How Much Does She Know!

OMAHA, Dec. 29 .- To the Editor of the Bee: In our letter box today is an article aigned "L. M.," wherein he says: The student of social conditions knows that but a very small percentage of women enter this (a prositute's) life with a full knowledge of it." Now, cannot believe that the student of social conditions knows any such thing. admit that no man or woman enters any sort of a life with an absolute knowledge of what it will produce, but no woman, however dense her ignorance, will say she does not know that prostitution is the most degrading and disgraceful vice a women can practice. If a girl of 15 does not know this much about the social evil she is indeed an object of pity, and if she does know this much about it, she has all the knowledge necessary to form a correct judgment and decide whether or not so former. choose such a life. Woman are not so former. 'Good," replied the boss.

But by saying "that a very small perentage enter this life with a full knowledge of it" the writer implies that some his sister, was allowed to participate in do enter it with a full knowledge of it, band of beautiful girls of nineteen or so, knowledge of its consequences, and if "The lights went out, the usual grab- they all have some knowledge of it, what is the sum and substance of such knowlthat can be known about the social evil What's the matter, Willie? Further, he says. "It is also known prostitute the woman is compelled to resort to the use of drugs and liquor that destroy her moral fiber and in time her mental faculties." I would pronounce this statement a far-fetched and ridiculous absurdity, for thousands of strictly virtuous women use wine, beer and

And, besides, some of these soiled women use no drugs, and a few use liquor of no kind. More than that, a large number of the fallen women have been married and to say that a married woman is ignorant of this question is qual to saying that she is an idlot. This loctrine applied to men would read thus: In order to endure the life of a liber tine, of a rounder, a grafter or a burglar, a man is compelled to resort to the use of drugs, liquor, etc., in order to destroy his moral fiber and cripple his conscience." Let us not suppose mankind is in a state of primitive ignorance in order to palliate their vices and condone their offenses. E. O. MINTOSH,

No Christian Science Play. OMAHA, Dec. 29 .- To the Editor of The Bee: Kindly allow me to correct a statement in your Saturday issue in regard to the play, "The Right Princess," at one of our local theaters.

This play is not given under the auspices or patronage of the Christian Science church. We know of no such thing as a Christian Science play or Christian Science novel. These are not factors in Christian Science work. The teachings of Christian Science are too sacred to be given to the world in this manner, but are accurately set forth in its text books, the Bible and "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures. by Mary Baker Eddy

Christian Scientists, in common with many others who appreciate a play of high moral standard, would undoubtedly enjoy this one.

In an interview with Mr. Dempster, the leading man of this company, he informed the writer that he was not a member of the Christian Science church, but thinks well of its teachings. CHARLES A. DUNHAM.

OMAHA, Dec. 29 .- To the Editor of The Bee: I notice in your issue of Sunday morning a communication from your Washington correspondent in which it ment. Among other things it is stated ligently."

These figures were prepared and the circular issued while the measure was in the hands of the conference committee and the figures not likely to be changed. The object, therefore, was simply to give specific information concerning the operation of the law, and with no intention of criticising further what congress, in its collective wisdom, has seen fit to enact into law.

The fact that the Nebraska National bank was one of the first to signify by wire its acceptance of the provisions of the law shows that the figures were prepared with no hostile intention. On the contrary, the writer believes it is a workable measure in its present form. and that the national banks will almost unanimously join the system.

It is proper, however, that banks should be made to realize what will be required of them, and the figures given by me are in no case arbitrary, but can be easily figured out by anyone taking the trouble to do so. I attach herewith a copy of the circular and will take for an illustration, "All Nebraska National
