He expressed his opinion of it as "That is a good thing, fine, practical and simple. You ought to have no trouble in getting it adopted. I will expect to hear a good deal of it in the near future."

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Packing House Laborer is Heir to Large Fortune. SEARCH FOR MAN NEAR FUTLE. Fellow Laborer Denies He is in the City, Fearing Quest of Police Meant Ill Fortune to His Friend. Suspecting that the guarded inquiries of Chief of Police John Briggs boded no good for Valentine O'Neal, an employe of Armour's packing house, a fellow employe yesterday denied all knowledge of O'Neal to the police chief and by so doing almost defeated a long-time search for O'Neal, who has fallen heir to a fortune left by his deceased brother at Rochester, N. Y. While Chief Briggs was engaged in writing a letter conveying the word that O'Neal could not be found in South Omaha the old man entered the chief's office and admitted his identity. Chief Briggs received a letter from Chicago yesterday asking for information of O'Neal. The letter of inquiry said that O'Neal had fallen heir to a fortune in Rochester and his whereabouts was being sought. A search in Chicago led to South Omaha and to Chief Briggs. The chief remembered O'Neal and began a search of the packing houses. At Armour he thought his search ended, but a fellow workman whom the chief asked about O'Neal denied that any such man worked there. O'Neal was working a few feet away at the time. After the chief's departure it is thought that the fellow workman told O'Neal of the chief's question and O'Neal, fearing nothing from the police, made himself known. The letter says that O'Neal, together with his brothers, William and Frederick of Rochester, has fallen heir to a fortune of substantial proportions. Chief Briggs said he thought the inheritance might amount to $100,000. O'Neal is unmarried and for a long time has been employed at Armour's as a laborer. He rooms at the Rex hotel, Twenty-sixth and L streets. He is past middle age. Stock Judging Team Ready. Word has been received from Prof. R. K. Bull of the Nebraska University college of agriculture announcing that the stock judging team, composed of students, has been selected for the International Stock show in Chicago, the last of the month. The team is being rounded into form, being given the finishing touches by the professor, and it is expected they will give a good account in the battle for honor with the teams from other western universities. The boys will start for Chicago on November 1, putting in the intervening time looking over several of the best stock farms and agricultural schools of Iowa and Illinois, landing at the International about November 29. The Union Stock Yards company is intensely interested in the work of the agricultural students and pays the expenses of the stock judging team to the International every year. There is always keen competition for a place on the judging team and the trip to Chicago as a prize furnishes an additional incentive to the boys. Yards Corn Contest. The corn contest for the boys of Nebraska, being carried on by the Union Stock Yards company of Omaha, through the University of Nebraska agricultural department, has been given added stimulus, the local live stock management having hung up as a bonus to the winner of the first prize the entire expense of a trip to Washington, as the Nebraska delegate to the National Convention of Agricultural Extension work, which will be held there during December. This special prize is given in addition to the $700 in cash prizes previously offered by the Stock Yards company, and has created considerable competition among the boys throughout the state who entered the corn contest in the early spring. While these corn contests have been held only during the last two or three years, a marked degree of advancement is shown in the contestants' exhibits each year. Without question, such corn growing contests not only teach the young man of Nebraska the most advanced and economical methods of producing his corn crop, but lay before the parents of the contestants the results of the numerous experiments made by the agricultural department of the University of Nebraska in a more comprehensive manner than could be otherwise done. They bring about a tendency toward raising better corn each year, and more of it, giving them an opportunity to raise and place in marketable condition more cattle and hogs each year. Parse Wanders Far Away. How the purse of Miss Beattie Beisendorf of Omaha and South Omaha could get down to a way station in the extreme south of the state of New Mexico is a mystery that is now engaging the attention of the South Omaha police. The purse was found some time ago by a railroad detective, who forthwith suspected foul play and wrote to Chief of Police John Briggs for information of the woman whose card appeared in the purse found. After a search by the police Miss Beisendorf was found in Omaha. She said she had missed her purse some time ago and thinking she had lost it bothered no more about it. The police think the pocketbook was stolen and that the thief may have thrown the empty purse under some car trucks which finally reached the southern clime before being jarred off. Thirty Days for Pelege. Nic Pelege, who is alleged to have paid for his wedding ceremony with coin derived from worthless paper some days ago, was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail yesterday by Police Judge James Callanan. Because of the difficulty in getting the bank officials present, the police consent to have the man plead guilty to a minor charge. To Water Embargo on Hogs. James H. Bull, chairman of the Live Stock Sanitary board, has called a meeting at the Live Stock Exchange building for today. It is proposed to raise the embargo on hogs and after treating them with serum to allow them to be shipped out of the yards to feeding pens. It is said that one of the effects of the new system if adopted will result in the general handling of hogs by speculators and commission men. Writ Denied by Court. District Judge A. C. Troup yesterday afternoon refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus prayed for by W. J. McLean and Pete Johnson fined in the South Omaha police court $50 and $100, respectively, on a charge of gambling. McLean and Johnson were arrested Saturday evening in a raid on an alleged gambling joint in the rear of the old Packer's bank building at Twenty-sixth and N streets. Police Magistrate James Callanan tried the cases and sentenced the men to pay fines. The men through their attorney prayed for a writ of habeas corpus yesterday. Judge Troup dismissed the writ and the men were locked up in the county jail. Later in the evening McLean was released on bonds signed by George Horner. The case is to be appealed. Magic City Gossip. Bernard Larkin has returned from a trip to Woodlake, Neb. The Entre Nous club will give a dance Friday evening at Rushing's hall. City Attorney Henry C. Murphy has returned from a trip out in the state. Office space for rent in Bee office, 218 N street. Terms reasonable. Well known location. Tel. South 27. The L. G. T. club will give a dance Friday night at the Workmen Temple, Twenty-fifth and M streets. Lula Stehlek, saloonkeeper at 213 Q street, is still before the Fire and Police Board for running out of hours. The Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church will hold a rummage sale next Friday at 187 South Twenty-fourth street. Chief of Detectives James Sheehan has a number of men under arrest on suspicion of their being connected with recent robberies in South Omaha. For Rent—Suite of offices, second floor, 24th street front, steam heat, gas and electric light, stationary lavatory, especially suitable for physician, dentist or attorney; low rent. We are meeting the wants of our trade in fine shape. John Flynn & Co. The funeral of Mrs. Mary Lind has been postponed until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her late residence, 3327 South Twenty-fourth street, Omaha. The delay is due to a telegram announcing the coming of a brother from Los Angeles who will not arrive before Monday.
