W. B. Roney Puts Wallet Where Bandit Cannot Find It.

LOSES WATCH AND STICKPIN

Robber Makes Three Attempts to Get Coin from Omaha Man Who Is Just Returning from New York.

Will B. Roney, 124 South Thirty-seventh street, is trying to determine whether he is the luckiest man in Omaha or the unluckiest. He saved $50 by virtue of some clever maneuvers, but he did lose a watch and a diamond stickpin, both of which the bold, bad bandit who stuck up the Burlington train Thursday night carried off with him and didn't even say "Thank you," because he was so sure that he didn't get some kate along with the jewelry.

Roney was returning home from a buying trip to New York and he still had $50 in his pocket, which, of course, is a violation of all ethics in itself. But any way he had the $50 and as the cost of living is still increasing he was of the opinion that he still needed the fifty. When the train was pulling out of the Council Bluffs transfer, the conductor hurried through the Pullman in which Mr. Roney was traveling and these excited words slipped cautiously out of the corner of his mouth: "Man with a gun coming." Roney sized up the situation immediately and he hustled for the observation platform. He jerked his pocketbook from his coat and threw it on the floor, after which he pushed a chair over the spot. He then returned inside and tried desperately to look calm when the bandit made his formal call.

When the bandit yelled for Roney to cough up, Roney promptly handed over his watch and stickpin. The bandit called for cash. "Nothing doing," said Roney. "I've got to borrow carfare home. Just been to New York." The New York line caught the robber's fancy and he believed probably it was so. Thus he continued through the car, but after he had gone a ways he returned and compelled Roney to submit to a searching. But the robber searched in vain. He walked away a bit disgruntled and returned once more a few minutes later. Another search, still no money. The bandit was peeved by this time, but he decided that time was short and he made tracks after his third search. Whereupon the crafty Roney beamed from ear to ear and sauntered out to the platform where he picked up his money and, throwing out his chest to show the other passengers that he cut some ice, he trailed back into the Pullman.

WATCH IS SAVED FROM BANDIT

Highly Prized Timepiece Was at the Jeweler's at the Time. By a luck accident a gold watch, highly prized by W. J. Hotz, attorney, because it was publicly presented to his father, was not included in the haul which a train robber made in Council Bluffs. The day before he sent it to a jeweler for repairs and it was returned to his office today. Mr. Hotz was one of the passengers.

SETTLEMENT OF DEMURRAGE SUITS IS NOW PENDING

Settlement of suits brought in 1912 by the Union Pacific Railroad company against all the packing companies of South Omaha to recover accumulated demurrage and storage charges growing out of the retaining of the railroad's cars by the defendants was said to be forecasted by a stipulation filed in district court providing for settlement of one of the suits. The record shows that in this case, in which the Swift Packing company was defendant, a judgment of $17 and costs has been entered in favor of the Union Pacific.

The company in the Swift case sued for $28. Several thousand dollars are involved in all the suits.

M. J. Lacy Gives His Side of Controversy With McGovern

As explaining his side of his dismissal from the city engineer's office, M. J. Lacy has submitted this statement over his signature for publication: "As one of the daily papers gave a misleading statement of my hearing before the council November 5, which hearing I requested, of the charges made against me by Mr. McGovern through the daily papers, allow me a few words of explanation.

"Note the council's procedure. I was first called to explain in my defense. After calling the council's attention to the fact that it was up to Mr. McGovern to first submit his proof of his charges, Mr. McGovern side-stepped his charges for which the request was granted, and produced a so-called daily note book kept by himself, on which he had made notes of insubordination, etc. After it was demanded of Mr. McGovern that he submit proof of his charges to the daily papers against me, it was found that he had not a single witness, and then before the council and those present made a complete denial of all. Then he was allowed to go on with his subterfuge charges. Here they are as taken from his so-called note book: 'In November, 1912, Lacy asked for a three-day vacation and took a week.' The fact is I asked for two days' vacation and telephoned from Central City on one more day, which was granted by George W. Craig. Again his so-called note book told him that on August 9, 1912, he found Mr. Lacy loafing in the shade of an alley between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth, north of Laramie. What a crime! Here are the facts: I and two others were driving by this alley, and Robert Hamilton and Ed Bowers, Charles Fanning's foreman, stopped me for instructions for repairs of a private manhole cover back of the Hamilton flats, and Mr. McGovern, who happened to be leaning down Fanning's account in his car, stopped and inquired of the two men what they were standing in the shade for. He came up the alley, walked up to me and insultingly asked me if I spent all my time on Fanning's work. I had been there but two minutes, as Mr. Robert Hamilton will testify. Again his trusty note book says that 'On the first day of December, 1912, I refused to go out in the field to work when ordered by McGovern. Now, to convince you that Mr. McGovern made his note book up after I requested this investigation, I will ask you to glance at the 1912 calendar and you will find that December 1 came on Sunday. This charge needs no further explanation. This is plainly evident that Mr. McGovern made up his note book from the 1913 calendar, and his clever intellect, for which the city pays $4,500 a year, had not taken into account that leap year advanced the day one ahead. But Mr. McGovern failed to mention from his prepared book that at one time when he found fault with my act reporting his chauffeur for not being there to take the men out to work as arranged by him, that his chauffeur was at that time hauling Mrs. McGovern and another lady around town. BUTTERINE IS IN DEMAND

High Price of Butter Doubles Sales of the Substitute.

EGGS ARE ALSO MOVING UP

Home Grown Vegetables Are Off the Market, the Supply Now Being Shipped into City from the South.

As a result of the constant high price of butter, the sales of butterine in Omaha have doubled in the last year. In the summer time, when butter sells for a reasonable price, the butterine sales are relatively small, but when fall and winter arrive and the price of butter jumps upward, butterine sales increase. According to Al King, manager of the Hayden's grocery department, the sales of butterine average per day about twice as much as last year at this time.

Butterine sells from 12 1/2 cents to 35 cents and, according to Mr. King, who says he has a ticklish palate, the difference between the 25-cent brand and the best creamery butter is so slight that a difference of 10 cents in price would make almost anybody who had ever sampled butterine use it in place of butter. It is almost impossible to secure fresh eggs at present and fresh eggs are selling for 35 cents. Storage eggs took a boost of 2 cents in price to keep the prices in proportion. Most of the egg sales in Omaha are storage eggs.

Sugar took a rise in price and is now selling twenty-one pounds for a dollar. Coffee, tea, cheese and other staple articles have remained about the same for the last week. Meats have taken no jumps, but spring chickens fell off 1 cent a pound.

All home grown vegetables are completely off the market and all vegetables in Omaha now are shipped from the south. Grape fruit is coming into the market in fine style from both Florida and Cuba and apples are in good season. Apples are selling from $1.85 to $2.25 a box.

Sheep Butchers at Cudahy Plant Out

Because their foreman placed upon the list of those who are to work "steady time," a man who they believed was not eligible for such promotion, and because he turned down one of their selection, 250 sheep butchers and laborers at the Cudahy packing house walked out at 8 o'clock. The number, 250, is given by a committee of the protesting men. Officers of the company say that if these do not come back tomorrow their places will be filled by other men.

At the packing house, the men work on "steady" and "broken" time. It is customary to give preference to men who have been longest employed. The man who was put on the "steady time" list today has a farm near Omaha, which he works in summer. In winter he works at the packing house. The men who have struck believe that inasmuch as he has not been steadily employed at the packing house he should not have been given preference over another man.

The sheep butchers are organized, and their union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

DR. CHARLES M'BURNEY DEAD

Famous Surgeon Dies Suddenly of Heart Disease.

DISCOVERER OF APPENDICITIS

His Essay on Diseases of the Vermiform Appendix, Published in 1889, Gave Him World-Wide Fame.

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Dr. Charles M'Burney, the New York surgeon, died suddenly of heart disease early today at the home of his sister in Brookline, Mass.

Dr. M'Burney returned from a hunting trip in Maine last Saturday. He had appeared in his usual health until this morning.

Dr. M'Burney, after a practice of nearly forty years in New York, retired to his country estate in 1907. During his residence in Stockbridge he had been an enthusiastic follower of outdoor life and sports.

Dr. M'Burney was born at Roxbury, Mass., sixty-eight years ago. He was a graduate of Harvard college and of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York. During his professional life he was connected as visiting or consulting surgeon with many New York hospitals and for a time was professor of clinical surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Exports of Coal Double Within Last Decade

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—The value of coal passing out of continental United States in the year which ends with next month will approximate $100,000,000, against less than half that sum a decade ago. This estimate, based upon figures for eight months of the current year just completed by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, indicates that the value of domestic coal sent to foreign countries in the full year will approximate $100,000,000; of that supplied to vessels engaged in the foreign trade, $25,000,000; of coke exported, $5,000,000; and of shipments of coal to the non-contiguous territories of the United States, $1,000,000. This indicates an increase during the last decade of over 100 per cent. The value of coal exported in the calendar year 1908 having been $27,000,000, while for the current year the total will approximate $100,000,000; and the increase in the value of coal supplied to vessels engaged in the foreign trade and of that passing out of the country in the form of coke has been along similar lines, though the official record of that supplied to vessels only begins with the year 1907.

Wilson's Future Son-in-Law Advanced

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Francis B. Sayre, who is soon to marry Miss Jessie Wilson at the White House, will no longer attempt to unravel marital tangles on behalf of the county of New York.

Mr. Sayre was promoted today by District Attorney Whitman and is now a deputy assistant district attorney. Previously he was employed in the complaint bureau. He passed his bar examination two days ago, and this enabled Mr. Whitman to advance him.

Mr. Sayre will remain in the district attorney's office about a week longer. His honeymoon trip will last a month, and thereafter he will take up his duties as secretary to the president of Williams college.
