tude with More Favorable Pit News to the Bull Side of the Market.

OMAHA, Jan. 16, 1914.

OMAHA, Jan. 16, 1914.

The average wheat trader was at sea yesterday and the trend of values was quite uncertain. There was little on which to buy grain under present conditions, while, on the other hand, there was little on which to sell it. Price changes were narrow. According to the cash handlers of wheat at Chicago, the offerings from Nehraska were larger, and this was the case especially from the Omaha territory.

The change to milder weather was an overbalancing feature in so far as the unprotected condition of the wheat plant is concerned at the moment. There was little talk of freezing and thawing yesterday, and nothing short of a crop scare will cause any activity or strength. The bulls and longs in wheat were content to allow the market to take care of itself yetserday, and their action caused many to put out short lines who otherwise would probably have taken on some wheat. If history repeats itself, and it is likely to do so in this particular case, those who sold wheat yesterday may be driven to cover before another days session is at an end. The market was a one-sided affair (when it was declining yesterday), but on the advance toward the close the buying was scattered and three were more buils than bears. The outsider is badly needed in the wheat market at Chicago in order to stir things up. There was only a sprinking of outside trade yesterday and that came mostly from the southwest and the northwest. The weakness in the spring wheat markets was partially the result of heavy selling on Chicago speculative account, together with the lack of power to absorb the grain thrown overboard.

Corn showed some stubbornness yesterday, although the buying side of the market was estimated to absorb an approximate to prevent day, although the buying side of the market was estimated to absorb an enormous quantity of orders to prevent values from selling off sharply. There was more in the news favorable to the buils than to the bears. Iowa and Illinois were consigning corn and there was not a sale of that grain over night at Chicago. The shorts in corn have covered freely during the hast few days, and this left the market without its principal support. There was a disposition on the part of the professionals in hos products to take profits when available and there also was rather liberal sales of lard by packers. This pressure brought about declines all around. Several of the big wire houses were buyers. Longs were although the buying side wire houses were buyers. Longs were reinstating their lines toward the close constating their lines toward the closes and this buying closed the market steady. Cash wheat was unchanged. Cash corn was unchanged to ic lower. There was no sale of oats. Clearances: Wheat and flour equal to 656,000 bushels; corn, 7,000 bushels; oats, 14,000 bushels;

transported Sylvia May Hendricks, a telephone operator, from that state to others
for immoral purposes, was signed today
by Governor Johnson.

After Osburn had ran away with the girl he deserted her and rejoined his wife.

Miss Hendricks' father caused his arrest.

The movement was more or less draggy
throughout.
