SPIRIT OF PUSH AND PROGRESS

Musical and Literary, Entertainment, Oratorical Contests and Other Activities—Educational Notes.

The art department of the Peru State Normal school, under the direction of Miss Mary McLellan, has a new course in the study of historic ornament.

The work is divided into four groups. The first group embraces the Egyptian ornament, which is studied and the designs are drawn by the students.

The Egyptians took most of their designs from the flowers and seed pods of the lotus, a water lily, which grew in the Nile, and also from the scarab (a beetle which the Egyptians considered sacred).

The second group consists of Greek and Roman ornament. The students learn to recognize the principal forms, which appear in the Greek and Roman decoration—the anathemon, acanthus, rosette, scroll, egg and dart.

They also learn to draw and know the differences of Greek and Roman pillars—the Doric, Ionic, Corinthian and Roman composite.

The third group is the Byzantine, romanesque and saracenic ornament, the quatrefoil, trefoil, circle, cross and others.

The saracenic design is based upon geometry and is not symmetrical, since the Mohammedan law forbade the use of any living thing, animal or plant or art.

The last group consists of Gothic and renaissance designs. The Gothic represents plants and animals and is much used in heraldry.

The renaissance, which is the first of all modern styles, practically combines the best features of the previous designs.

All drawings are made on an established scale; and all colors used in the designs are used according to historical reference.

In connection with this work the students are referred to various books in the library on history and historic ornamentation.

The faculty play on Friday night was given to a full house. The play is known as "Billy," and abounds in mirth.

Various Events Diversity Activities of Students

An exceptionally fine entertainment was given at chapel Monday morning by the pharmacy class.

The pharmln programs are always anticipated with pleasure. They were greeted with rousing cheers and before being seated were greeted with a yell by each of the other classes.

They responded with the new "locomotive" yell.

Prof. John W. Phillips is making extra preparations for the vesper services, which will be held in the college chapel, January 25.

The past programs have been such as to call out a large audience and this doubtless will do likewise as some of his best students will appear in solo work.

Rev. Emanuel will deliver the address.

Mrs. M. Reynolds of the art department will have a new class starting in public school drawing next week.

This will consist chiefly of sketching from nature, and water colors.

The first winter term of the year closed Thursday and many of the short-distance students went home to spend Sunday.

But will return Monday to resume work Tuesday morning.

The advanced singing class under the direction of Prof. Phillips has been spending considerable time in preparation of the "Bohemian Girl," by Balfe.

This will be one of the best musicals given by the class and the public is cordially invited to the entertainment.

Further notice will be given.

The commercial department is nearing the 200 enrollment mark and there are great prospects for the largest class of the year at the opening of the third term next week.
