

TAYLOR ASKS FOR NEW TRIAL

Hearing of Motion Will Be Saturday in District Court.

BROME REMEMBERS GARD

Reminds that Juror Was Once a Client of His and Wonders Why Council Did Not Assert the Fact.

Affidavits, signed by Cadet Taylor, Brome & Brome, lawyers, and W. C. Fraser, who is in their employ, were filed in district court in preparation for the hearing today of Taylor's motion for a new trial of his suit against The Bee.

Clinton Brome, the youngest of the law firm, tells the court that he knew during the preliminary examination of jurors that Wesley Gard, the man who afterward claimed to have been offered a bribe, was his client, and asserts that he wondered that Attorney Council for The Bee did not bring out this fact. Gard became a member of the jury, and the fact that he was acquainted with the Bromes did not develop until later.

Mrs. Gard said on the witness stand that she and her husband had frequently visited at the Bromes' office without any particular object in view. Court records show that a year and a half ago Gard was a member of a jury which gave a client of the Bromes a verdict of $5,000 in a personal injury case in which the lawyers had a lien for half the verdict.

Fraser in his affidavit tells of seeing Tom Dennison speaking to Juror Wilson during a recess in the trial. Dennison visited the court house several times, saying openly that he desired to talk with Attorney Council. Council represented Dennison in a libel suit against the Omaha Daily News, which was to have come up for trial in a short time.

The newspaper since has settled the Dennison libel suit for $1,000, according to report.

"Tom Dennison is generally credited with having common sense," said Attorney Council. "This charge that he would come to the court house and say anything in the slightest degree improper to a juror is ridiculous."

H. C. Brome admits that Attorney Council in his closing argument said that every juror had asserted that he did not know any of the attorneys on the other side, but Brome declares Gard was not asked the question.

Taylor, the plaintiff in the suit against The Bee, signed an affidavit similar to the others.

The issue as to whether Gard was asked during his examination if he knew the attorneys for Taylor is of importance because, should it be proved that he answered the question falsely, he might be prosecuted on a charge of perjury.

Fred C. Rogers is New Superintendent at the County Farm

Fred C. Rogers, who has a long record as a successful business man, Friday was appointed superintendent of the county poor farm by the Board of County Commissioners.

Mr. Rogers, when notified of the board's action, said: "This position is one which I consider as highly important and if I have gained any business ability in years of experience I shall use every bit of it in caring for the county's wards. When I am out there I shall invite inspection of every activity and department."

The appointment of Mr. Rogers was in line with the board's already announced policy of putting the poor farm on a business basis and effecting economies which will result in better facilities and treatment of inmates without added expense to the taxpayers.

The new superintendent will take charge of the farm next February. He came to Omaha from Deadwood, S. D., ten years ago and is 35 years old. He has had experience in the butcher business, as proprietor of a hotel, and in the cigar business. At present he is employed in a responsible capacity in Max Mosher's wholesale cigar establishment at Thirteenth and Farnam streets. He lives with his wife at 128 North Forty-second street.

Mr. Rogers will succeed E. W. Robinson, who was notified by the county commissioners that he would not be reappointed after his present term expires.
