erect a standard of fitness, whereby men and women will be paid equally for ability."

"The way the government is conducted today, the good political worker is given the good position. Women could do this same work, but they are not political workers. I wish that it was in my power to locate a huge farm in every state in the union. Then send every good political worker to this farm and put experts in the employ of the government.

"The whole situation can be sized up in a few words. Men do not respect women. Man loves woman, works for her, slaves for her, suffers and dies for her, but he does not respect her. The average man talks down to a woman. He does not think he is combating brains with brains, as when he talks to another man."

Man of Great Social Affairs. "Did you ever notice a man in a social gathering—you don't see many there any more, man is leaving social affairs. When he talks with a woman, he is the most awkward being alive; he reminds one of a fish out of water. The first thing he does is to get frustrated and wants to hide his hands, then he wants to hide his feet, and lastly he looks about the place for another man. Then, when he leaves and meets a man, his whole being changes. He looks the other man in the eye, talks business with him and is the other's equal. That is respect. That is what woman wants—the respect of man."

"City life is a business and a social problem. It cannot be handled by man alone. Men and women should combine their energies and make municipal government a success."

Dr. Shaw said that women were the first workers. Women, she said, used to do all the work. Now she does not do it, or man either. She said the difference between a man and a woman is that man gets machinery to do the work that women originally did by hand. She said: "Women used to do the weaving, farming, carpet making, brewing and all other work. Women used to be able to brew enough for men—but not now."

One of the largest gatherings ever assembled in the huge dining room of the Commercial club was there to hear Dr. Shaw. Several could not get their luncheon there, owing to the crowded condition of the rooms. John L. Kennedy presided over the meeting.

Illinois Suffragists May Divide Into Dry and Wet Factions

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 7.—A feeling of intense expectancy brooded over the meeting of the meeting of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association because of reports that the association may split into "dry" and so-called "wet" factions.

The nominating committee went to work on the ticket which is to be presented tomorrow and which may indicate the parting of the ways. It is well understood that Grace Wilbur Trout will be renominated for president.

Miss A. Watkins, discussing the situation today said: "Although Ella S. Stewart has refused to become a candidate she has many devoted followers and it is possible some one may nominate her from the floor. There is a strong demand for her in certain quarters."

Mrs. Trout and Mrs. Stewart differ on an important point of organization. The former advocates the present system of requiring dues from clubs which wish to affiliate with the state organization. Mrs. Stewart holds that the association needs everything it can get and asserts that the factor of dues would prevent many of them from joining.

Mrs. Stewart denounced reports of a divisive factional fight. "The sensation mongers," she said, "are trying to distort into a farce what is really an orderly contest to elect the best possible president."

Morganthaler Will Give His Men a Rest

The University of Omaha football team will not have a game today because of the fact that Coach Morganthaler would take no chances on injuring some of his players before the Creighton-Omaha game to be played November 15 on Creighton field. The Omaha team had several offers to play Saturday, one with Grand Island college at Grand Island, and the other with the Morningside Reserves of Sioux City, at Omaha, but would not accept either game. Coach Morganthaler is more than anxious that his players should rest up, as he has put the team through the hardest scrimmaging practice of the season during the last week. The rest will give some of the players, that have been out of practice for several weeks, a chance to rest up and get in condition.

Beginning with the Creighton game, the University of Omaha will have three hard tussles coming in the short period of only twelve days. With the games coming together so closely, Morganthaler thought it best to forego a game Saturday.

DOCHERTY READS A NASH LECTURE TO THE AD CLUB

A large number of ad men turned out to the Ad club dinner and meeting at the Paxton hotel Friday noon to hear Charles R. Docherty, an engraver, give one of C. B. Nash's lectures on engraving. Mr. Nash is the advertising expert of the bathtub trust and has prepared a series of lectures on the science of newspaper advertising, and the Ad club wished to have one of his lectures read by a man who is thoroughly familiar with the subject.

Mr. Docherty illustrated the paper with about twenty-five screens, which showed the difference between screens of varied degrees of fineness and coarseness. He interpolated remarks of his own acquaintance, which served to explain the technicalities of engraving.

In the absence of President Manley, Vice President Mahaffey acted as chairman of the meeting.

Graff, Dr. Holvichner and the principals and special teachers of the Omaha public schools. A musical program on the Victrola, and an educational talk by Mrs. Clark were features of the evening's entertainment.

PARCEL POST BUSINESS CONTINUES TO INCREASE

The Omaha postoffice is not only becoming a clearing house for farm machinery and products, but a collection agency, according to Postmaster John C. Wharton. During the month of October, 1,923 parcel post packages were issued in the Omaha postoffice and dispatched. During the last month, 613 C. O. D. parcel post packages were sent through the country from the Omaha office, which amounted to $2,571.62. Also, 144 parcel post packages were delivered within the city, which netted $350.00.

ALLEGES THAT JUDGMENT WAS NOT LEGALLY MADE

Alleging that he suffered the loss of his position over a judgment rendered against him by Justice of the Peace George S. Collins for $19 Burt Williams is suing E. Voelke, George S. Collins and his bondsmen, the Massachusetts Bonding company, for $2,000 damages. Williams alleges that Collins rendered the judgment on August 3 and that his commission as justice of the peace had expired July 24, disqualifying him for the action against Williams.

Moving Pictures in Omaha; What the Movie Men Say

OMAHA, Nov. 7.—To the Editor of The Bee: Considerable agitation having been current recently concerning moving pictures, their character, methods of handling, censorship, etc., a few words carrying with them the truth of the situation of the past and present should not be taken as out of place.

It is true that the managers of the regular local film rental agencies have used their best efforts to co-operate with the Social Service board in that they have withdrawn from service any such reels or parts of reels as have been reported to them by the Social Service board as being unfit for any part of the people of Omaha to see.

It has also been my observation that the Social Service board has seen a great many of the films that have been shown in Omaha, and but very few (if any) believe it is safe to say less than ten) of the films handled through the regular rental agencies that have thus been considered unfit by the Social Service board, the reason being, no doubt, that all such films have been passed on by the National Board of Censorship and the fact that a few of our larger cities have local censorship boards, which boards, in some instances, are decidedly critical, even to the point of unfairness, and since the same subjects that are handled by the regular rental agencies of Omaha have to pass muster in the cities where such local censorship boards exist, it is of course, the desire of the manufacturers to make such films as are demanded by the public which shall also be in keeping with what the National Censorship board and the various local censorship boards consider proper.

There are approximately 100 subjects each week handled by these regular rental agencies. There has been no public criticism of any of those films, and but very little criticism by the Social Service board. There are, however, in Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis, New York and other large cities so-called "Feature Film" companies, and the so-called "wild cat" films that are quite sensational in name and, in some instances, very sensational in portrayal. In some instances these films have been passed by the National Board of Censorship, but in the majority of instances have not, although I am quite certain they are at liberty to exhibit these films before the National Censorship board, but, as is natural, would in that case be compelled to meet with the requirements of the National Censorship board in order to secure their stamp of approval.

Now then, since there is a locality in Omaha where the people seem to demand this sensational film, and since, of course, the exhibitors in that locality can make perhaps more money by the showing of such sensational film, and should it be the desire of the public and of the Social Service board to protect the young and innocent of Omaha from seeing such films, it will be only necessary for the Social Service board to have authority of saying to the exhibitors of Omaha that in their opinion it had, it will immediately be removed from service by the managers of the local exchanges, and am positive this part will be taken care of in the future, same as in the past, whether it be made mandatory or not.

I am certain the exhibitors at large of Omaha regret the recent unpleasant publicity and have expressed their willingness to co-operate in every way in order that the industry may be advanced and in keeping with the public demand for entertainment that will be educational, morally uplifting and of popular interest to young and old alike.

It has been cited that the local exchanges were instrumental in bringing about the decision of the theaters showing these outside and wild cat films, which is decidedly untrue, even though frankly the elimination of such outside films might bring a little more business to the local exchanges, but it is the opinion of the exchange men that every one making films has a perfect right to the sale of his product anywhere, and it is up to him and the Social Service board to see to it that it be suitable entertainment for the moving picture patrons of Omaha to see, and the exchange managers further believe that it is their business and the business of the Social Service board to see that their films do not come in for any part of such public censure as has been the experience of the outsider.

It was also strange news to me that the exchanges were in favor of a weekly censorship of all films that come to Omaha by the Social Service board, as I do not think it necessary and believe the Social Service board knows it is not necessary to review each and every film that has been passed previously by the National Board of Censorship, which would entail considerable expense and a great amount of time each week, and I do believe the solution as set forth above to be in its being made mandatory that any films not previously passed by the Board of Censorship should come before the Social Censorship board of Omaha before being shown.
